Russians Now Hurling a Furious Attack on Galician City.

FRENCH WIN GERMAN LINES NEAR VERDUN

Beat Back Teutons Where Latter Were Once Near to Success.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The capture of German first-line trenches over a front of one mile before Verdun, was announced today by the French war office. The ground was won in the long contested sector east of the Meuse between the Vaux-Chapelle region and the town of Chenoy. It is in this sector where the Germans most nearly approached a breach in the defenses of the city that the heaviest fighting has been in progress recently.

On the Somme front the principal activity of last night was on the initiative of the Germans, who made a determined effort to recapture from the British the small section of ground along the Guillemont-Comblès highway known as Leuze wood. The German counter attack led to one of the fiercest man-to-man struggles with hand grenades and bayonets which have characterized recent fighting along the Somme. London reports officially that in the end the Germans were beaten back.

An intimation that the Somme offensive may soon be abandoned for the winter is contained in a dispatch from the British front. A staff officer is quoted as saying that if the British wait until spring before making renewed efforts there will be nearly four times the present great quantity of artillery and corresponding stores of ammunition.

A notable victory for Russians in Galicia is indicated in the official announcement from Petrograd. It says that the city of Halicz, sixty miles southeast of Lemberg, is under Russian bombardment and in flames. The capture of railroad lines in this vicinity also is reported.

Since the opening of the new Russian drive the heaviest pressure has been directed against the Austro-German lines above and below Lemberg, and there has been constant fighting before Halicz. This city is on the trunk line railroad running southeast from Lemberg to Stanislaw and Kolomoia, and is also the southern terminus of another line. Its strategic importance is indicated further by the fact that it is on the Dniester at its junction with the Cnita Lipa.

Petrograd, Sept. 7.—(Via London).—The Russians are bombarding the Galician town of Halicz, about sixty miles southwest of Lemberg, says the Russian official report issued today. The town is in flames. The Russian statement adds that Russian troops have occupied the town.

FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR GUARD MEMBERS

Examination for Commission in U. S. Army Will Be Given on Oct. 16.

Lieut. Howard Miller, in command of the local recruiting office for the Indiana national guard, has received a letter from the department of war at Washington, D. C., which states that an examination will be given on October 16 for a commission in the United States regular army and that enlisted men in the guard will be eligible.

The department finds that each year there is a deficit in the number of men who can fill a commissioned office in the army. The commission which is offered is the second lieutenant. Any man, whether he is a private, corporal or sergeant, is eligible to take the examination. However, he must be a member of the national guard.

The second man to be accepted at the recruiting station was Lester Klingman, aged 22 years, 601 East Creighton avenue, of this city. He took the examination late Wednesday afternoon, and was accepted and given transportation to Fort Benjamin Harrison. He left for the fort today.

PENNSY TO SPEND VAST SUM TO ENTER DETROIT

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—Authorized announcement was made here today by the Pennsylvania railroad lines west of Pittsburg of their plan to enter Detroit, with an estimated expenditure of $40,000,000, to reach freight and passenger terminals there. The Pennsylvania line will be extended from Toledo to a point near the Detroit city limits, where connection will be made with the Pere Marquette railroad and that road's rails will be used to reach the Fort Street station.

HUGHES COMES ON SEPT. 25

Will Spend Three Days in Speaking Campaign in Indiana.

ALL THE LARGER CITIES ON LIST

Hert Announces Program for the Presidential Nominee.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, republican presidential nominee, will begin his speaking campaign in Indiana on September 25, according to the tentative itinerary announced today by Manager A. T. Hart of the campaign headquarters. He will spend three days in Indiana speaking in Indianapolis and all the larger cities. The exact itinerary for Indiana was not announced.

Before coming to Indiana, Mr. Hughes will spend three days in Illinois and a day in Wisconsin. He expects to return to New York on September 28.

ASSAILS ADAMSON LAW.

Hampton Beach, N. H., Sept. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, an address here, has referred to the Adamson law "not as an eight hour day law, but a wage law," and declared that failure of peaceful settlement of industrial disputes was but "another step from the abdication of government itself." His audience applauded loudly. He expressed his confidence in the American people, and said that he had no doubt that they would have won for our institutions in this country, the nominee said. "What have we won? We have won the right to free discussion; a free press, a democratic form of government, free assembly, free legislation, and an executive chosen by the people. We have left tyranny. We have left force. We have left force. They shall not come back if we can prevent it."

"We have recently seen what I regard as a very deplorable surrender of that principle. I am for the arbitration of industrial disputes. That is in the interest of labor. Labor cannot afford to surrender that principle. We have recently had, at the proposal of the executive an act passed by congress conferring in ignorance of the facts, confessedly in ignorance of what justice demands. It is not an eight hour day law. It is a wage law and nobody knew whether it was just or not.

"Now, I am for justice in everything, but I propose that in all we do we shall investigate first and legislate. Our methods in this country are of priceless value to us. It is only one step from peaceful settlement of such disputes to the denunciation of our courts and all the machinery of peaceful settlement, it is only another step to the abdication of the government itself."

ASSIGNED TO INFANTRY.

Walter C. Schlatter, 607 Riverside avenue, has enlisted for the United States army. He has enlisted for the infantry and will be sent to the Columbus barracks, Columbus, O. Capt. John J. Miller, United States army recruiting officer for this district, has been relieved and assigned to the Nineteenth infantry. Capt. J. E. Cusack, of the Eleventh cavalry, has been assigned by the war department for this district.

MAN ENTITLED TO SAME PRIVILEGES AS A MULE.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Shaving is not a labor, but a necessity and the state has no right to deny a man the privilege granted a mule, according to a brief filed in the state supreme court here by the attorneys of a Davenport barber arrested on complaint of the barbers' union for keeping his shop open on Sunday.

NEW HOSPITAL TO BE BUILT

$50,000 STRUCTURE AT COUNTY FARM

Sum of $65,000 is Also Provided for Bridge at State Street.

The county council has rescinded its action refusing the request of the county commissioners for an appropriation of $50,000 for a county tuberculosis hospital and Thursday appropriated the sum, together with $65,000 for the State street bridge.

The action appropriating $65,000 for a bridge at Lafayette street was rescinded because there were no approaches and action allowing $10,000 for the fourth street bridge was also rescinded.

Lever is Made. For the county hospital a levy of one and a half cents was made for maintenance and a half-cent levy for retiring bonds.

Work on the county hospital will begin in the spring, W. C. Schieler, county commissioner, said Thursday. Work on the State street bridge will start as soon as possible.

Causes Rejoicing. The action of the county council Thursday has caused general rejoicing among the members of the Anti-Tuberculosis society and others interested in the fight against the disease in this county. Since the establishment of the tuberculosis camp by the county much good has been accomplished and several permanent cures effected, notwithstanding the limited facilities. With a new hospital building, however, much more can be done.

Victory for Commissioners. The county commissioners have worked in complete harmony with the officials of the Anti-Tuberculosis society and have done everything within their power to promote this camp. It was upon their recommendation that an appropriation for the erection of the hospital was asked of the county council.

Objection was raised Wednesday by Councilman Hattersley to the appropriation on the ground that he believed a landscape architect should be secured to plan the grounds, that plans and figures should first be obtained and that much more time was needed to more thoroughly investigate the matter.

The intention of the young couple had been to continue his special school studies for a year or more at all of the marriage. As it is, however, Mr. Polhamus will continue in business with his father, begun this summer, instead of going to school. Further than that plans are not yet definite. Both young Mr. and Mrs. Polhamus are anxious to get married and the young couple have been planning to move to Cleveland very soon, and Mrs. Orrock sold her property here a few months since with that end in view, as she has a brother in Cleveland, who is one of the best known business men of that city. Young Mr. Polhamus is barely eighteen years of age and his bride is about sixteen.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR TRIP ACROSS COUNTRY

War Department Message to Be Carried by Auto from Ocean to Ocean.

"As far as we are able to go, we are ready for the big transcontinental run from Plymouth, Mass., to Seattle, Wash., carrying a message of the war department, and we fully expect the message to be delivered in 120 hours or less."

This announcement was made Thursday at the national headquarters of the Yellowstone Trail association, Aberdeen, South Dakota, by H. O. Cooley, general agent.

The leather wallet in which the message will be enclosed and the American flag and trail pennant to be carried, have been sent to Plymouth. The message has been written by the secretary of war and sent to Boston, to be carried in person to Plymouth by a representative of the war department, and at 12 o'clock noon on Monday, September 11, it will start on the long journey over the Yellowstone trail.

Charles L. Biederwolf, secretary of the Commercial club has been named relay manager for this territory.

Monday, Aug. 11, the message will be in New England. From seven in the evening until the dawn of Tuesday it will be crossing New York and Pennsylvania. Tuesday it will traverse Ohio and Indiana, and arrive at Chicago about midnight. Daylight of Wednesday will find it crossing Wisconsin and Wednesday evening it will dash across Minnesota. Thursday morning's dawn will find it half way across South Dakota, and evening at Miles City, Mont. By Friday morning it will have climbed the continental divide at Butte, and Friday evening will find it near Spokane, Wash., ready for the final dash over the Cascades and to Seattle, where it is due at 8:00 a. m. Saturday.

Sixty-four cars and drivers will be engaged. Every precaution against accident and delay is being taken. The message will be carefully receipted for at each general relay, and the Yellowstone Trail association is required to report daily to the war department of the progress of the auto and the message.

New Secretary to Report Next Month

Edwin W. Peirce, of Boston, recently employed to be general secretary of Fort Wayne's new Y. M. C. A., has had experience with the Detroit, St. Louis and Boston Young Men's Christian associations. He comes to Fort Wayne from Boston, beginning his duties about the middle of October. Mr. Peirce's first Y. M. C. A. secretaryship was at Keokuk, Iowa. He is active in all the various departments of Y. M. C. A. executive work.

YOUNG COUPLE TELL OF THEIR MARRIAGE

Miss Edith Orrock and Robert Polhamus United in Wedlock Sept. 1.

Miss Edith Bond Orrock, daughter of Mrs. Edith Orrock, and Mr. Robert Polhamus, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Polhamus, were married in Potoski, Mich., by the Rev. J. H. Slaybaugh, at the Park Memorial Baptist church, on September 1. Word of the marriage of the young couple reached this city Wednesday evening, but the parents considered the story improbable as each of the young people concerned was at their own homes Thursday morning, however, the young couple confessed, as word from Potoski confirmed the marriage there last Friday. Mrs. Orrock and her daughter and "Bob" Polhamus, as he is known, had been at Bay View for a few weeks on account of being away from their homes. Facing the prospect of a railroad strike, they came home on Saturday and Mrs. Orrock has been suffering with a serious return of the fever ever since.

The intention of the young couple had been to continue his special school studies for a year or more at all of the marriage. As it is, however, Mr. Polhamus will continue in business with his father, begun this summer, instead of going to school. Further than that plans are not yet definite. Both young Mr. and Mrs. Polhamus are anxious to get married and the young couple have been planning to move to Cleveland very soon, and Mrs. Orrock sold her property here a few months since with that end in view, as she has a brother in Cleveland, who is one of the best known business men of that city. Young Mr. Polhamus is barely eighteen years of age and his bride is about sixteen.

IMPOSTORS AT WORK GATHERING UP PAPER

Show Note Which States That Funds Are to Go to Open Air School.

Several persons have telephoned to the offices of the Anti-Tuberculosis league within the past week stating that impostors are at work collecting waste paper and rags which have been laid aside for the benefit of the open air school.

The men come to the residences and say they have come after their waste paper and then show a note which states that the funds realized are to go toward the school fund. Several times the collector for the Anti-Tuberculosis league has come to a house and the lady tells him that a man from the league was there just the day before and had gotten a note which said that the funds were for the benefit of the open air school.

Officials of the league know the parties who are exercising this means to collect the paper and state that if it is not stopped that other means will be taken. This same "stunt" was tried by an organization in Indianapolis last year when the funds were refused to give them their waste paper.

Residents of the city will know the collector for the Anti-Tuberculosis league by the double cross pin which he wears on his coat lapel and by the wagon which also bears the same emblem.

BIG PUNCH IS STRICKEN OUT

Conferees on Revenue Bill Eliminate Mail Retaliation Feature.

AMERICANS ABOARD MIGHT BE HARMED

Hitches Between House and Senate Bring Delay in Adjournment.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Conferees on the emergency revenue bill today struck out the Phelan amendment to empower the president to retaliate against citizens of belligerent nations which interfered with United States mails. The argument which prevailed in the conference was that it might work great hardships to Americans in foreign countries by counter-retaliation.

The conference also abandoned the Chamberlain amendment to prohibit admission of Pacific ocean salmon or halibut through a foreign country except in an American port. This, it was decided, might develop a commercial war with Canada and bring about retaliation against American Atlantic coast fisheries.

The conference committee had not reached final agreement when the house met, but they were reaching the stage of mutual concession in hope of getting an agreement some time today. The delay threatens to postpone adjournment until Saturday. Although there have been rumors of eleven-hour tangles that might carry the session into next week, administration leaders think that unlikely.

POLICY WASN'T WORTH THE RISK, HE ASSERTS

German Chancellor Defends Action in Abandoning Submarine Course.

London, Sept. 7.—According to definite information reaching Berlin, Switzerland, from Germany, says a dispatch to the Wireless Press, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German imperial chancellor, upon being questioned at the August meeting of federal council as to why he yielded to the demands of the United States regarding the unrestricted torpedoing of ships on the high seas, replied emphatically that the value of the submarine was exaggerated by the adherents of wholesale torpedoing.

The chancellor said that insistence on an unrestricted submarine warfare would cause war between Germany and the United States and that the results of unlimited torpedoing would not justify such a policy. Elaborating this point the chancellor is quoted as saying that Germany could not effectively blockade England nor cut off England's food supplies.

FORD SUES CHICAGO PAPER FOR MILLION

Auto Maker Charges That Tribune Called Him an Anarchist.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Suit for $1,000,000 was filed by Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, against the Chicago Tribune, in the United States district court here today.

Mr. Ford asks for personal damages as compensation for an editorial printed in the Tribune June 23, which it is charged called Ford an "anarchist."

FIGURES HAVE GROWN. Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—It was announced here today that Alfred Lucking, personal attorney for Henry Ford, the manufacturer, is in Chicago to file suit for $500,000 in Ford's name against the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Ford asks for personal damages as compensation for an editorial printed in the Tribune which it is charged, called Ford an "anarchist."

The editorial was printed more than two months ago. According to the announcement which came from Mr. Lucking's office the word "anarchist" was used in the headline of the editorial. The editorial itself, censured Mr. Ford's ideas and methods. It was learned that Ford has had the suit under contemplation for several weeks. The papers were not completed before Mr. Lucking's office was moved to Detroit last week.

There was a meeting of the Eighth ward young democrats Wednesday night at the Huntington meeting, they have notified democratic headquarters in Fort Wayne of their intention of holding the meeting. Many party workers from Fort Wayne will attend the meeting.

JUDGE SENDS CHECK TOWARD THE FUND

Judge R. K. Erwin, of the supreme bench, has forwarded a check for $10 to the committee in charge of receiving funds for dependents of soldiers who went to the border. This is the second donation coming from Judge Erwin.

W. N. Ballou, secretary of the committee handling the soldier fund, says that the second month's payment toward the fund is now due and that letters will have to be sent out unless more money is forthcoming.

STRIKE FAILS TO HIT HARD

Street Railway Break in New York Has Not Yet Tied Up the City.

SUBWAY AND L LINES CENTER OF TROUBLE

Figures on Number of Men Out Vary in Estimates from 2,000 to 9,000.

New York, Sept. 7.—A strike was inaugurated on the subway and elevated lines and several surface systems of the Interborough Rapid Transit company today, but up to noon the city appeared only mildly affected. Union leaders who demand abrogation by the company of the so-called "master and servant" contracts binding the employees not to ask wage increases for two years, claimed that 9,000 men had walked out, including 4,000 on the subway and elevated systems. Traction officials asserted that not more than 2,000 men had quit and with the aid of strikebreakers the company was maintaining normal schedules on subway and "L" lines. The "green car" system, operated by the New York City street car company, was chiefly affected apparently not more than 30 percent of these surface cars running.

Only in Manhattan and Bronx. Except in Manhattan and the Bronx boroughs no railway lines were affected. Meanwhile traction officials admitted the gravity of the situation is such that at any moment a crisis may arise. They were providing stocks of provisions for the strikebreakers, many of whom have come from other cities.

Harry Hilgemann is Principal Speaker at Meeting Wednesday Evening.

Harry Hilgemann, attorney, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the First Ward Young Men's Democratic league held Wednesday night at democratic headquarters. He spoke at length on the present administration and explained why for the first time in a generation the government at Washington had proven it was for the public.

There was an election of officers as follows: Byron Parrot, secretary, and Clifford Gardner, treasurer. A meeting of Perry and Eel River township democrats will be held in the Woodmen's hall at Huntington Saturday night. An organization will be formed. Guy A. Colerick, attorney, will speak. There is much enthusiasm over the Huntington meeting, they have notified democratic headquarters in Fort Wayne of their intention of holding the meeting. 15,000 TO BE MUSTERED OUT

Order Applies to Guardsmen Recently Ordered to Return from Border.

OTHERS TO REMAIN THERE FOR PRESENT

Fort Wayne Company Does Not Come Under New Release Provision.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The fifteen thousand guardsmen returned from the border by the recent order of the war department were today ordered mustered out of the federal service. The guardsmen remaining on the border stay there for the present.

The war department official announcement was made in the following statement:

"The secretary of war directs that all the organizations of the national guard in the federal service recently ordered from the border to their respective mobilization camps be mustered out of the federal service as soon as practical and returned to the normal status of national guard troops except in the case of the Fourteenth New York regiment, which is to be held in service at its mobilization camp pending the prevalence in that regiment of para-typoid. "As soon as it can be safely done this regiment also will be mustered out. Similar precaution should be taken with any other organization returning from the border suffering from typhoid fever or which is under suspicion of being infected. The troops affected are three regiments from New York, two from New Jersey, one from Maryland, two from Illinois, two from Missouri, one from California, one from Oregon, one from Washington and one from Louisiana. These units comprise in the aggregate about 15,000 national guardsmen.

The plan for the mustering out of the regiments will be executed under the various departmental commanders within whose jurisdiction these organizations are placed. In many instances, where there is no reason to hold them because of disease infection, the mustering out will be done immediately. It is expected that all the organizations except the Fourteenth New York will be mustered out as soon as the necessary routine is concluded. The Yale battery mobilized at Tobyhanna, Pa., was ordered to Natick, Conn., where it will be mustered out.

The regiments affected by the order are: Second, Fourteenth and Seventy-first New York infantry; First and Fourth New Jersey infantry, Fourth

PENSION INCREASE FOR WIDOWS PASSES

Senate Approves Bill for $20 a Month to Those Above 70 Years.

Washington, Sept. 7.—A bill giving to widows of officers or enlisted men who served in the civil or Mexican wars or the war of 1812, and who have reached the age of 70 years, a pension of $20 a month instead of $12 a month was passed today by the senate. It already has passed the house. Widows of civil war soldiers dropped because of marriage to another person are restored to the bill by the bill.

The brief debate on the bill did not disclose the additional cost to the government.

Shipping Bill Signed. President Wilson today signed the shipping bill. It authorizes government organization of a fleet of transport or corporations with capitalization of not more than $50,000,000 to buy or lease ships and put them in trade if they cannot be leased for operation to private capital.

Charles D. Mahaffie, of Portland, Ore., was nominated by President Wilson today as solicitor of the department of the interior.

WOMAN'S ATTORNEYS REPUDIATE HER TALE

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Attorneys for Mrs. Iva Barnes, held in connection with the death of her husband, James R. Barnes, Chicago agent of a New York firm who was shot down in Washington, park Tuesday night, today repudiated the woman's alleged confession to the police.

Department detectives made public admission, attributed to Mrs. Barnes, that she had killed her husband as the result of a quarrel following an attempt to reach an agreement with him.

ALL MOVE TO ASBURY PARK

White House Executive Offices to Be Transferred Tomorrow.

NEAR PRESIDENT ON HIS VACATION
Wilson's Campaign to Be Made from Front Porch at Shadow Lawn.

Washington, Sept. 7.—All arrangements were completed today for the transfer of the executive offices of the white house from Washington to Asbury Park, N. J., tomorrow. For the first time since Mr. Wilson became president, a complete staff of secretaries, clerks, telegraph operators and other attaches will accompany him on his vacation. For the last three summers he has spent short periods at Cornish, N. H., but then he took only his personal stenographer with him. Although President Wilson plans to spend most of his time at Shadow Lawn, the estate at Long Branch, N. J., he will go to Asbury Park as often as necessary to visit the executive offices and attend to public business. A suite of rooms has been engaged in a modern office building there and office furniture from the white house has been sent already.

The president will receive many of his political visitors at Shadow Lawn, and the broad porch from which he delivered his speech of acceptance is expected to be the scene of frequent receptions to delegations of democrats from different states. Because of Mr. Wilson's decision to make only a few political speeches away from Shadow Lawn, his campaign will be of the front porch variety.

President Wilson will have with him during his stay at Shadow Lawn, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Helen Woodrow Jones, his cousin, the Misses Lucy and Mary Smith of New Orleans, also cousins, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the white house physician, and Mrs. Grayson. Secretary Tumulty has a cottage at Asbury Park, near the executive offices. Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo, who have a cottage at Spring Lake, only a few miles away, will be frequent visitors.

Mr. Wilson plans to leave here tomorrow afternoon for Atlantic City, where he will speak tomorrow night before the convention of the National Women's Suffrage association. After spending the night in a hotel there he will go by motor to Shadow Lawn, to remain until Sept. 20, when he goes to St. Louis to speak to a convention of underwriters.

AUTO THIEVES ARE HELD FOR TOLEDO

Automobiles Sold at Grabill Belonged to Health Department.

Carl Hornback and Edward Schemenauer, both of Sandusky, Ohio, confessed auto bandits, are held under $10,000 bond, for further investigation of their case, in which they stole two Ford machines from the Toledo health department and later sold them at Grabill.

Their hearing was set for September 14 in police court, Thursday morning, by Attorney Charles Ryan, who acted as special judge in the absence of Judge Kerr. The young men will be returned to Toledo for final trial.

Louis Latker, clothier, 1004 Calhoun street, caused the arrest of the two men when he doubted the validity of a check for $75 which they presented as payment for two suits of clothes, Wednesday. Latker telephoned to Eli Conrad, farmer, at Grabill, about the checks and Conrad said the check was good but that he had dated the paper September 16, because he feared that there might be something wrong with the automobile which he had bought for that amount. The young men had erased the one and made the check read September 6.

Latker notified police. When Hornback and Schemenauer returned to the store for their suits, which were being altered, they were detained by officers. The young men seemed confused and were taken to the station.

Hornback made a confession at once when he was questioned in the office of Chief Lenz. He said they had taken the one automobile on Monday and had sold it on Tuesday to Conrad at Grabill. The other machine, which had been sold to Allen Hurst for $40 two days before, they had also taken from the streets of Toledo. Both cars belonged to the Toledo health department.

Both machines were brought to Fort Wayne by police from Grabill on Thursday morning. They will be held at the station until Toledo authorities come for them.

Hornback and Schemenauer said they had never stolen anything until two weeks ago when they decided that Ford cars were too easy to take and dispose of to leave standing along the city curbs.

SENATORS NEAR BLOWS IN ANGRY DISCUSSION
Corrupt Practice Bill Debate Approaches Stage of Fisticuffs.

Washington, Sept. 7.—"If the senator charges that this is a violation of the law he has swears for brains," was the exclamation hurled at Senator Curtis, of Kansas, republican, by Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, democrat, in a debate on the Owen corrupt practices act in the senate yesterday afternoon.

The remark by the Arizona senator followed the reading by Senator Curtis of a letter written by Ashurst to a constituent reciting his record as a basis of support. Curtis said he understood that 70,000 of them had been franked out by Ashurst in violation of the privilege.

Calling Senator Curtis the "Pharisee from Kansas" and brushing aside several charges, Senator Ashurst strode across the center aisle and shook his finger under Curtis' nose. Senator Smoot, seated just between the two, moved back in mock alarm as Ashurst approached. Senator Curtis smiled, but kept his seat.

A little later Mr. Ashurst turned on Senator Penrose, who said he had noticed a "copper lobby" around the capitol these members had been talking with the Arizona senator.

"If," said Mr. Ashurst, "the senator means to say that my vote has been influenced by a copper lobby or any other lobby he lies." Several senators objected to this language, and Senator Ashurst after explaining he had said "if" agreed to withdraw his remark.

Indianapolis, Sept. 7.—Vice President Thomas H. Marshall will make one speech in each of the thirteen districts of the state in his campaign for reelection, according to an announcement made at the democratic state headquarters today. The itinerary has not been completed, but it includes the arrangement for closing the campaign on Nov. 4, with a speech at Fort Wayne. Other speaking dates tentatively set for Mr. Marshall follow:

Mrs. Furman herself remained at school until 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the children she had taken in charge mysteriously disappeared from the room while she was

WEATHER MAN SHOWS EVERY TRICK OF ART

Hail and Rain Cause Damage in Many Sections of Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 7.—Scattered storms, with nearly every trick of the weather man's art, caused widespread damage in Indiana yesterday, rain and hail being dashed upon several counties by a wind which approached a cyclone. Indianapolis shared in a heavy downpour, but little wind accompanied the rain and no material damage was reported.

The greatest damage reported was in Jefferson and Blackfoot counties, where the loss from wrecked buildings and crop damage amounted to thousands of dollars. At Madison the wind was the highest in twenty-five years. Hail caused immense loss to corn and tobacco growers. In two hours the rainfall was 3.08 inches, resulting in washouts on the Pennsylvania railroad which delayed trains.

The loss in Blackfoot county from an early morning storm was estimated at $70,000. Crops suffered from the downpour, while the wind unroofed a factory and several buildings in Hartford City and put a new cluster lighting system there out of commission. Hail also accompanied the storm in that region.

Counties in the northern part of the state were among those reporting damage, considerable property loss resulting near Rochester. The storms seemed to originate in the north and swept to the Ohio river, but many counties did not receive a drop of water.

EXPECT A PRICE DROP AS JURY PROBE OPENS

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The federal investigation into the causes of the prevailing high prices for fruit and vegetables was expected to begin today with the organization of the federal grand jury which was impaneled yesterday. Simultaneously with the announcement of possible criminal proceedings as the result of the investigation came the announcement of commission merchants and retailers that they expected prices of many fruits and vegetables to return soon to the level of last summer. This, it was said today, would mean a drop of 30 per cent or more for some products.

WANTS CENSOR FOR MOVIES.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 7.—Mayor J. H. Mellett is quoted as favoring passage by the city council an ordinance creating a board of censors for the supervision of motion picture films in local theaters. He is said to have declared that some of the films being shown here regularly are demoralizing to children. It is understood that an ordinance measure will be introduced at the next meeting of the council providing for creation of the proposed board.

UNHURT IN FALL.

David Rahe, aged three years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rahe, 2338 Fairfield avenue, fell from the second story of the family home to the ground Wednesday afternoon. He cried a few minutes but then went out in the yard to play as usual. He is the namesake of his grandfather, Col. David N. Foster.

BELIEVES IT SUICIDE.

Aetna, Ind., Sept. 7.—That Mrs. Ida Kent, 30, wife of Hugo Kent, who was found dead in bed, having been shot through the heart, committed suicide is the opinion of Deputy Coroner Evans, of Lake county, who investigated. She is said to have been despondent over ill health.

Hand-to-hand fighting.

Germans Beaten Back in Attempt to Retake Leuze Wood.

London, Sept. 7.—A German attempt to regain possession of Leuze wood on the Somme front last night led to hand-to-hand fighting with the British. The war office announced today that the Germans were beaten back.

A Zurich dispatch says that on account of the violent opposition with which the Hungarian government is meeting in parliament, measures have been taken to end the session if the situation becomes more aggravated. Premier Tisza, the dispatch says, informed the leaders of the opposition parties that he had procured from Emperor Franz Joseph a decree providing that the session should be continued for a limited period.

Among the provisions whose retention it was thought would be recommended, are the license tax on corporation stock, increased duty on dye stuffs, higher income and inheritance taxes, tariff commission and the retaliatory steps against foreign ships.

GERMAN REVERSES AT VERDUN.

French Capture First Line Trenches Before Besieged City.

Paris, Sept. 7.—The French have captured the German first line trenches over a front of one mile on the Verdun front, the war office announced today.

The breach in the German line was effected on the front northeast of Verdun between the Vaux-Chapelle region and the town of Chenols. The French took 250 prisoners.

Turtukal, a fortified Rumanian town on the Danube about fifty miles south-east of Bucharest, has been evacuated by the Rumanians, according to the Russian official statement issued today.

The French aerial service took an active part in the recent actions on the Somme front says a French official statement. In air fights yesterday two German machines were brought down by French pilots and four other German aeroplanes were forced to descend in damaged condition.

UPHILL WORK NEARLY OVER?

British Say Capture of Ginchy Is Only Remaining Difficult Task.

With the British Army in France (Via London), Sept. 7.—(4:50 a. m.)—The British feel that their uphill work in this latest offensive is over with the exception of the taking of Ginchy. For over two months now their fight has been one to gain high ground over the broad commanding front. Guillemont, now in their possession, is the last of the old second line trenches and from the Somme to Thiepval the Germans now have been blasted out of their old positions.

"This is not the only point in our favor," said a British staff officer. "The Germans chose their ground when they built this line of fortifications which they considered by their own admission to be invulnerable. When the British first smashed through the Germans said that we were in a sack. So we were, in one sense. But we had to make an opening in that solid line of defense as a start in our plans. We knew the hardest work would come after the great attack, and this is so far accomplished that it is the Germans now who are in a sack."

The British and French success this week had an extraordinary effect on both armies. The ability of the French to make a second drive over the broad front, and the same sector as that of the big offensive of the first of July, brought conviction to the professional skeptics.

"Go over and see the French," said the British officer, "if you want to see an army with its head in the air."

Not even the weather can dampen the high spirits of both armies. The rain has been of the persistent pitflicker, chilly autumn style. Men who came out of the trenches plastered with chalky clay, who had been charging under a weight of sixty pounds equipment and then lying in miniature ponds made by shells, or on the wet earth digging and wallowing in the mud, say Guillemont is taken and that pays for their hardships.

Whether private in his shelter tent or general in his automobile, if you ask them that old question, "When do you think the war will be over?" you get no opinion of any possible conclusion short of next summer.

RUSSIANS OCCUPY PASS.

Bucharest, Sept. 6.—(Via London, Sept. 7.)—Rumanian troops have occupied Gyergy-Ditro-Oresova pass on the northern and northwest frontier of Rumania, says the official statement issued by the Rumanian war department today. Seven guns, a number of machine guns and important food stores were captured from the Austro-Hungarians.

German and Bulgarian forces having received numerous reinforcements, continue to attack with great violence the Rumanian fortress of Turtukal. The garrison of the fortress is ceaselessly counter attacking, the Rumanian statement says, and the losses on each side are said to have been serious.

OVER 20,000 RUMANIANS TAKEN.

Bulgarian and German Victory at Turtukal Was Notable One.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—More than 20,000 Rumanians were taken prisoner when Bulgarian and German troops captured the Rumanian fortress of Turtukal, says the official statement, issued today by the German headquarters.

The official statement says that in the capture of the Rumanian fortress more than 100 guns were taken.

Others Agreed To.

Other senate amendments clothing the president with retaliatory power against interferences with American commerce and embargoes on American goods to foreign nations were agreed to. They have the sanction of the state department, while the Phelan amendment did not.

The conference then approached the wine tax and duty tariff, which became the principal stumbling block. Majority Leader Kitchin moved to strike out the senate amendments increasing the duties on coal tar, medicinal derivatives and flavoring extracts. There was no fight, however, on the increases in the rates on intermediate and finished dyestuffs.

The conference eliminated the $300,000 continuing appropriation for the tariff commission. Three hundred thousand dollars was retained for 1917, but as the bill now stands the appropriation for future years was eliminated. The house managers yielded the demand for restoration of the tax on copper when the senate conferred, threw out the stamp tax. The income, inheritance and corporation tax rates as fixed in the senate bill were approved.

Some Tentative Action.

Tentatively the conferees had agreed to eliminate senate proposals for stamp taxes on various kinds of commercial papers and atamish and Pullman tickets, to abandon the house provision for tax on copper refiners and to increase from ten to twelve and a half per cent the net profit tax on munitions manufacturers in order to raise $5,000,000 additional, which the senate would have supplied. The continuing appropriation for the tariff commission was also said to have been struck out. Revision of the wine tax schedule and the Phelan amendment authorizing retaliatory action on foreign governments which discriminate against American trade, was being considered by the conferees, it was said.

Among the provisions whose retention it was thought would be recommended, are the license tax on corporation stock, increased duty on dye stuffs, higher income and inheritance taxes, tariff commission and the retaliatory steps against foreign ships.

No Protest Made.

Secretary Lansing said today no protest had yet been made by any foreign government against the trade reprisal provisions of the revenue bill, although the legislation has been discussed informally with the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice. The ambassador conferred again today with Mr. Lansing.

The American embassy at London cabled today that the British foreign office will give special consideration of difficulties where large amounts of tonnage are not involved in the negotiations of the department to secure elimination of certain Americans from the "blacklist" the statement was officially described here as not related to or the results of the retaliatory legislation. It relates to individual negotiations.

SOME ENGLISH COMMENT.

London, Sept. 7.—Commenting on the amendment to the revenue bill passed by the United States senate Tuesday night, empowering the president to retaliate against interference with American commerce, the Manchester Guardian says that although those who see in it no more than a flourish, having a special virtue on the eve of election, may be "right," nevertheless we should do well to note two things.

"First, these reprisals are directed against the allies and primarily against ourselves; second, they are popular in America."

The Guardian considers it is not generally realized here how strong a sentiment has been aroused throughout the United States by the blacklist policy and interference with mails and asks, "Is the foreign office convinced these practices of ours are so useful as to counterbalance the weakening of American sympathy they involve, or that they cannot be modified so as to meet American objections without seriously impairing any utilities they may have for ourselves?"

If the carmen can carry out their threats to halt surface as well as subway and elevated traffic, New York faces the biggest and most vital strike in its history. The geographical formation of Manhattan is long and narrow—the wide distribution of population of the greater city and the concentration of the business makes New York peculiarly susceptible to any interruption of street car traffic.

When the workers of the city started for their places of employment today the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employees which is conducting the strike, had been unable to tie up the subway and elevated lines, but had succeeded in crippling some of the most important surface lines.

With Aid of Strike-Breakers.

With the aid of nearly 3,000 strike-breakers and under police protection the Interborough Rapid Transit company was running its trains on subway and "L" almost on normal schedules. The strike of the Interborough employees has spread, however, to the carmen of the New York Railways company, which operates all but two of the important surface lines in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. Lines in Brooklyn in the system of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company are

"HANDSOMEST CANDIDATE" IS SNOWED UNDER BY CALIFORNIA VOTERS.

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 7.—The fatal "press agent beauty" of Willis Booth, citizen of Los Angeles, proved his undoing in a race with Governor Hiram Johnson for the republican United States senatorial nomination in California. Johnson has secured the nomination by an overwhelming majority. Early in the campaign Booth's press agent "pulled the prize bloomer" of western politics when he wrote the following description of his candidate, evidently intended to appeal to feminine voters: "He'll make one of the handsomest senators ever sent from California. He is tall and straight, of graceful and powerful build. His keen but friendly gray eyes enliven a set of fine features. He is clean-shaven, his hair is gray, and his skin is a healthy olive." Johnson used this "beauty talk" with effect in his campaign and it became the joke of the state. Men and women voters alike showed their discrimination to send a man to the United States senate, whose chief qualification, according to his own press agent, was his personal beauty. They voted for Johnson, who makes no claims to being an Apollo, but is a man of brains, masculine and progressive.

FORMER BLUFF-TON MAN BLEW OFF HIS HEAD

J. D. Brown, Well Known in Wells County, Commits Suicide in California.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 7.—In a letter received by Mrs. Ella Reasoner, of East Main street, from her son, Dr. Charles Reasoner, word of the death by suicidal shooting of J. D. Brown, a civil war veteran and former resident, is told. Brown shot his head off with a shot gun on the night of August 31, at his home in San Diego, Cal., the letter states.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—James D. Brown, the victim of the suicidal act, lived in Bluffton a good many years ago, and while a resident here he served as a member of the city council. He moved from this city to Hartford City.

AGED MINISTER DEAD.

Rev. Thomas E. Lancaster Passes Away at Son's Home in Logansport.

Columbia City, Sept. 7.—Rev. Thomas Edward Lancaster, father of Charles E. Lancaster, of this city, and Fred Lancaster, of Logansport, died at the latter's home Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, after an illness of several days' duration. He had attained the remarkable age of 90 years, 2 months and 23 days, and his passing was due to a general wearing out of a body that had experienced years of service and activity. Death came peacefully and he quietly passed into the eternal sleep.

HOARD CHILD IMPROVES.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—Kellis Hoard, of Washington township, spent Tuesday evening in Fort Wayne at the Lutheran hospital, where he visited his five-year-old niece, Alice Hoard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoard, of Washington township, who was taken Saturday to the hospital and operated upon by Drs. H. A. Duemling, of Fort Wayne, and O. W. Griser, of this city, for appendicitis. The appendix, though causing trouble only twenty-four hours, had in that time become ruptured, but the little girl rallied nicely from the operation and will be able to return home in the usual course of time.

RUNS NAIL IN FOOT.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—While climbing a fence Wednesday morning, Allie Baker, of Washington township, ran a large nail through his foot. The nail penetrated the foot in front of the ankle and protruded an inch through the bottom of it. He was unable to pull it out, so he had to walk to the house, a short distance, and by the use of wire pinchers removed it. It was very painful, and Dr. White was called. Every precaution is being taken to prevent blood poisoning, but he will have a very sore foot.

AGED COUPLE SEPARATE.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—The short-lived romance of Charles Farrar and Clara Shaughnessy, both past 75 years of age, came to an end in the circuit court when Judge S. E. Cook granted her petition for a divorce. Her maiden name was restored and she was granted $10 attorney fees and Farrar was ordered to pay the costs. The couple were married last spring and within a few days Mrs. Farrar fled a suit for divorce. The marriage attracted unusual attention because of the age and prominence of the parties.

PRUNING KNIFE USED.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—The county council met in the regular September session and went over the estimates of the county officials and commissioners of expenses for 1917 for the first time. The council had its pruning knife used and made cuts wherever it thought there was any chance that any part of this year's funds would be left over. The excuse for doing this was that the councilmen could come back as they did last July and make additional appropriations if it was necessary.

WILL VOTE SEPT. 29.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—The board of county commissioners of Whitley county, in session Wednesday, decided to call an election for Columbia township for voters outside the corporate limits of the city, to determine if the voters wished or not their desire a school, or road house, in their territory, and the date for the holding of said election was set for Friday, Sept. 29.

DEFEATED BY TWO VOTES.

Albion, Ind., Sept. 7.—At a special election held in Noble township for a three mile stretch of free gravel road, the voters defeated the proposition by two votes. Apparently people of Noble county are not much in favor of road roads, as several such improvements have been turned down in various townships during the summer.

LARGE BARN BURNS.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 7.—A large barn, belonging to Leonard Deist, living one mile north of Fort Wayne, was struck by lightning at eight-thirty o'clock last night and completely destroyed. The barn contained forty tons of hay, a wagon and harness, but the stock and horses were saved.

INJURIES ARE SERIOUS.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—Clayton Smith, of Union township, is reported seriously ill from injuries he suffered last week when his wagon upset. He was internally injured and serious complications have developed.

MAY LIFT QUARANTINE.

Columbia City, Sept. 7.—The two children of William Goudy, suspected of having infantile paralysis, show no further symptoms of the disease and their parents are hopeful that the quarantine may be lifted.

DOLPH MUST MAKE PAYMENTS OR QUIT

Judge Cook Sets September 16 as New Sale Date—Promoter Is Back $6,000.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—Judge S. E. Cook, in winding up the first day of the September term of court, issued an ultimatum to Fred A. Dolph, the Chicago promoter who purchased the short line last spring with a payment of $5,000 and a vast amount of optimism and promises, demanding that all payments be made by September 12, or the road will be sold. This is probably the most drastic action the judge has taken in regard to the C. B. & C. since it entered his care several years ago and people interested in the fate of the line are watching to see the results of the entry made yesterday.

BIG PARADE IS PLANNED.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 7.—That the mammoth school parade and pageant showing the history of Indiana from its early settlement to the present time to be staged on Friday of the DeKalb county centennial celebration in Auburn on October 4, 5 and 6, will be the greatest parade ever attempted in this section of Indiana is evident from the plans already made for this big feature of the celebration.

GOODRICH AT BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—Republican County Chairman H. L. Troutman announces that the first gun of the republican campaign in Wells county will be fired on Monday, September 11, when the Hon. James P. Goodrich, republican candidate for governor, will address the citizens of Bluffton and Wells county. The meeting will be held in the circuit court room at 7:30 p. m.

FOUR YOUTHS ARRESTED.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 7.—Four boys, each about 15 years of age, have been arrested by Officer Moon on charges of petit larceny and delinquency. The boys taken in custody were Fred Hoover, Walter Becraft, Dewey Richardson and Ross Black. It is probable that the alleged offenders will be arraigned in juvenile court in the near future.

NEW TEACHERS AT VAN WERT.

Van Wert, O., Sept. 7.—Three teachers were elected to fill vacancies on the teaching staff of the Van Wert public schools at the regular meeting of the board of education, O. E. Miller, of Ypsilanti, Mich., for commercial work; Hazel Stock, of Toledo, for German in the high school, and Adeline Shaffer, for the grades, were employed.

LAFAYETTE PLACE NEAR HIGH SCHOOL SITE

One of the advantages of Lafayette Place, the beautiful new addition on South Calhoun street, is the fact that it is but six blocks south of the site selected for the location of the new high school building. It is understood that this new school will not only include the present high school grades, but also most of the lower grades, and parents are realizing that this feature, together with the seven acres of playgrounds, parks, etc., which have been laid out in Lafayette Place, make the addition an ideal spot for the raising of children. The wholesome surroundings which the restrictions placed upon this addition are sure to bring about another point in this conviction. Additional information about Lafayette Place may be had from the Wildwood Sales company, 2000 N. Main street, Fort Wayne.

1. Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations.
 2. For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs.
 3. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.
 4. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand.
 5. One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.
 6. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.
 7. For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.
 8. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.
 9. For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.
 10. But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ.
 11. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.
 12. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.

Delay to the Hospital Plan

It is to be sincerely regretted that the county council failed to see its way clear to make the $50,000 appropriation sought for the tuberculosis hospital at this time, and by its refusal gave this beneficent work a set-back of at least one year. The appropriation has been urged by the county commissioners who had made provision for starting the work, and by the Anti-Tuberculosis league, whose members have devoted themselves assiduously to this work of unselfish humanitarianism. The fact that the appropriation was defeated by a majority of but one vote in the council shows that all but a scant majority of the board appreciated the need for early action and recognized that failure of or delay in intelligent and adequate action to conserve human health is costing life that might be saved and occasioning peril and expense to others that might be avoided.

Members of the council who opposed the providing of funds at this time offered the plea that undue haste was being urged, that a landscape architect should be secured to map out the grounds, and that further study and investigation are necessary before the county embarks in the hospital enterprise. Yet the matter has, we think, been gone into very thoroughly by those who are leading the organized campaign against the white plague here. They have sought information from many sources and observed the beneficent operation of similar institutions elsewhere, and there has never been the slightest danger that the prosecution of the enterprise here would not be attended by the most careful, competent and intelligent direction.

Allen county has made a fine start in the creation of the summer camp, Fort Recovery, but it is but half doing its work when it fails to provide the hospital as well. The hospital is of vastly more importance than a good many other improvements on which we spend money freely. Discouraging as the present defeat may be to the anti-tuberculosis workers, it is but temporary. The hospital will come later, and The Sentinel feels very sure the leaders in the effort are too devoted to the cause and too fine a crowd of good fighters to quit before they see the hospital as an accomplished triumph.

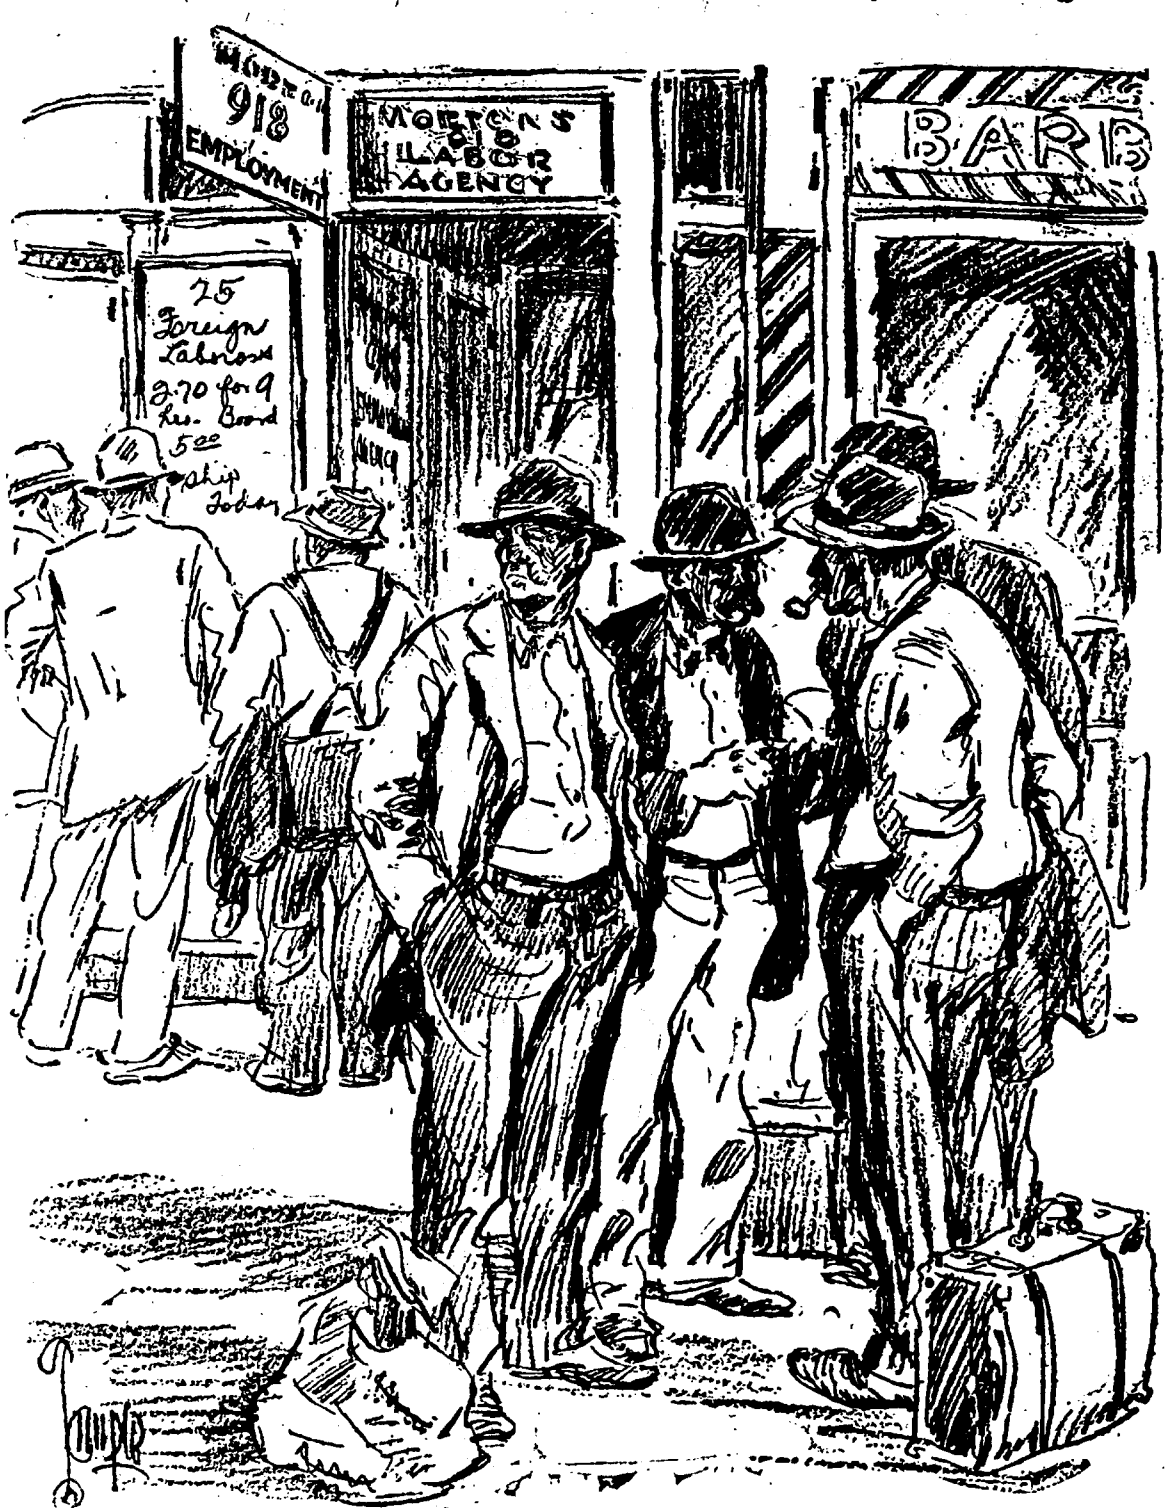

President Ripley, of the Santa Fe railroad, is quoted as having declared that his railway system will simply refuse to accept the provisions of the Adamson eight-hour law until forced to do so by the court of last resort. Doubtless President Ripley presumes he knows his business, and doubtless, too, he is sustained in his attitude by the competent legal advice which railroad are accustomed to seek. At the same time, there is something in it that smacks of flagrant defiance that does not comport with the accepted idea or law-abiding orderliness. It is one thing to contest in the courts the validity of a law which one believes to be unwarranted and unconstitutional. It is quite another to openly flout that law so long as it is law and before it has been overturned. If Mr. Ripley places any value at all upon public sentiment, or considers it at all desirable to secure and maintain a kindly popular feeling toward his big rail system, he is manifesting the fact in a very strange sort of manner.

Commenting on recent tariff legislation by congress, H. H. Gross, president of the Tariff Commission league, a national organization of business men, declares that "we got everything we desired in the tariff commission amendment to the revenue bill except a $10,000 salary for the members of the commission." The business men played a very large part in persuading congress to enact the tariff commission plan into law, and Mr. Gross' declaration is a pretty fine testimonial to the desire of congress to respond readily to the plainly-expressed sentiment of the people. It was true in the case of the tariff commission and no less true in many other instances. Having secured pretty much everything else for which they were contending, we think the business men will be disposed to forgive congress for its failure to put those salaries higher.

The Wilson Progressive league of Indiana, which has just been organized at Indianapolis among the membership of the former progressive party, makes a very impressive showing, for it includes active representatives in every section of the state. It gives new emphasis to the already self-evident fact that the attempt to stamper the rank and file of progressives into climbing on Mr. Hughes' bandwagon has been by no means so successful as its promoters had hoped. There is a very virile and very substantial element among Indiana progressives which simply will not swallow the decoction prescribed by the Chicago convention. They constitute a most hopeful force in a campaign in which thinking is going to play a vastly more important part than mere noise.

With the children forbidden to attend the circus on account of the infantile paralysis quarantine, some of their elders just have been sorely pressed to find a suitable excuse for their own presence there—but they were able to accomplish it, all right.

BETTER SCHOOL EQUIPMENT.

Editor Sentinel:—On Thursday, Aug. 31, there appeared an editorial entitled "Hygiene Rules for the School," stating that every teacher in the public schools at Indianapolis should undergo a physical examination for tuberculosis and other transmissible diseases; also, that school authorities everywhere in the past few years have been giving and are still giving attention to matters of hygiene that were unworthy of even a few years ago. Also, they have insisted on better light, adequate ventilation and absolute cleanliness, which in my opinion is something every parent ought to read. Also editors of farm papers that contain advice on "Keeping Boys on the Farm."

in regard to his health and comfort, saying nothing of the city school being a "Place of Beauty." I have three boys attending school in a building that was built before I was born, and has not been changed in one respect. It is unsanitary, unhealthy, unventilated and is never warm in cold weather. The children are compelled to huddle around the stove at all times. My boys can readily see that the comfort of the live stock at home is better looked after than theirs at school. Why has the city boy a right to have a better school than the country boy? Isn't there any one to look after the conditions of the country school?

That the authorities are giving their attention everywhere, puts Arcola, Ind., off the map. The law compels my children and the teacher to be there five days in the week during school months, to endure these unhealthy and unsightly conditions. I personally know that conditions at that school, twenty-five years ago, exist today, and no advancement has been made for the comfort of the child. We have a $10,000 highway leading to this $10 school house; a school house that wouldn't make a comfortable barn. Is this ignorance or is it hind sight? It is surely encouraging to see that the state is starting an optional life knowing that they are twenty-five years behind the times. I know my statements are the sentiments of the community. North Dakota Farmers Organize Political Party; Have Own Candidate for Governor

Death to Grain Gamblers is Slogan of New Force in the Politics of the North-west Country.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 7.—The farmers of North Dakota are in revolt!

They have formed the Farmers' Non-Partisan League and lambasted the old machine with such wallops the old line gang has about given up its opposition to the progressive "notions" of the farmers.

Among these "notions," or, as the farmers term them—"parts of our program"—are:

- State owned terminal elevators.
- State hail insurance department.
- Exemption of improvements on agricultural land from taxation.
- Non-partisan primaries.
- State owned and operated packing and cold storage plants.
- State system of rural credits for short term loans to farmers so they may have money to sow and harvest their crops; and loans for landless farmers.

About 85 per cent of North Dakota's population live on farms. Up to now the other 15 per cent did the law-making and ruling. Among this 15 per cent were leaders of the old machine, owned by the railroads of the north-west and the Minneapolis chamber of commerce.

Laws were enacted or killed off to suit the railroads, the grain gamblers and the Minneapolis flour trust.

Spring wheat, best for flour milling, is all marketed under terms and conditions laid down by the Minneapolis grain ring.

Farmers are paid low prices for wheat which Minneapolis grain men pronounce low grade. This same wheat is put into the grain men's elevators, mixed and doctored and sold to flour mills as No. 1 wheat.

The difference is several cents profit for the elevator on each bushel of low grade wheat raised to high grade. It has been conservatively estimated that the grain fixers this year will reap a harvest of $12,000,000 to $20,000,000.

In other words the public this year will pay that much more for its bread than it would have to pay if the terminal elevator owners sold wheat at the same grade they buy it.

North Dakota farmers got together, decided to get a state-owned terminal elevator and be independent of the grain fixers.

They twice voted for state elevators and the republican legislatures twice turned them down.

The organization was called, Farmers' Non-Partisan League. Only actual tillers of soil were admitted. An alliance was affected with organized labor in the towns and cities.

Farmers made it clear to the city laborer and his wife that prosperity on the farm spells prosperity for the whole country; that the doing away with grain fixers and doctored and gamblers meant lower prices to the consumer and higher prices for the producer.

The Non-Partisan League had 40,000 North Dakota farmers in its fold within a year and a half. In the June primaries they nominated every candidate they endorsed.

They chose for governor Lynn J. Frazier, a farmer who had never been a candidate for any office and who at the time of the convention was hard at work on his land.

Frazier made a great campaign and defeated his old guard rival for the top place on the republican ticket.

Then he started out to campaign for the Nov. 7 election. The campaign is the nearest approach to a pure non-partisan one any state has ever seen. Republican and democratic candidates endorsed by the farmers' organization get up and ask their hearers to vote for the whole ticket, disregarding all party ties.

A careful poll of the state shows the farmers' candidates far in the lead. The old guard is putting in its dying efforts to save the state supreme court.

ilous precedent" in an editorial in the current issue. He declares that the best interests of labor will not result from the workings of the law and adds that as it stands its effect is:

"Ten hours pay for eight hours work with a commission to note and report the effect thereof."

Mr. Hanly declares in the editorial that congress "yielded convention to fear," while "biogedged into action." He says he believes the brotherhood leaders made a mistake in refusing to accept arbitration.

Mrs. F. E. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: "I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. Dreyer Drug Co.—Advertisement.

SANTA FE ROAD WILL DEFY NEW 8-HOUR LAW

Doesn't Intend to Comply Until Ordered to Do So by Supreme Court.

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 7.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway, said in a formal statement last night that the Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson eight-hour law, recently enacted by congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered to do so by the United States supreme court.

President Ripley declared that the so-called eight-hour law was nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages to the men who receive the most money in the railway service. Mr. Ripley's statement follows:

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four labor leaders, enacted a so-called eight-hour law, which is nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of the best paid men in railway service. It is only fair to the public and to our employees to say that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company does not intend to comply with the law, until ordered to do so by the court of last resort."

WESTERN WOMEN DON'T MIND WHO SEES THEM WEAR COMFY OVERALLS.

Miss Eleanor Cather and Mrs. Lillian R. Thomas, holding wheelbarrow, two Seattle women, who wear overalls and defend them as proper attire for their sex.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 7.—The fashion makers are in a blue funk. Overalls for women threaten to put their business on the blink.

Where one daring woman a year ago secretly donned bifurcated garments to lighten housework, hundreds are wearing them this fall, and the innovation is spreading like an infection.

In Seattle many women are even doing their garden work in 'em without trying to hide from the passing public behind the pieplant or a rose bush. They wear them to the corner grocery.

And now that they're invading the streets with the audacious though perfectly modest denim trousers, police are wondering if that hallowed old privilege of arresting women "for masquerading in men's attire" hasn't gone forever into the discard.

"I think the day of singling a woman who wears bifurcated garments out for criticism, slander and even arrest has gone entirely, at least in the west. Many of my friends wear them, and we are through with skirts except for the most conventional wear."

Department stores here have sold hundreds of overalls to women customers this summer, and are ordering a much larger shipment.

Miss Eleanor Cather, another fair advocate of overalls for her sex, is just as outspoken in their defense.

"The most sensible working clothes ever adopted," she contended, without the slightest embarrassment.

"Overalls for women are still new, perhaps, but I wish they would become the conventional attire for business women as well as housekeepers. Indeed, I believe they will be."

Pesky Bed Bugs

A MILLION BED BUGS. Just think, a 50c package of the new golden chem- ical P. D. Q. (Pesky Devil's Quiescent) is enough to make a quart and enough to kill a million bed bugs, no matter how large they may be, where they came from, their age, color or sex, and at the same time leaves a coating on your children's to have them. All you need is a little P. D. Q. chemical to get rid of any bed-class drug store. A 50c package makes a quart of P. D. Q. and will kill a million bed bugs.

AT THE PALACE

Gus Edwards, Vaudeville Impresario, Presents Act at Palace.

Gus Edwards, who has achieved fame and incidentally no mean fortune through knowing exactly what the public wants, is presenting one of his delightful acts as a headline attraction on the week-end bill at the New Palace opening this afternoon. Mr. Edwards has an eye for feminine beauty and grace that has found its expression in some of the daintiest boy and girl acts in vaudeville and his School Boys and Girls, with nine people, is not the least of his big successes. The act fairly brims over with catchy music and agile dancing.

Once every generation vaudeville produces at sketch that through the merit of its lines and the skill of its producing artists lives and lives. Such an act is "Sweetheart," the charming love story in which Edwin and Jane Connelly have been appearing with splendid success season after season. The sketch will be welcomed back in Fort Wayne by the discerning amusement seekers, for to see these people again is like picking up a favorite book for rereading.

The Kill-Care couple is the sobriquet that has been given John and Winnie Hennings, who are presenting their medley of fun, song and dance on this bill.
Bert Kenny and Nobody in their famous hit, "Nobody's With Me," a play on a nut comedian, and an excellent foil, Lewis and White, the singing comediennes, and Lulu and Anselm, Hawaiian entertainers, complete this bill.

by a gathering of her most intimate friends this afternoon for whom Miss Ethel Doud, assisted by her sister, Mrs.
Raymond Ellis, of Wilmington, Del., were hostesses at the Country club. The company homed towels for Miss Car-for the occasion.

a picnic supper of pretty appointment and a miscellaneous shower of gifts at Robison park last evening in honor of Miss Myrtle Sackmann, a bride-elect carried out in the color scheme of pink and white, the place being marked with a corsage of pink roses. Tiny silver slippers, filled with rice, were show-baskets filled with nuts were favors for the guests.

informally this afternoon in compliment to her guests, Misses Marnie and most delightful social affairs of the season. Over forty ladies took part

Chicago Police Seek Insane Woman Who Makes Threats by Mail.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Do you know anything Chicago woman named "Elisey," who has a 6-month-old baby boy, who is somewhat unbalanced, and who writes a "much like a capital A."

On Monday night near midnight she dropped letters into the mail boxes addressed to the police department, to several newspaper publishers, and to five young women who are either brides-elect or newly married. She threatened to kill the publishers and the young women.

Monday was Labor day. On holidays all mail is received at the federal building postoffice. It is given no other station cancellation stamp. So the letters could not be traced.

Victims of Letter.
The poisoned letter writer sent her threats to the following young women:
Miss Edna Gering, 450 Oakdale avenue, who is to be married on Oct. 4, to Edward Leicht, jr.

Mrs. L. W. Tuttle, 4408 West End avenue, recently married.
Miss M. Brown, 5438 Ellis avenue.
Miss Lucy Arrick, 1307 Ritchie place, who engaged to marry the father of Walker of Boston, recently was announced.

Mrs. H. B. Fuller, 798 Lincoln avenue,
St. Paul, Minn., who formerly was Miss Emma Grace Dickerson, of Chicago.

Each of the young women was accused by the letter writer of having married or of planning to marry the father of her 6-month-old boy. "Elisey" said she had instructions from the angels to kill each of them and also certain publishers. She said she had bought a gun and revolver and was cleaning them preparatory to shooting her victims.

Go Into Hiding.
The letters proved terrifying to the brides and brides-elect, and yesterday they went into hiding to avoid being the targets of the insane woman's weapons. Policemen on the beats in the neighborhoods of the victims' homes were ordered to keep a close lookout for any suspicious person.

"It is almost self-evident," said First Deputy Superintendent of Police Schuettler, "that the woman is insane and is trying to avenge herself for her mistreatment by some lover by scaring other young women. It isn't the first case of the kind we have had."

All the letters were written on a cheap quality of ruled paper by the same hand, and their wording usually showed mental irresponsibility.

"I'm just terror stricken," said Mrs.
Tuttle. "If this woman really is insane, she may carry out her threats. I have left our new home and am staying with my mother-in-law for the present."

Miss Arrick was sent to a hiding place by her father.

TWILIGHT SLEEP WOMAN'S THEME

Mrs. Robert A. Liggett, of 'St.
Paul, Gives Remarkable Talks at Majestic Theatre.

No woman who reads newspapers is unfamiliar with the term "twilight sleep," but not many women are well enough posted upon the subject to be able to talk intelligently about this wonderfully interesting matter concerning the birth of children. So that the coming of a woman who can tell something about it that every woman wants to know, in the person of Mrs.
Robert A. Liggett, of Minneapolis, to the Majestic theatre for four days this week, is attracting many women to hear her lecture and see the illustration of the subject in stereoscopic slides. Mrs. Liggett is a very interesting woman and her talks are couched in simple words that require no medical knowledge to understand. Moreover, Mrs. Liggett is glad to be asked questions and is more than willing to answer them. She has the ability to recite verses or to tell a story in a most appealing manner and what she does in that line is of a character that is inspiring to a woman's love for children, whether she has any of her own or not. It was with some astonishment that women at the lecture on Wednesday afternoon and evening heard Mrs.
Liggett say that many women oppose the use of "twilight sleep" believing that if it were not their duty to suffer at child birth no suffering would be thems to endure. The fact that there is no degree of regularity in such suffering has no weight with such an argument and Mrs. Liggett presents no opposition to such views. Her mission is to tell how suffering can be avoided, how women can rise from their confinement strong and well in a few days, how much safer it is for the babies, and similar facts that the medical world is acknowledging since the arrival of this temporary sense destroying drug, scopalamin. Mrs. Liggett refers her audience to the May number, 1915, of the American Journal of Obstetrics for much that is extensive and valuable on this subject. On Friday evening there will be a lecture for men, but others of the course are for women, tonight, tomorrow and Saturday, two lectures each day. Many women heard Mrs. Liggett yesterday.
Indeed, to assume an indifference about the subject, or to look upon the opportunity to know more about it, is not to the credit of any woman, be she a grandmother, a mother, young wife or even a girl approaching married life.
The duty of women is to bear children if she can, but to have the consequent suffering reduced to as much of a minimum as possible, while not a religious duty, perhaps, is certainly a duty she owes herself, her husband and her children.

BE YOUR OWN FOOD EXPERT

IF YOU have any doubts about the purity of the food which comes in your back door paste up in your kitchen this list of tests which you can use on the staples of your diet.

Eggs are perhaps one of the greatest risks which the housekeeper buys. There are electric egg testers now which the up-to-date housewife may use, but if she has no electricity in her house let her candle test the eggs in the old-fashioned way. Take the eggs into a dark room where only a dim light is burning. Hold each egg between fore finger and thumb in front of the candle, letting the light shine thru. If the egg appears clear and translucent with an air spot at each end, it is fresh. But if it appears opaque or shows dark spots it is not strictly fresh and the fact should be mentioned to the grocer boy. Eggs can also be tested by putting them in water.
Those that float are the bad ones.

Grapefruit can usually be guessed by weight. The heavier the fruit the juicier it will prove. Cantaloupes can often be selected by their smell. The best flavored usually have a rich sweet odor.

To test butter, heat a little in a spoon.
Good butter boils quickly after it has melted but also or bad butter will sputter and bubble.

You can often detect adulterants in coffee by merely examining the beans. Real coffee beans are dull, while colored adulterants like split peas are often brightly polished. Coffee because it contains a great deal of oil will float on water, while adulterants because of a lack of oil will sink. If the water is clear, your trial beans have been soaked, turns brown, it is a sign that chicory is present. Real coffee will not color cold water.

Starch is sometimes used to adulterate cocoa. This is easily detected by putting some cocoa in a cup and adding boiling water. If starch is present the mixture will show a marked thickening. Grittiness in cocoa is due to ground cocoa shells with which some brands are mixed.

If you fear copper in your canned vegetables, which is sometimes absorbed from the can and is sometimes added to give the vegetables a bright green color, try them by putting a few in a glass in which you have mixed equal quantities of ammonia and water. Copper will turn the ammonia blue.

THE VOGUE OF PLEATS
THE greatest charm of the serge frocks offered for fall is their youthfulness of line. This is due to the fact that they fit loosely and are, as a rule, made with a fairly long waist line.

Most artistic is the model shown. It is made of dark blue serge, but can be easily duplicated in one's most becoming shade. The blouse is cut with a wide opening, and this in turn is fitted with a shallow vest of flesh-colored Georgette crepe. To the bottom of the blouse is attached a very wide girle.

Everywhere there are signs that pleats will play an important part in the new fall styles. In this instance they are neatly laid on each side of a panel, both or suede cloth or kitten's ear broadcloth, can be managed in the home sewing room and conforms to the loose lines of the average fall coat.

The one sketched has several noteworthy features. It shows the cape cleverly attached to the coat with a diagonal side fastening. The coat itself, which is cut with a semitight yoke, echoes the same diagonal line. There are really two waist lines, one short one formed by the very deep yoke and the longer one formed by the skirted skirt portions, which stand out to form sagging pockets. The coat may be lined or not, and in this case the pocket lining should match. A bright striped or flowered silk may, however, be used to line pockets and cape and standing collar. This is too graceful a suggestion to discard. Clip it. If you can't use it yourself some one else may.

SOME ODD COLOR COMBI-NATIONS
A FALL dress just displayed brings out the fact that you may look for some unusual color combinations in autumn fashion displays. This particular frock was made of tobacco-brown Georgette crepe trimmed with taffeta the same color. But around the bottom of the skirt was a cut-out design of Bordeaux broadcloth, stitched to the crepe. A turned back hem of the taffeta was lined with a satin to match the red broadcloth.

Another frock showing something similar in color effects is made of brown Georgette crepe and trimmed with a taffeta in a regular red autumn leaf coloring between a brown and a red.

A blue serge trimmed with pink or coral is something of a departure from accepted modes. One blue serge frock has no reserving touch of white at all, merely vest and cuff trimming of coral Georgette crepe.

Gray is another substitute for white at neck and wrists. Blue serge uses a large amount of gray trimming, and one chiffon blouse of raspberry pink has a vest and collar of gray.

YOUR CHILDREN
IN A great many respects it is a blessing that women are tender-hearted; but in many others it is rather a handicap, especially when it comes to training children. This does not mean that children should be ruled with a rod of iron, but many of you know that selfish men and women are the outcome of wrong childhood training on the part of their parents.

The child who is allowed to sit at the table and sulky because a certain thing or she likes is not served will develop into the most disagreeable character one could imagine. The thing to do with the sulking child is to insist upon its partaking of the food served, it being understood that palatable and suitable food for the child is included in the menu.

If the child continues to sulky he should be sent to his room until he can meet his family with a cheerful face and a happy frame of mind.

All children should be trained to be tidy. As soon as a youngster is able to understand words, teach him to hang up its clothes, including for it a closethree or low-set hooks in the closet. This will take time, but the effort will more than repay you in after years.

Too many parents in an effort to train their children in the way they should go neglect them. Above all things overcome this habit. Nagging will make any child unhappy and will profit him nothing.

ANSWERS TO CORRE-SPONDENTS
I would like to have your advice in regard to my living room and dining room. The living room I want to have a gray blue with cream woodwork. I would like to have in the room a dark gray rug with a cream border. The dining room I would like to have cream and would like to have a light green drapes. In it I would use mahogany furniture.
Could you give me some advice on this?
What kind of rug and china will I get?
I can close the door between the living room and the dining room. I will hang up a putting gray paper for the dining room.
C. C. C.

Since the dining room opens into the living room, it would be advisable to have them papered alike. The old rose woodwork matching. Reverse your idea the living room, and in the dining room have hangings introducing the room select a rug including blue, black, and ecru colors. Choose blue-and-white china.

Only Dog Remains Loyal to Man Held for "Human Hangman's-Noose" Murder!

Family Pet Makes Daily Visits to Jail Where Master, Deserted by Friends, Awaits Trial on Charge He Killed Wife.

BY B. J. O'DONNELL.

Marlinton, W. Va., Sept. 6.—Jack, being just an ordinary hound dog, doesn't know all the facts in the "human hangman's noose" murder case, but he does know his master, Dr. Oliver A. Howard, is in trouble and the body of his mistress, Mrs. Howard, was carried away in a black box covered with flowers children gathered in the mountains.

Prior to the day his mistress was found dead, her neck broken by what physicians call the hangman knot grip, and Dr. Howard was arrested and charged with murder, Jack was the happiest dog in the Allegheny mountains.

Today he is the saddest. Ever yesterday, just before the sun sinks behind the mountain range, he trots up the long road to Pocahontas jail where, in dog language, he tries to tell his master he is being loyal.

Jack seems to understand that his master's old friends deserted him after he was arrested in connection with this "Jiu Jitsu murder" alleged to have occurred after Mrs. Howard returned from a suffrage meeting which the doctor is said to have forbidden her to attend. Before the body of his mistress was taken to her old home at Pinecastle, Va., for burial, Jack's life was different. One day he would accompany his mistress, called the "little mother of Marlinton," up to the homes on the mountainside where he played with other dogs while the "little mother" cheered the sick or sat with other mothers who were expecting newcomers into the world.

The next he would trot contentedly behind the masters buggy when the doctor went on calls.

When Summers Sharp, prosecuting attorney, went to the Howard home the day after the funeral he found Jack huddled in the kitchen. Jack refused to eat. He seemed to know clouds hung heavy over his home.

Dr. Howard will be placed on trial in

MRS. OLIVER HOWARD, VICTIM IN "JIU JITSU MURDER," AND DR. HOWARD, HELD ON MURDER CHARGE.

November. Prosecuting Attorney Sharp says he will call witnesses who will testify that Dr. Howard boasted he could "break one's neck in a twinkling" and demonstrated a Jiu Jitsu hold which consisted of placing the thumb of the right hand over the bridge of the nose and the fingers under the left jaw bone and jerking the head.

The twist in the "hangman knot grip" described by surgeons has the same effect as a hangman's knot used when a person is executed, breaking the neck and causing immediate death.

Dr. Howard proclaims innocence and

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 7.—Substantial recovery from yesterday's late heaviness were registered by important stocks at today's opening. United States Steel's first offering was a block of 8,600 shares at an extreme gain of half a point, but Marine preferred, Reading, Crucible and Lackawanna Steels, Beet Sugar and Mexican Petroleum were higher by one to two points.

American Can, American Car, Colorado Fuel, Republic Steel, General Electric and Coppers also rose material fractions. There were sharp reactions before the end of the first half hour. Marines and Kelly-Springfield being subjected to marked pressure, while Reading rose almost three points over yesterday's close. Liquidation of bull accounts occurred in the first hour, when the selling of Marines, Kelly-Springfield and other specialties caused general reactions. There was one notable exception, however, Reading running counter to the entire list on its steady rise to 100 1/2, the highest quotation in months. Reading's advance exercised a reassuring effect elsewhere, especially in rails, which assumed leadership of the market. Union Pacific, the coalers and the more prominent trunk lines were one to two points higher. A feverish undertone prevailed at noon. Bonds were steady, except for weakness in Rock Island debentures.

Saloniki, Sept. 7.—Col. Christodoulos with the troops of the Greek garrison at Seres, forty-five miles northeast of Saloniki, has succeeded in making his way to the seaport of Kavala on the Aegean sea, where he is reported to have seized two forts despite the opposition of the Bulgarian troops which had occupied them.

It was reported from Greek sources at Saloniki last week that the entire force of about 3,000 men under Col. Christodoulos, which had left Seres to resist the Bulgarian invasion of Macedonia, had been captured by Bulgarians.

hold the key to our political emancipation. Compel this army of lawmakers to see woman suffrage, to think woman suffrage, to talk woman suffrage every minute of every day until they heed our plea.

"All this is mere preparedness for the final drive to victory. The next question is: What shall be our aims? To my mind, the insistence of the enfranchisement of the women of our land by federal amendment, is the only self-respecting course to pursue."

In explaining her reasons for this stand, Mrs. Catt reviewed the fight for suffrage in many states and the obstacles it had met from the liquor interests, and charged there had been widespread resort to illegal practices to defeat suffrage, whereas in a majority of the states of the union—in 25 of them—there was no provision made by law for any form of contest or recount on a referendum. "Political corruptors may, in these states, bribe voters, colonize voters, and repeat them to their hearts content and redress of any kind is practically impossible."

"In my judgment," she concluded, "the women of this land, not only have the right to sit on the steps of congress until it acts but it is their self-respecting duty to insist upon their enfranchisement by that route."

POLICE ON STAND IN $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Witnesses Testify That Jamison Resembled One of Rurode Robbers.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—Testimony will be completed in the $10,000 damage suit of Emory Jamison, of Winchester, against Fort Wayne Chief of Police Charles Lenz, Detective Sergeants Charles Spillner, Peter Junk and William Pappert, Police Captain Richard Kelly and Charles Rurode, of the Rurode Dry Goods company. The trial has been in progress two days before Judge Eichorn and a jury in the Wells county circuit court.

Police Chief Lenz occupied the witness stand most of the afternoon Thursday. He was called upon to relate the entire story of the looting of the Rurode Dry Goods store, two years ago, and the arrest and treatment of Jamison, his brother and Walter Howell, who were taken as suspects in connection with the safe blowing.

W. C. Karns, night watchman at the Rurode store, who was bucked and gagged while three men blew the store safe and took $70 in money, is considered the star witness for the defense. He offered his testimony Thursday morning.

By way of clothing and general appearance Jamison tallied with one of the men who committed the robbery, Karns said. Both Jamison and the man who helped tie up Karns wore dark clothing and dark slouch hats. The defense tried to show that the resemblance was close enough to warrant arrest of Jamison.

Acted Strangely. Chief of Police Lenz told of strange actions of Jamison and the other two men before they left the city on the night of the robbery. They told the Washab baggage man to carry their grips with care, according to word Lenz said he received. He said the three men were treated well while in Fort Wayne and released as soon as their innocence was proven.

Prosecution rested at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning. All testimony was furnished by the three glassblowers, who told of indignities heaped upon them by the arrest and false imprisonment. Jamison said his health had been impaired and his name sullied because of the unwarranted treatment. He was taken from the boat on which he was traveling to take a job in Wellsburg, Canada, and was thrown into prison in Detroit. There he was confined in a germ laden cell with six drunks. His picture was taken and he would be on file forever in the criminal records, he said.

Detectives Sergeants Pappert and Spillner mistreated him when he was brought back to Fort Wayne, Jamison testified. The car was stuffy and Jamison and his companions were not allowed to remove their hats or coats while the officers took their ease. Jamison told he was handcuffed and his ankles chained. He was subject to a battery of cameras when he reached Fort Wayne. He had to ride in the patrol wagon. His health was impaired, he said.

Lost His Job. The criminal action of his false arrest forced him to take nine months getting papers from William J. Bryan, state secretary of state, and Congressman John A. M. Adair before he could enter Canada. Then his job was gone. He has lost money ever since, he said. He has a wife and child to support.

Stephen Callahan, deputy prosecutor at the time of the arrest; Judge W. H. Kerr, Deputy Clerk Swartz and Police Captain Kelly were called to the stand late Thursday. It is thought that court may take on adjournment of two days, while added cases are assigned, before appeals of the attorneys are made to the jury. Charles Loy, of near Marion, and Sturge and Stine, of Elkhart, represent the plaintiff, and Barrett, Morris and Hoffman, Colerick and Hogan and Simmons and Ailey appear for the defendants.

The pleas before the jury are expected to be among the most eloquent in the late history of the Wells county bar.

HE FORESEES VICTORY IN STATE AND NATION

Senator Pomerene Confident in Address to Ohio Democrats.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 7.—victory for the party in the state and in the nation was predicted before the Ohio state democratic convention here today by Senator Alton Pomerene, who declared there was contentment in the land everywhere except among republican politicians.

"If one-half of the reports which I have heard in Washington within the last two months be true," said the senator, "victory in Ohio and in the nation is assured. The standard-bearer of the republican party has been conducting the trans-continental tour. It has created little or no enthusiasm among republicans. It has filled the hearts of the democrats with joy. The people will not change the realities of Wilson for the prophecies of Hughes. They will not change the constructive program of democracy, but the carping criticisms of republicans. In the light of the great accomplishments of the past three and a half years the voters will not displace the presiding genius under whose guidance this work has been done, for one who indulges in criticisms of details and offers little or nothing affirmative or constructive save and except a return to the discarded protective tariff theory of the past."

There were various garments, including a complete outfit for a baby; chunks of coal, various kinds of vegetables and the very suggestive statement on a big card that potatoes were $2.40 per bushel." CIRCUS MAN LOSES HIS EAR IN BATTLE

Row Among Workmen Ends With One of Them Being Taken to Hospital.

When Edward Johnson, employee of the Robinson circus, dashed to the aid of a friend who was about to be assaulted, Wednesday night, he paid for his loyalty by a fractured skull and loss of part of his left ear.

Harry Clark, assistant trainmaster of the circus, was about to be attacked by John Quigley, trainmaster, because Clark had used poor judgment in the placing of the circus cars for loading, Quigley thought. Quigley carried an iron rod in his hand when he approached Clark. Clark was seated on a railroad tie at the end of a string of cars. Johnson stood near by.

Quigley is held under $200 bond for appearance in court. Clark was seated on a railroad tie at the end of a string of cars. Johnson stood near by.

George Jaap, 506 Lawton Place, was acquitted of the charge of keeping an unsanitary manure box when he told the jury that he had an animal in his barn for more than two weeks. When John Lee, health officer found in the uncovered manure box was straw and haymow sweepings, Jaap testified. Jaap does not keep a horse any more, he explained.

Lee testified that he had found the box uncovered on July 12 and had sent notice to Jaap that it must be covered. When Lee returned last week he found the box uncovered, he told.

"The question is, 'When does a manure box cease to be a manure box?'" Jaap asked Judge Ryan. "Or is it to be considered once a manure box always a manure box?" Judge Ryan dismissed the case.

Promised Judge to Move. Ella Chrios was fined $10 and costs upon being convicted of keeping a disorderly house at 2114 Hanna street. May Page, 20, and William Black, taken in a raid upon the place by Officers Brennan, Bischoff, Buick and Fry, early Thursday morning, were fined $5 and $10 respectively for associating.

The Chrios woman claimed she was running a rooming house for girls and was not accountable for their conduct. Since neighbors complain of the place she promised to move to some other part of town at once.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

The Habit of Cheerfulness.

All my life, until about three years ago, I was the victim of the most distressing periods of despondency, which became more frequent as I grew older and the buoyancy of youth departed. I wanted to be happy, but I seemed to close the door against happiness and persisted in looking on the dark side. Finally I got to the point where I rather enjoyed being miserable and telling people about it. You may imagine I had few friends. I worried about the slightest pain, perhaps it was a cancer; I worried about my clothes, because they were not up to date. I was a confirmed worrier. I worried until I had two puckers between my eyes and a down droop to my mouth. And then I worried because I was becoming wrinkled.

One summer, while on a vacation, I met at the boarding house a frail little woman who seemed to fairly radiate sunshine. She was not well, had to live most of the time in the open to live at all, but she did more to scatter cheer and encouragement than a dozen well women. We became friends, and one day I said to her: "Do tell me how you keep so cheerful. I wish I could be as happy as you." "You can," she instantly answered. "But I can't," I contradicted. "I have such a lot to worry about and I get such horrid blue spells. I feel miserable most of the time." "Oh, but so do I," she replied, "especially at first when they told me that my life would have to be a constant struggle against disease. I utterly gave up. Life didn't seem worth while to me then. One day I happened to pick up the 'Life of Stevenson' and the wonderful heroism of that man struck me full in the face. Here he was with the sword of Death hovering over him all the time, yet he was able to be a joy to everybody about him. It was an inspiration to me, I can tell you. His life was like mine, and what was I doing? Making everybody miserable around me. I determined, then and there to change. I would be cheerful, optimistic; I wouldn't let despondency get the better of me. Oh, I tell you, it was a struggle, but I learned the lesson bit by bit. Whenever a gloomy, discouraged thought would come to me I picked up a book and forced my mind in another channel. Sometimes it would be the Bible, sometimes a poem giving me a picture to dwell upon, or a short story, but always it was of a cheerful nature. Sometimes when the blue devils assailed me I put on my hat and went out for a walk. I visited someone who was worse off than I was. If the weather was stormy I went into the kitchen and made a cake, or dressed up in my prettiest and best frock. Also I have a hobby which I ride when I am not able to be active. I cut out colored pictures and paste them in a cambric book for the kiddies in the hospital. There is nothing like a hobby to help you ward off an attack of despondency. I used to indulge in self pity, but I gave that up. I realized that I had a toilsome way to travel, but that when I leveled I altered nothing and made others unhappy. So I have tried to live my life eagerly, encourage friendship by offering it a smiling face, enjoy the beauty around me and make as much music within myself as possible. Gradually I formed the habit of cheerful, optimistic thinking."

I thought much on what my friend said and began practicing it myself. That was three years ago, and from a morose, unhappy, always tired woman I am today buoyant, cheerful and in much better health. It is natural that I should have some moments of depression, but they don't conquer me. I am enjoying life to its fullest extent. I sincerely hope that all who read this will try to rid themselves of the demons of despondency, for by so doing a new life will flower for them; they will do more efficient work and be of greater help to others. LYMAN BEECHER'S WAY.

Lyman Beecher was a great and powerful preacher, but full of individualities and eccentricities. His peculiar habits are seen in his method of preparing sermons, as illustrated in Annie Fields' "Life and Letters of Harriet Beecher Stowe." Mr. Beecher's daughter, she says: "If he was to preach in the evening he was to be seen all day talking with whoever would talk, accessible to all, full of everybody's affairs, business and burdens, until an hour or two before the time, when he would rush into his study (which he always preferred should be at the top-most room of the house), and, throwing off his coat, after a swing or two with the dumbbells to settle the balance of his muscles, he would sit down and dash ahead, making quantities of hieroglyphic notes on small stubbed bits of paper about as big as the palm of his hand. The bells would begin to ring, and still he would write. They would toll loud and long, and his wife would say, 'He will certainly be late,' and there would be running up and down strings of messengers to see that he was finished, until, just as the last stroke of the bell was dying away, he would emerge from the study with his coat very much awry, and come down the stairs like a hurricane, stand impatiently, protesting while female hands that ever lay in wait adjusted his cravat and settled his coat collar, calling loudly the while for a pin to fasten together the stubbed little bits of paper aforesaid, which being duly dropped into the crown of his hat, and hooking wife or daughter like a satchel on his arm, away he would start on such a race through the streets as left neither brain nor breath until the church was gained. There came the process of getting in through crowded aisles wedged up with heads, the hustle, the stir, and hush to look at him as, with a matter-of-fact, business-like push he elbowed his way through them up the pulpit stairs.

The Miracle of Christ's Survival.

(By J. FRANK HANLY.)

How impossible it seems that one born of such a parentage, in such a land, of such a race, amid such an environment and in such times as this nameless, homeless, placeless man, should, in three brief years of teaching and ministry, set in motion moral tides that should sweep all peoples, change the laws of all nations and overturn the altars of all religions. And how unbelievable that such an one, writing no word and speaking only to ignorant fishermen who could remember but little of what he said, should acquire a fame that should obscure the geniuses of all times, draw in his train the inhabitants of all lands and the peoples of all ages, and link with himself all human hopes and destinies. From a human standpoint it is incredible, absolutely and utterly incredible. It contradicts all human experience and contravenes all human possibilities. Even in our day of knowledge and enlightenment; of rapid transit and instant communication and of wide diffusion of information by means of a many-tongued and vibrant press, a day in which science and invention have drawn with magic hands the four corners of the universe into one, when man's veriest whisper can be heard beneath the seas and among the clouds of the most distant lands—only an infinitesimal few—one or two, perhaps, in half a thousand millions—are able to achieve world renown. The race of a hundred years suffices to veil the most illustrious in more or less obscurity to all men and not infrequently in absolute oblivion so far as the multitudes are concerned. There are not six men now living; there were not six in the last century; nor, there are scarcely six men in all the history of the race whose names are known to the masses of the people throughout the earth.

Even the benefactors of the race who are known are soon forgotten. Neither marble or bronze; nor brush nor chisel—not the "art preservative" itself can perpetuate their memories or make known their deeds, or even their names, to the passing, succeeding multitudes.

Only this Son of the lowly Nazarene carpenter—this manger-child—has been able to triumph over oblivion. The miracle of survival is His and His alone. He alone of all the great who have lived and wrought has achieved enduring, universal fame. Only His name is so engraved on the forefront of the oncoming centuries that it cannot be forgotten. He alone is loved, adored and worshipped everywhere—in America, in Europe, in Australia, in Africa, in the gray-haired east, and in the farthest islands of the sea.

As a man He never traveled beyond the narrow boundaries of the land in which He was born, but somehow His influence has diffused itself with subtle, mysterious power throughout all lands and into all places. Time, relentless in its march, inexorable in its processes, has pitted more than nineteen hundred years between the people of the present age and the scene of His crucifixion and the hour of His death, and has crowded them with human incidents without number and with human endeavor and achievement of all kinds, interest and import, covering with oblivion and making all but nameless every actor in the unending drama, but His fame it has only embrowned, His name it has only glorified.

ALWAYS A PLACE.

To him who is ready to work there is always a place to dig.

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death! The stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore, And bright in heaven's jeweled crown They shine forevermore.

There is no death! An angel form Walks over the earth with silent tread, And bears our best loved ones away, And then we call them dead!

Born into that undying life, They leave us but to come again; With joy we welcome them the same, Except their sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen, The dear, immortal spirits tread; For the boundless universe Is life—there is no dead.

—Lord Lytton.

DOING THINGS.

The only way to get things done is to do them. It's all very well to wait the favorable opportunity if one is working hard in the meantime. But waiting for the favorable opportunity is too often a mere excuse for laziness or cowardice.

If one studies the lives of men and women who have succeeded, whether financially, socially, spiritually or, best of all, in the balance of living which includes growth of every kind, one finds an astonishing lack of the "waiting for something to turn up" attitude. What do you really want of life? It's well to ask oneself this question occasionally. If you have ideals of living which are higher and finer than your present status will allow, fix your mind firmly on the place you want and then work towards it with all your will. It isn't sitting around envying the other fellow that will get you what the other fellow has got. It's making up your mind that you can have the same kind of life if you're willing to make the same sacrifice of mental laziness and physical inaction.

Suppose you do have to overwork occasionally. If you live sensibly and work cheerfully you can stand it. Suppose you counted on staying in your present job two years more while you got enough money saved to start something of your own, and you are thrown out of work today. What matter? Start the new business anyhow. The time to do something big isn't day after tomorrow.

The time to do things is today. The only way to make a beginning is to begin. The only way to get things done is to do them.

Treasures in Heaven.

Little Mary was sitting with her Uncle George one afternoon while he was going over some accounts. For an hour all was still, then Mary heard him say: "There! I have quite a nice little sum laid up against a time of need."

"What are you talking about, Uncle George?" asked Mary.

"About my treasures, little girl, that I have laid up."

"Tip in heaven?" asked Mary, who had heard her father that morning read about laying up treasures in heaven.

"Oh, no, Mary! My treasures are all on earth, some in banks and some in other places," answered Uncle George.

"But haven't you any in heaven, too?" asked Mary.

"Well, I don't believe I have," said Uncle George, thoughtfully. "But run away to your mother now, for I am going out."

Uncle George went out and was gone a good while; but all the time he was thinking that, after all, perhaps he was not so well off if he had no treasures laid up in heaven to be ready for him when he left this world and his money behind him. He was so impressed with the thought that he wisely determined to lay up treasures in heaven. Little Mary never knew until years afterwards that it was her childish question that started Uncle George on a generous, active, Christian life.

How Poverty Helps.

Poverty is the normal lot of the vast majority of mankind. It was the lot of Jesus. There was nothing unusual, nothing torturing, nothing degrading in his poverty. He was a man of modest competence, provided with a manly tool, which it is the poverty which, "having food and raiment," is "therewith content." The lesson of Christ's poverty has helped thousands of the humble to say, with Martin Luther: "My God, I thank thee that thou hast made me poor." For this reason Jesus gave that unusual picture, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God."

There are likely some poor boys among our readers. Don't be ashamed of it. You are on the same level with Jesus. He knew the paths of daily economy; of work, not only to do, but to find; and of taxes to pay. Don't feel that you are a truly successful man: "I was born in poverty, and would not exchange its sacred memories with the richest millionaire's son who ever breathed. What does he know about father or mother? These are mere names to him. Give me the life of the boy whose mother is meek, seamstress, washerwoman, cook, teacher, angel, and saint all in one, and whose father is guide, exemplar, and friend, with no servants to come between." These are the boys who are born to the best fortune.

A Sermon on Love.

The following beautiful sentiments are translated from the French:

"You have only a day to spend here on earth; act in such a manner that you may spend it in peace."

"If you cannot bear with your brother or how will he bear with you?"

"Peace is the fruit of love; for, in order to live in peace, we must bear with a great many things."

"None is perfect; each has his failings, each hangs upon the other, and love alone renders that weight light."

"It is written of the Son of Mary that, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end."

"For that reason love your brother, who is in the world, and love him unto the end."

"Love is indefatigable; it never grows weary."

"Love is inexhaustible; it lives and is born anew in the living; and the more it pours itself out, the fuller the fountain."

"Whoever loveth himself better than he loves his brother is not worthy of Christ, who died for his brothers. Have you given away everything you possess? Go and give up your life also, if needed."

"The wicked man loves not. He covets; he hungers and thirsts for everything. His eyes, like unto the eyes of a serpent, fascinate and allure, but only to devour."

"Love rests at the bottom of every pure soul like a drop of dew in the calyx of a flower. O, if you knew what it is to love!"—The Living Church.

Jesus Christ and Rich Men.

Sometimes workmen insist that if rich men were to carry out the commands of Jesus Christ they would give away all their wealth, because Jesus commanded the rich young ruler to do so. And because they do not give away all their wealth some workmen declare that these rich men are not Christians. They forget the circumstances under which this command was given. Jesus saw that the riches of this young ruler stood between him and the thing he seemed to desire, "The gift of eternal life."

Jesus Christ, so far as we know, never gave this command to any other man, neither are we told anywhere in Scripture that rich men must give away their all in order to become Christians. Those who make these criticisms forget that some of the richest men in Bible history were considered the best men. Abraham was one of the wealthiest men in the world, and yet we are told in several places in the Bible that he was the "Friend of God."

It is true that riches frequently stand between a man and Jesus Christ. For this reason Jesus gave that unusual picture, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God."

Of course, Jesus Christ did not refer to the eye of a sewing needle. In those days most of the cities were enclosed by a wall in which was a large gate open during the day. At night this gate was closed. Anyone coming into the city after sunset was compelled to enter through a small gate which would barely admit a camel. Indeed, that it might enter, the merchandise and other trappings had to be removed from the camel's back. Frequently it became necessary to tie about the camel's neck a rope which was pulled vigorously by a man inside the gate, while outside the driver of the camel belabored the beast with a club in order to get it through. Finally, after considerable grunting and strong opposition, the camel would squeeze its clumsy body through this opening, known as the "needle's eye." This is the picture that Jesus Christ intended to impress upon the minds of his hearers. They were quite familiar with it. What Jesus Christ meant was—there is great danger that riches will prove to the rich man just such a hindrance as the merchandise on the back of the camel.—Charles Stelzle.

Christian Sympathy.

It is a great accomplishment to be able to "Rejoice with them that rejoice, and to weep with them that weep." How closely Jesus enters into the lives of people. He was equally at home in the palace of the rich and in the hovel of the poor. Little children loved Him, sinners did not shrink from Him. He was criticized for acting in a brotherly spirit toward the despised publicans. He is the Great Sympathizer.

It is most unfortunate to be the possessor of a cold disposition. There are persons whose souls are like ice. Is it not in order to pray that from all such we may be delivered?

There are so many persons who need our sympathy; the poverty stricken in the slums, the little children who are the victims of cruelty and greed, the drunkard reeling along the street, the sick in hospitals, the prisoners in the jails and penitentiaries, the weak and the unfortunate and the needy of all classes. It is a hard old world in certain respects. There is nothing that will brighten it up like sympathy.

Not long since, in an issue of the Congregationalist, Bruce Barton told in very graphic style of a modern prodigal. The story related to a young southerner who left home years ago, and who dissipated his fortune in riotous forms of living. He wandered about the world, reveling in low modes of vice, until, at last, the victim of drink and drugs and evils still worse, he stumbled one night into the Water Street Mission in New York. He was completely down and out—a typical bum. That night he accepted Christ as his Savior. He was led to do so by a mission worker who came and sat down beside him and called him brother, and put his arms around him and talked to him in tones of real appreciation and affection and who told him that Jesus was just waiting to save him. It was sympathy, real brotherly sympathy, that unlocked the door of his heart. Without this particular thing the world can never be won to God and redeemed. We shall possess it in rich measure when Christ enters fully into our lives.—The United Presbyterian.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S ANSWER.

An old friend of Gen. Phil Sheridan once asked him this question:

"Phil, if you could choose for your little son from all the temptations which will beset him, the one most to be feared, what would it be?"

General Sheridan answered soberly: "It would be the curse of strong drink. Boys are not saints. We are all self-willed, strong-willed, may be full of courage and thrift and push and kindness and charity, but woe to the man or boy who becomes a slave to liquor! Oh, I had rather see my little son die today than to see him carried in to his mother drunk!"

"One of my brave soldier boys on the field said to me just before a battle, when he gave me his message to his mother if he should be killed: 'Tell her I have kept my promise to her—not one drink have I ever tasted.' The boy was killed. I carried the message with my own lips to the mother. She said: 'General, that is more glory for my boy than if he had taken a city.'"

MUCH NEARER HOME.

You do not have to go to Europe to see ruins. Take a squint at the gang that hangs out at the saloon.—The American Issue.

A Confidential Word With Each Member of the Whole Family.

(Willard Price, in The World Outlook.)

Mr. You.
Just suppose, Mr. You, that you had been born a thick-lipped native of the dark continent, dressed in tattoo marks and a necklace of animal teeth. So you stretch your glistening limbs in the sun, munch your morning croquette of ants, gnats and locusts, and think.

Think not of the war in Europe because you never heard of it; not of what you read in your morning newspaper, and anyway, the language you speak has never been put into writing; not of business or ambition, of greatness or of God.

No. You think of the flies tickling your toes, of the snake-steak and native beer dinner you had last night, of the evil eye and the witch doctor and of your six children killed by smallpox spirits and lying under the earthen floor of your hut.

That's you, Mr. You, as you would have been in a land of no science, no love, no school, and no Christ.

Master You.

Put yourself in the place of a fourteen-year-old lad of Peru. A South American instead of a North American. Your blood is half Spanish and half Indian. Your disposition is made up of disdain for labor, and of loose morals.

Boys of your age are not expected to be moral in Peru.

The climate is hot and enervating. You can't stick to anything difficult.

You have been taught to do nothing except ride as a dead weight on the shoulders of your serfs, the Indians. You are descended from Spanish lusts after gold—not from Puritan seekers for religious liberty. You are an infidel and a thief.

And yet, you and your race have tremendous possibilities. Can Master You of the north help Master You of the south to make those possibilities wake up and work?

Mrs. You.

Imagine yourself the Chinese wife of Ching Chang Chung, who has cut off his queue but not his ideas about women. You never saw him until the close of the wedding ceremony.

As you looked into his face you knew what was ahead of you. His mother would rule your home. You must obey them both, and if you should have a son, you must obey him, too.

Any member of this triple league might beat you at will.

Your husband might divorce you for any one of seven reasons. You could not divorce him for any of a million reasons.

Eight straight on. Mrs. You, for human rights in America. But put in a stroke, too, for the rights of the little, pinch-footed, pinch-lifted woman of the Orient that you might have been.

Miss You.

You are, let's say, an East Indian young lady. I call you Miss because you are the age of a Miss—but you probably got married before you were ten years old.

And now, little girl wife, suppose your boy husband dies. You are responsible for his death. Your head is shaved and you are dressed in sackcloth. You become the drudge of his family until your death. And you have the prospect when you die of reincarnation into a bulbous, warty toad as a punishment for being so indiscreet as to outlive your husband.

Poor, little, howling Baby You—life in Uncle Sam's land isn't much of a snap, is it? What crazy clothes! What long waits for food! What a dance of a mother, you say.

Well, now, come right along with me on a little trip around the world and we'll see if we can't find a better place to be born in.

Now here's the Philippines. But here one out of every two babies dies before he is a year old. Let's try Africa. But, here, if you bawl like that, the witch doctor will think you are sick and will cut you in a dozen places to let out the evil spirits. And if the chief of your tribe dies, you may be one of the two live babies that must be buried with him!

Come away quick—to China. But in China you will not have one chance in a hundred of getting an education. And in India little tads like you may be given to the Ganges as a breakfast for the sacred crocodiles. In Persia, out of every hundred children eighty-five don't live to grow up. In Syria three babies die for every one that lives. And in South America nearly one-half of all the children have no fathers!

I guess your best chance is right here in Uncle Sam's land, after all. And when you grow up into a Mr. or Mrs. You, perhaps you will feel like doing something for the rest of the great You family—the kiddies and big folks the world around who never had your chance.

Dust Lays Bare the Trail for Countless Disease Germs.

Dust is harmful when it is present in any quantity, for it irritates and inflames the air passages an irritation which leads to destruction of lung tissues.

Dust prepares the way for the ever alert germs that cause colds, catarrh, influenza and pneumonia.

If tuberculosis germs are in the dust, there is the danger of the disease entering the lungs of the individual breathing such dust.

People having tuberculosis should remember this and be careful when they expectorate.

House dust is more harmful than street dust.

When sweeping or dusting, proper ventilation is essential.

Rugs are more sanitary than carpets; they allow outdoor cleaning and exposure to sun.

In dusting and sweeping rooms, as little dust as possible should be raised. Feather dusters and dry cloths should NEVER be used.

If a room is carpeted scatter small pieces of damp newspaper over the surface of the carpet before sweeping.

Every precaution should be taken if there is illness in a house, particularly tuberculosis, to prevent the germs of disease from getting into the air and dust.

The warm days of summer bring foot troubles. The feet feel big and heavy, and they puff up and grow tender and ache. But if people would give as much attention daily to their feet as they do to their hands, many foot ailments could be avoided.

Careful attention to the fit of one's shoes will prevent the forming of blisters. An ill-fitting shoe that rubs the heel will cause blisters to form the first time you take a spring walk in the park.

Another spot where blisters are apt to form, unless one's shoes fit perfectly, is on the sole of the foot, under the little toe.

A shoe that is too narrow in front and crowds and pushes the front of the nail to one side will cause ingrowing toenails. In bad cases it is best to consult a chiropodist, but afterward if one would prevent a recurrence of the trouble, see to it that shoes which do not pinch the toes are worn.

A great many adults have weak feet. This is because in their childhood they contracted bad foot habits or were made to wear shoes that were too small or too large.

Then they did not notice it, for their bodies were light and their muscles strong, but as middle age approaches the elasticity of tissue and muscles decrease and foot ills develop.

Chew your food until you can taste it. Thorough mastication is both a pleasure and an important part of eating.

Most of our dental troubles can be traced back to childhood.

Therefore "Keep Well" work should begin with the coming of the first teeth of the child.

Frequently mothers pay no attention to the green stain so often seen on children's teeth. Aside from its disgusting appearance this should be removed at once otherwise it will cause decay.

Decay in a child's first set of teeth is as dangerous as it is in later teeth. It is a common error that because the first teeth are temporary they do not require attention. This is a great mistake for the regularity of the permanent teeth depends largely upon the retention of the first set until the second is ready to appear.

The mother should make it a part of her daily care to see that the child's teeth are clean, and if this is done the child will, as it grows older, find it impossible to feel comfortable without having cleaned the teeth as thoroughly as the hands and face.

Under proper conditions the temporary teeth should remain in the mouth until they simply lose their hold from absorption of their roots and drop out as white and clean as when they first appeared.

When decay commences the same care should be taken to prevent its spreading as would be given to any other trouble. The teeth were a permanent set. All cavities in the first teeth should be filled, thereby doing away with the disease instead of leaving the teeth in a diseased condition to invite more trouble.

The premature loss of the early teeth is the cause of much of the irregularity and disfigurement of so many human mouths. When it is remembered how much their loss means, not only in inability to chew food properly, and to speak correctly, but the condition of the face through life, the importance of attention to a child's first teeth cannot fail to be appreciated.

Children Fighting Beside Their Fathers in the Serbian Ranks Now

Infant Warriors Make Up Large Part of Fighting Force That is the Hope of the Nation.

(BY K. W. PAYNE.)

New York, Sept. 7.—"Save the child soldiers of Serbia!"

That is a slogan of the national campaign just opened by New York society women to obtain medical aid for the Serbian soldiers in their new Balkan drive.

More children have been sharing the untold hardships of the Serbian army and these infant fighters are destined to suffer still more terribly now, for lack of an army medical service!

Alone of all the armies at war, the Serb force will have to see their wounded perish, their sick succumb, as though in medieval warfare, for lack of proper help from science!

What are these boy warriors like? One man who has brought back a description of them is Fortier Jones, author and former Columbia university student, who went through the turmoil of relief work during the Serbian catastrophe of last year.

"In the early days of the great retreat we made the acquaintance of the 'Little Sergeant,' the youngest soldier in the Serbian army," says Jones, in his new book, "With Serbia Into Exile," published by the Century company.

"He was a real sergeant. On his soldiers' coat he wore three gold stars. In lieu of a sword he carried an Austrian bayonet, and in lieu of a rifle a Russian cavalry carbine.

"A full-sized, well-filled cartridge belt was slung over his shoulders, because it would easily have encircled his baby waist three times!

"He was ten years of age, and had been in the service for a long time. 'Whom had he left at home?'

"Why his mother and little sister, who was five years older than himself. 'His father and brother were in the army. The boy had shot well and been cautious in the trenches, and been promoted above his father, who now, according to military discipline, had to salute his son.

"But the boy never allowed this. He always forestalled his father and at the same time conserved military discipline by seizing his hand that would have saluted and kissing it!"

Baby soldiers of Serbia are here shown after being taken captives. The youngest of these little fighters was wounded in the arm and hand by shrapnel. Two of these little warriors have sacking tied about their feet; the other is barefooted.

Another of the baby Serbian soldiers was described today by Miss Julia Sabine, field secretary of the Franco-Serbian Field Hospital of America.

"He was a sergeant, too, when I met him," said Miss Sabine. "He had gone to Belgrade as a stowaway on the transport that carried his father's regiment."

"They wouldn't take him as a soldier, but he carried water under fire to the men, and when his father was killed in action, he was made sergeant as reward for his heroism!"

"He is only 14 years old, but has won two medals for courage and is still fighting with the army!"

Just how many Serb youngsters like these are going to march to the front with their fathers in the new offensive nobody knows. But according to Miss Sabine, a large part of the army might well be called children!

"The poor Serbian soldiers on whom the fate of a whole race depends, are doomed to suffer helplessly, without the aid of a doctor or comfort of a nurse, unless medical help is supplied by neutral nations!"

"The Serb seems never too old to fight!" says Fortier Jones, author of "With Serbia Into Exile," describing heroes whose ages range from 45 years to an indefinite limit.

"They had no uniforms, these patriots of the army and marching by they presented a beggars' array of tattered homespuns.

"To see their grandfathers in dirty rags, unwashed, half-starved, blue with cold, drenched with rain, many of them suffering with rheumatism, scurvy, neuralgia and in the last days of their nation's life dying by hundreds of wounds, of cold and starvation, was one of the things the Serbs had to bear!"

STRONGER NOW THAN BEFORE REBELLION

Sinn Fein Spirit is Still Very Pronounced in Ireland.

By Chas. Edward Russell.
Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 25.—(Special Correspondence).—London today is a place of ill timed mirth, and many other British cities are amazingly light hearted considering what kind of work is in hand.

But Dublin sits grave, silent, sullen. It has always before its eyes the sombre piles of ruins where once was its great business center, and all these other buildings pitted with bullet marks or disfigured by shellholes.

A visitor has no need to be told that the fighting here that terrible Easter week was desperate and bloody. He can see that for himself.

The great general postoffice, two of the largest hotels, the principal department store, and many other commanding structures were included in the devastated region. The empty shell of the postoffice still stands. All the rest are heaps of rubbish, five blocks long and three blocks wide.

The mere sight depresses every heart, so does the memory of the wild struggle down to death that it brings back. But Dublin and all southern Ireland have heavier burdens than this.

The men that led the Easter week revolt have been added to the long list of national heroes and martyrs; they have become to the average Irishman like Bunnet, Wolfe Tone and Tandy. Their cause has been taken to the popular heart, their deaths are bitterly resented, and how far these feelings may go and what they may lead to are questions that keep sober men from their sleep.

"Crush out Sinn Fein!" was the cry of some British journals. Crush it? The best living authority on Irish affairs tells me there are now ten times as many Sinn Feiners as there were when the insurrection broke loose.

"Up with the republic!" is the forbidden cry in Ireland. I have heard it in the most unexpected places.

The day I came here a great crowd stood in the street before the railway station, cheering vehemently. All were Sinn Feiners. What were they cheering? A little band of other Sinn Feiners just released from English prisons.

Nothing in those cheers sounded like the note of crushed men.

"Seems like killing folks was a waste of time," says the reflective old pirate in Stephenson's story. In the case of the men put to death for this uprising it was still worse. It spread hatred, implacable resentment, and a sense of wrong that will outlast this generation and others.

The war has revealed in men an infinite capacity for blundering. No blunder in all the war has been so monstrous and bovine as this.

The rebel leaders surrendered when they saw that their movement had failed. They were court-martialed at night and shot the next morning. Masses of Irish people have one clear notion that surrendered prisoners of war ought not to be shot, and another that these men were not shot as traitors, but because they were Irishmen.

And they point to De Wet in South Africa.

Is treason a matter of geography? they ask.

Men that helped to put down the insurrection and bore arms against it feel this as deeply as the sons and brothers of the men they fought against. It is strange and ominous, but it is true.

The outlook is stormy on all sides now, but stormiest in Ireland. If at the end of the war partition breaks loose elsewhere in the empire, what shall we look for here?

Ireland is under martial law and has been combed for weapons. Wisely, no doubt. In view of the situation. But for all the soldiery everywhere, "sniping" goes on in out-of-the-way places, and any man that walks abroad may see the signs of trouble.

The Casement affair struck men as cold-blooded, deliberate, passionless. Very few persons in Ireland believed Casement would be hanged. Hanged he was, and his fate made every bad condition infinitely worse.

$2.00 Buys a Full Ton of Coal

The Best Guaranteed Soft Coal Mined in the Middle West—F. O. B. Mines

It's a fact, you're paying steep, outrageous coal prices every year to coal dealers and here is the reason:

The coal you get from your dealer actually passes through three or four hands before you even get it. It isn't the fault of the coal man in your town, but that's the routine coal goes through when it's handled by middlemen. And it is expensive, too. Each of these middlemen, and we call them middlemen because they stand between you and the mine owners, declare a profit on every pound that passes through their hands.

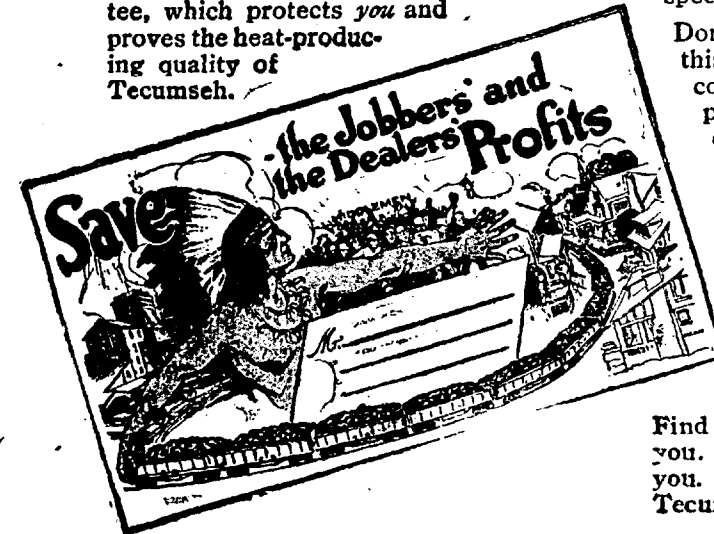

Coal Is Not Expensive when it leaves the mines, but after the profits of three or four needless middlemen have been declared—coal starts to be an expensive necessity for all of us. You can avoid high coal prices and big coal bills.

Buy Coal Direct From Our Mines! Save from $1.00 to $4.00 on every ton you put in. Buy the famous Tecumseh Coal direct from us, the mine owners, at mine prices.

There are about six different men, myself included, who have burned your Tecumseh Coal this winter, and we are all well satisfied. We bought from the car shipped to my neighbor last August.

How to Form a Tecumseh Coal Club!

It is explained in the big folder, giving complete details. Small users will be specially interested in it.

Don't buy a pound of coal till you see this big folder. Protect yourself—be coal wise—be better prepared. Compare Tecumseh prices with the coal dealer's prices, and you can be sure Tecumseh Coal is better in quality. We guarantee it.

If you can see where your coal man will save you money, all right. But think it over—how can he compete with mine prices? It's impossible; he can't. Cut your coal bill almost in half this year. Write us today.

ADAIR COMPLETES TOUR OF DISTRICT

Democratic Nominee for Governorship Predicts Big Victory.

John A. M. Adair completed his tour of three counties in the district with a speech at Garrett Wednesday night. Mr. Adair spoke from a stand on the public square and many laboring men heard the address, including men from the Baltimore & Ohio shops. He spoke of the new laws that have been enacted by congress and the state legislature. A band met Mr. Adair's party on the outskirts of the city. Music also was furnished by a quartet composed of J.

D. Brinkerhoff, V. M. McKennan, Frank Boltz and Carl Weaver. The musical program preceded the address of the candidate.

Much for Laboring Man.
Mr. Adair declared the democratic party has given the laboring men all the legislation they had received from any political party. He said the laws came after the republicans had been in power for many years and had failed to enact any such legislation. He urged the voters to support the party that had made the laws possible.

He asked support of the state ticket in order that there could be a continuance of constructive legislation.

Robinson Was Speaker.
James M. Robinson, former congressman, spoke for a short time on national and state issues and compared America, a nation at peace, with Europe, torn by war. He declared peace in this country was possible by the wise leadership of President Wilson.

Ralph Thomas directed the tour in DeKalb county, assisted by Harvey Judson, secretary. At all stops large crowds heard Mr. Adair. The first stop was at Corunna, where about 350 persons had assembled. Otto Thomas introduced the candidate and Mr. Robinson made a short speech. From Corunna the party drove to Waterloo. V. F. Sewell introduced the speaker at Waterloo. At Butler, W. J. Moundbank presided and gave Mr. Adair his introduction, and at St. Joe, M. Dunkel made the introduction. At Butler Mr. Adair spoke to 500 and at St. Joe to 350. From St. Joe the party went to Spencerville, where Mr. Adair was introduced by W. A. Erick. From Spencerville the party went to Auburn, where luncheon was taken.

Many Heard Adair.
It is estimated that 10,000 persons heard Mr. Adair during his three days' tour. Mr. Adair was well pleased with the tour of the Twelfth district, he having spoken to large, attentive audiences at each place. He said he was confident that the district would mark up a big majority for the state, national and congressional ticket this fall.

HE WAS WORRIED AND HOPELESS.

"For ten or twelve years I was bothered with bad kidney trouble," writes T. F. Hutchinson. Little Rock, Ark. "I tried many remedies and doctors, but grew worse all the time. I was worried and had almost given up all hopes. I tried Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me a lot. I have since used five boxes and am now a well man." Foley Kidney Pills drive out aches and pains due to kidney trouble; also sleep disturbing bladder disorders. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

COUNCIL MAY REPEAL BREAD ORDINANCE

Bakers Are Objecting to Code Which Fixes the Weight of Each Loaf.

The city council may repeal the ordinance which fixes the size of bread at sixteen and twenty-four ounces, at the council session next Tuesday evening. Bakers of the city are very anxious to have the law repealed. They can keep the price of bread down by making the loaves slightly smaller, they say, whereas they must keep boosting the selling figure with each raise in the cost of materials under the present law.

Bread price is now six cents and will no doubt go higher, because flour prices, especially, are near the sky. The five cent loaf would have remained at least several days longer by decreasing the size of the little loaf if the city law would have allowed.

Bakers do not like to raise the prices because it means dissatisfied customers, they say. The bakers prefer to cut the size of the loaf. City Sealer C. B. Tolson has given out that as long as the present ordinance is in effect it must be complied with to the letter. The ordinance, passed in 1897, does not tolerate the practice of making a "package" of bread to consist of two loaves of twelve ounces each and then selling one of the loaves for a nickel, as bakers were trying to do, when prices cut all profit from their former jitney loaf.

"We have no desire to work a hardship on bakers," a councilman said Thursday. "If the bakers show that the law should be repealed I am sure the council will have it annulled." A few representative bakers may go before the council next Tuesday evening and explain the present situation and their reasons for asking that the law be repealed.

Daniel Powierza May Lose Leg as the Result of an Auto Smash-Up.

When his son, Daniel Powierza, aged 14 years, was on the operating table at St. Joseph's hospital and doctors advised that the little fellow's leg be amputated, Vincent Powierza, the father, residing at 1215 Hayden street, would not give his consent and said: "Fix it up and let it grow back on; that's the way we do it in the old country."

The young boy was learning to ride a motorcycle and at the intersection of Warsaw and DeWald streets the motorcycle on which he was riding and an automobile driven by Mrs. J. C. Weirman, 2210 Lafayette street, came together with the result that the foreigner was badly injured. The accident occurred at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening.

The injured boy was taken into a nearby residence and Dr. Ray was summoned. Later he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Attendants at the hospital state that the boy spent a fair night but that he was suffering much pain. The physicians will determine Thursday night whether an operation is necessary to save the lad's life.

Mrs. Weirman states that when she neared the crossing she saw the boy "wabbling all over the street," and that he ran directly into her machine. The boy stated that Mrs. Weirman forced him into the curbing and continued until she ran over the curbing, sidewalk and into a front yard.

WHITLEY COUNTY MEN INJURED NEAR CITY

Ford Touring Car Upsets and Occupants Thrown Into a Ditch.

Four residents of Whitley county were injured last Tuesday evening when the Ford car in which they were driving turned over in a ditch about four miles west of the city near the "Boot Jack" on the Illinois road. They were brought back to Fort Wayne and their injuries were attended at St. Joseph's hospital. All have returned to their homes, however.

William Schnitzler, a farmer, came to this city Tuesday evening to buy some paint and took with him his hired man, "Joe," Fred Whitehead, of Columbia City, and Orlando Bennett, of Columbia township.

When they turned out of the way to allow another car to pass the back wheel of the Ford car started for the ditch. The auto did not stop until it had turned a complete somersault on its side and stood erect in the ditch at the side of the road. Bennett suffered a fractured arm and leg, besides several bad bruises. Schnitzler, who was driving the car, was rendered unconscious and suffered a deep cut in his forehead. Whitehead sustained a dislocated shoulder and "Joe" is suffering from a broken rib. All have returned to their home. Late Tuesday night when Dr. D. S. Linville, of Columbia City, was bringing two of the patients home, they witnessed a similar accident a mile farther from the accident of a few hours before. Roscoe Schrader and Everett Brubaker were driving in a Ford car when it left the track and went into the ditch. Neither was injured. They admitted that they had fallen to sleep while driving the car.

SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 7.—Dale Gibbs, 24, shot himself in the breast last night with a revolver while he was walking on the street, and it is believed he is fatally injured. He said afterward that the shooting was accidental.

Attempted Train Holdup in Arizona Was Complete Failure.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 7.—Six masked bandits who last night held up the Golden States limited of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway near Apache, forty miles east of Douglas, early today were being trailed by a sheriff's posse, organized immediately after the holdup. The attempted robbery was a complete failure.

The bandits after six attempts to blow open the safe of the express car, abandoned the job and disappeared on cow ponies. The passengers were not molested. One shot was fired at the mail clerk as he closed the door and locked himself in the car. Two of the robbers boarded the tender at Apache, covered the engine crew with revolvers and after the first three cars were detached were joined by four companions awaiting at a campfire nearby.

Maggie Teyte's Wonderful Leap Year Romance

Bewitching Maggie Teyte, known as "the daintiest prima donna in the world," announced a short time ago that she is to marry a "war cripple."

Now comes his identity and the revelation of a remarkable romance. Right at the beginning of leap year, and less than two months after a Paris judge had divorced her from M. Eugen Plumon, a handsome young French lawyer, she proposed by cable to her army hero, whom she has known since childhood. And straightway, by cable, he accepted the grand opera singer's proposal with profuse avowals of undying devotion and gratitude.

Seymour Robertson is his name. He is a lieutenant in the English army. In the fighting near Loos he was wounded so severely that it was necessary to amputate his right arm and left leg. Because he lost those two members Maggie Teyte declares she loves him with all her heart and soul.

"He is my child," she says. "He always will be my child. The church and the state will make him my husband. But to me he always will be my child. I shall love him and nurse him and care for him. You call that self-sacrifice? Ah, no. That is true love—nothing more."

UNHAPPY FROM THE START.

Here, then, is the strangest and most appealing love story of a modern prima donna that ever has been recorded. It reeks with romance. It is contradictory. It is an absorbing study for experts in psychology. But for the plain, honest, everyday person who knows love only as a divine emotion coming straight from the soul it is a story that will cause the throat to swell and the eyes to glisten.

Why? First of all, Maggie Teyte is a woman of the world. She is young—not yet 25—yet she has seen life in its sordid as well as its beautiful phases. She has worked hard and suffered much. At 17 she made her debut in grand opera. At 18 she was the operatic idol of Paris.

In that year she was married to Plumon. They were unhappy from the beginning and the divorce that followed last November was inevitable.

Now what of Seymour Robertson? He was born near Wolverhampton, England. It was in Dunstall House, on a country estate near Wolverhampton, that Maggie Teyte came into the world. Her father was a musician, not overburdened with wealth. Young Robertson's parents were refined country people. They planned great things for "their boy." They wanted him to be of service to the British government—to become a diplomat—and he was educated with that end in view.

WENT TO SCHOOL TOGETHER.

As children Maggie Teyte and Seymour Robertson went to school together. All of this, by the way, is Maggie Teyte's own story as she related it a few days ago in her luxurious apartment in the Hotel Van derbilt, New York. In those days they merely were school friends. Seymour was a quiet boy, studiously inclined. Maggie Teyte was vivacious, full of the joy of living. She cared more for skipping rope or trilling a ballad than she did for the "three Rs."

All of the boys in the Staffordshire school, save Seymour Robertson, were "fairly wild" about her. On school desks, fences and even the staid old schoolhouse were carved hearts with the mystic initials "M. T." and those of the juvenile knife sculptors adorning the boyish emblems of love.

As for Seymour Robertson, he was "shy." He would walk home from school with Maggie occasionally and always he talked of books, horses or hunting—never of love. And all the time the unseen hands of destiny were moving the two young people like pieces on a chess board.

HE DIDN'T FORGET MAGGIE.

Papa Tate—the family spelled the name that way and Maggie only changed it after she entered grand opera—believed his daughter would make a great singer. He bundled her off to Paris when she was 13. There, at a great financial sacrifice to the family, it was arranged that Jean de Reszke, the great tenor, should teach her.

"She will become one of the greatest prima donnas in Europe within four years," said De Reszke. "But she must work; that is the one thing necessary to her success." So she worked—worked until at times her head would swim and her appetite desert her. All of those lusty boys of Wolverhampton who had carved "M. T." inside the wooden heart forgot her completely and found new loves.

Seymour Robertson, who hadn't carved the heart, did not forget her. He wrote to her occasionally. His letters were full of encouragement, brotherly in tone. He knew she would succeed, he told her, and wasn't it "ripping" that she was planning to go into grand opera?

"There are no events of interest to record at home," would be his perfunctory form of closing. "I am studying, and pater and mater have great hopes for me."

The situation thus presented is that of a girl full of energy working prodigiously to reach a great goal, and a boy in England peacefully pursuing his studies with the general idea of "helping the government." One knew just how she expected to attain her end; the other had no definite object in sight.

THEIR LIVES

WIDELY SEPARATED.

One worked amid turmoil, temperament and men and women who were steeped in the lore of worldliness; the other lived in a sphere of quietness and simplicity. And destiny, that great master of the game of life, kept moving both forward slowly and deliberately toward the climax of tragedy and romance that was in store for them.

When the four years of study allotted to Maggie Teyte by Jean de Reszke had expired he sent her to Monte Carlo, where she sang the prima donna role in "Don Juan" a few days after her seventeenth birthday, and scored a great triumph. Flowers poured in upon her from statesmen and millionaires on the succeeding nights of her successful beginning. All she got from Seymour Robertson was a simple letter of congratulation.

Next she sang at the Opera Comique in Paris and in the following season made a success in "Pelléas et Melisande." It was while singing in that beautiful and romantic opera that she met Plumon, fell in love with him, as she thought, and they were married.

The simple folk of Wolverhampton were stunned by Maggie Teyte's success. But more successes awaited her. At 19 she sang at Covent Garden in London. One of the first with her. They did not get along well together. He seemed jealous of her success, she says. Then, too, he thought he was playing "second fiddle" in the matrimonial orchestra. When she planned to return to America in 1913 he "laid down the law" to her.

"If you go," he said, "you go alone. And I will file suit for divorce against you." Here is a nature that does not tolerate opposition. She snapped her fingers at him and sailed. Plumon sailed, too—sailed into court with papers in his divorce suit.

DESTINY MOVES ONCE MORE.

And now destiny moved mild young Seymour Robertson forward. Came the great war in Europe, the call for troops by England, and the boy who had been trained so earnestly for the diplomatic service entered the army with a commission. Over to France went Lieutenant Robertson. He fought quietly and he fought bravely.

The end of the engagement at Loos found him terribly maimed on the battlefield. He lay out in the open for twelve hours before he was found and carried to a hospital. Gangrene set in. Amputation of one to congratulate her after her first appearance there was Robertson.

Lieutenant Seymour Robertson, Miss Teyte's boyhood chum and sweetheart, just as he looked before he fell, maimed, in the battle of Loos. He was handsome enough to love then, but Miss Teyte didn't discover it until a part of his beauty was gone.

"I say, isn't 'jolly' he exclaimed. 'I never thought you would do it so quickly.'"

It was a real brotherly attitude. She introduced him to Plumon, and that was the last she saw of him during 1910. Early in 1911 she made her American debut in Philadelphia.

Her success here was as great as it had been in Europe. Then she returned to Paris and her triumphs were renewed. Plumon traveled leg and arm were imperative. The surgeons asked for his consent to the operation.

"If it must be done," he said, "why, fire away." So they gave him an anesthetic and when he regained consciousness this youth of 25 had only one leg and one arm. They sent him back to England. There he wrote to Maggie Teyte and told her all about himself.

Her reply must have made him feel repaid for his great misfortune in battle.

"Why did I never realize you were a hero?" she wrote. "Ah, dear man! You have braved everything for your country. There are women whose hearts are with England who love you for what you have done, and I am one of them."

Shortly after this destiny made another move. M. Plumon won his divorce on the ground of desertion. The news was flashed all over the civilized world. Robertson, in England read of it, and cabled to Maggie Teyte, then in Philadelphia. There was only one word in the message. It was:

"Congratulations."

Maggie Teyte, the "daintiest prima donna in the world," is so exquisite that many a brave soldier in the trenches—and in the diamond-horseshoe, too, for that matter—would be glad to have an arm and a leg amputated just to win her love. Her photograph, above, is proof.

She says that for many days she carried the message next to her heart. Then, with the dawning of the new year, she cabled to Robertson. Her message was:

"Am ready to wed you. Answer."

The answer came quickly enough.

"What a noble man he is!" said the dainty little blue-eyed, flax-haired prima donna. "When I received tidings of my divorce I felt at once elated and miserable. I was elated to feel that I was free of ties that pained me and miserable to think of that word 'Divorce.' It seemed to me that I was all alone in the world—that I had nothing to live for but my work."

"I remember a newspaper writer called on me in Philadelphia to ask about the Paris decree. I told him I never intended being married again—that art and marriage would not mix. After he had departed there came the message from Seymour."

"I understood all at once—understood that beneath his brotherly exterior a pure love had burned. Yet

I did not want to be hasty. One should understand that an opera singer must have her career. Hers is the life of a slave—a slave to her work."

"If she marries her husband usually will exploit her—if not for money, then for glory. If a woman who is pursuing a career intends making that sacrifice, of being a slave to her husband as well as her art, all very well and good. I am not capable of self-sacrifice to the extent that I would not see the faults in my husband if he tried to exploit me for his own welfare."

EVERY WISH TO BE GRATIFIED.

"Since this terrible war began it has been my ambition to become a nurse, and to help those poor men who have been maimed for their country. That I may do—if Seymour agrees to it."

"But what of yourself? Will you not have something to say about your own wishes?"

"You do not understand," sighed Miss Teyte. "Men never do. Seymour is my child—his every wish shall be gratified."

Wherefore destiny, having thus brought Maggie Teyte and Lieutenant Robertson together, might well write:

"All ye who think ye know a woman's heart would do well to gaze searchingly hereon and then find another answer to the riddle ye think ye have solved."

For Maggie Teyte, young and beautiful, who might command a nobleman, a millionaire or an Adonis to become her husband, has singled out a wan "war cripple."

Is it because of woman's natural desire to "mother" some one in misery?

Is it patriotism? Or is it as Shakespeare says: "She loved me for the dangers I had passed; And I loved her that she did pity them."

PRICE ON WHEAT

REMAINS UNCHANGED

Millers Are Offering $1.35 a Bushel for Grain—Live Stock Market Steady.

Fort Wayne millers and grain dealers have not changed their price on wheat per bushel, but have allowed it to remain the same as it has been for the past few days. It was reported that the price had again gone up to $1.40 a bushel, but millers state that they are still keeping their price at $1.35. It is possible, however, that there will be a rise in the quotation prices soon.

The live stock market remains very steady and local dealers are offering $1.25 as the top price on hogs. This price was reached several weeks ago and since that time it has neither moved up nor down. Other live stock markets are the same. Receipts are very slow.

Housewives found a limited supply of home-grown potatoes on the market Thursday morning. They were of the small variety and farmers were offering them at sale for $2.00 to $2.25 per bushel.

The recent rains have helped the tomato crop greatly and as a result they were plentiful Thursday on market. They retailed at $1.25 to $1.40 a bushel. Peaches sold for $1.50 a bushel. Pickle prices ranged from 15 to 25 cents a hundred.

QUITS ASYLUM AFTER 17 LONG YEARS THERE

Noted Artist, Released on Parole, Revels in Sights of Nature.

New York, Sept. 7.—A silent, gray little man, in a blue suit and brown fedora hat, rode along the Paterson plank road yesterday, his glances lighting upon the meadows, woodlands and river courses as the swift automobile unreeled the countryside. He was Ralph Albert Blakelock, whose paintings have an honored place in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and in scores of lesser galleries, and it was dawning on him that the end of a nightmare seventeen years long might be close at hand.

After a six months' parole from the Middletown State Hospital for the Insane had been granted him yesterday in the supreme court at Middletown, N. Y., Blakelock, accompanied by Dr. Maurice Ashley, of the State hospital, and Mrs. VanRensselaer Adams, one of the prime movers in raising the fund that is to support the painter in a private sanatorium, set out for Lynwood Lodge, in West Englewood, N. J.

Delighted with journey, with its frequent stops, delighted the patient. Still more did the automobile trip of nearly ten miles from Paterson to the Lynwood Lodge sanatorium in West Englewood. The train was nearly an hour late in getting into Paterson and the afternoon shadows had lengthened across the valleys when the party started up the plank road.

Fascination lurked in every turn of the road, every fence corner and every shifting cloud shadow. Even Easton park, with its name flaunted geometrically to the highway by hundreds of dusty pink geraniums failed to discourage him.

At Arcola the car swerved from the plank road to the state road, and bore on through Maywood and past the quaint old houses of Hackensack. It was only a few minutes then before it entered the grounds of the sanatorium. The faces of Blakelock's friends were slightly drawn as they led the way to the pleasant brick dormitory, where his room was. This was to be a test even more severe than the long ride. They threw open the door and let him enter first.

Halts for a Moment. For a moment he halted, swaying slightly. About the walls of the sunny room were portraits of artists whom he had known before the shadow fell upon him. In their midst was a little water color, simply framed, a winter landscape, painted by Blakelock in the days of his poverty, one of the many that no one then would buy.

Slowly Blakelock entered the room and slowly he inspected it, wall by wall, hesitating long before each of the faces that smiled down upon him. Still there was more to show him—and the sun was sinking. Blakelock followed his guides to a long, low wooden structure southeast of the dormitory.

There he played a piano and dreamed, lost in his own music.

At dinner he met the other inmates of the sanatorium, eighteen of them, and his nurse, Miss Helen Crosby. He greeted them all with a firm handshake and a clear, untroubled gaze.

These Are the New Styles That Go On Sale Tomorrow

As Always Priced At $1.00

The mere announcement that the new Wirthmor Waists are in, would bring to our store so many people who have bought them before that nothing further would be needed to be said about them.

But we want everyone to know about their merits for we know that when every wearer of waists learns how good they really are—that our present allotments will be entirely inadequate—and when that time comes we believe we'll be selling all or nearly all of the dollar waists that are sold.

TOWN IN FLAMES UNDER FIRE OF CZAR'S GUNS

HALICZ UNDER BOMBARDMENT

Beat Back Teutons Where Latter Were Once Near to Success.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The capture of German first-line trenches over a front of one mile before Verdun, was announced today by the French war office. The ground was won in the long contested sector east of the Meuse between the Vaux-Chapitre region and the town of Chenois. It is in this sector where the Germans most nearly approached a breach in the defenses of the city that the heaviest fighting has been in progress recently.

On the Somme front the principal activity of last night was on the initiative of the Germans, who made a determined effort to recapture from the British the small section of ground along the Guillemont-Combles highway known as Leuze wood. The German counter attack led to one of the fiercest man-to-man struggles with hand grenades and bayonets which have characterized recent fighting along the Somme. London reports officially that in the end the Germans were beaten back.

An intimation that the Somme offensive may soon be abandoned for the winter is contained in a dispatch from the British front. A staff officer is quoted as saying that if the British wait until spring before making renewed efforts there will be nearly four times the present great quantity of artillery and corresponding stores of ammunition.

A notable victory for Russians in Galicia is indicated in the official announcement from Petrograd. It says that the city of Halicz, sixty miles southeast of Lemberg, is under Russian bombardment and in flames. The capture of railroad lines in this vicinity also is reported.

Since the opening of the new Russian drive the heaviest pressure has been directed against the Austro-German lines above and below Lemberg, and there has been constant fighting before Halicz. This city is on the trunk line railroad running southeast from Lemberg to Stanislaw and Kolomea, and is also the southern terminus of another line. Its strategic importance is indicated further by the fact that it is on the Danube at its junction with the Carpa Lipa.

Petrograd, Sept. 7.—(Via London).—The Russians are bombarding the Galician town of Halicz, about sixty miles southwest of Lemberg, says the Russian official report issued today. The town is in flames. The Russian statement add that Russian troops have occupied the town.

FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR GUARD MEMBERS

Examination for Commission in U. S. Army Will Be Given on Oct. 16.

Lieut. Howard Miller, in command of the local recruiting office for the Indiana national guard, has received a letter from the department of war at Washington, D. C., which states that an examination will be given on October 16 for a commission in the United States regular army and that enlisted men in the guard will be eligible.

The department finds that each year there is a deficit in the number of men who graduate from the army schools who can fill a commissioned office in the army. The commission which is offered is the second lieutenant. Any man, whether he be a private, corporal or sergeant, is eligible to take the examination. However, he must be a member of the national guard.

The second man to be accepted at the recruiting station was Lester Klingman, aged 22 years, 601 East Croighton avenue, of this city. He took the examination late Wednesday afternoon, and was accepted and given transportation to Fort Benjamin Harrison. He left Thursday morning.

PENNSY TO SPEND VAST SUM TO ENTER DETROIT

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—Authorized announcement was made here today by the Pennsylvania railroad lines west of Pittsburg of their plan to enter Detroit, with an estimated expenditure of $40,000,000, to reach freight and passenger terminals there. The Pennsylvania line will be extended from Toledo to a point near the Detroit city limits, where connection will be made with the Pere Marquette railroad and that road's rails will be used to reach the Fort street station.

HUGHES COMES ON SEPT. 25

Will Spend Three Days in Speaking Campaign in Indiana.

Hert Announces Program for the Presidential Nominee.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, republican presidential nominee, will begin his speaking campaign in Indiana on September 25, according to the tentative itinerary announced today by Manager A. T. Hert of the republican western headquarters. He will spend three days in Indiana speaking in Indianapolis and all the larger cities. "The exact itinerary for Indiana was not announced."

Before coming to Indiana, Mr. Hughes will spend three days in Illinois and a day in Wisconsin. He expects to return to New York on September 28.

ASSAILS ADAMSON LAW.

Hampton Beach, N. H., Sept. 7.—Charles E. Hughes in an address here today referred to the Adamson law "not as an eight hour day law, but a wage law," and declared that failure of peaceful settlement of industrial disputes was but "another step from the abdication of government itself." His audience applauded loudly.

"We cannot afford to surrender what we have won for ourselves in this country," the nominee said. "What have we won? We have won the right to free discussion; a free press; a democratic form of government; free assembly, free legislation and an executive chosen by the people. We have left autocracy. We have left tyranny. We have left force. They shall not come back if we can prevent it."

"We have recently seen what I regard as a very deplorable surrender of that principle. I am for the arbitration of industrial disputes. That is in the interest of labor. Labor cannot afford to surrender that principle."

"We have recently had, at the proposal of the executive an act passed by congress confessedly in ignorance of the facts, confessedly in ignorance of what justice demands. It is not an eight hour day law. It is a wage law, and nobody knew whether it was just or not."

"Now, I am for justice in everything, but I propose that in all we do we shall investigate first and then legislate. Our methods in this country are of priceless value to us. It is only one step from peaceful settlement of such disputes to the denunciation of our courts and all the machinery of peaceful settlement. It is only another step to the abdication of the government itself."

Assigned to Infantry.

Walter C. Schlatter, 607 Riverside avenue, has enlisted for the United States army. He has enlisted for the infantry and will be sent to the Columbus barracks, Columbus, O. Capt. John J. Miller, United States army recruiting officer for this district, has been relieved and assigned to the Nineteenth infantry. Capt. J. E. Cusack, of the Eleventh cavalry, has been assigned by the war department to this district.

Man Entitled to Same Privileges as a Nule.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Shaving is not a labor, but a necessity and the state has no right to deny a man the privilege granted a mule, according to a brief filed in the state supreme court here by the attorneys of a Davenport barber arrested on complaint of the barbers' union for keeping his shop open on Sunday.

"If a man can cut a mule on Sunday he has a right to have his own head shaved, in a manner of speaking," says the brief.

NEW HOSPITAL TO BE BUILT

$50,000 STRUCTURE AT COUNTY FARM

Sum of $65,000 is Also Provided for Bridge at State Street.

The county council has rescinded its action refusing the request of the county commissioners for an appropriation of $50,000 for a county tuberculosis hospital and Thursday appropriated the sum, together with $65,000 for the State street bridge.

The action appropriating $65,000 for a bridge at Lafayette street was rescinded because there were no approaches and action allowing $10,000 for the fourth street bridge was also rescinded.

Levy is Made.

For the county hospital a levy of one and a half cents was made for maintenance and a half-cent levy for retiring bonds.

Work on the county hospital will begin in the spring, W. C. Schiwer, county commissioner, said Thursday. Work on the State street bridge will start as soon as possible.

Causes Rejoicing.

The action of the county council Thursday has caused general rejoicing among the members of the Anti-Tuberculosis society and others interested in the fight against the disease in this county. Since the establishment of the tuberculosis camp by the county, much good has been accomplished and several permanent cures effected, notwithstanding the limited facilities. With a new hospital building, however, much more can be done.

Victory for Commissioners.

The county commissioners have worked in complete harmony with the officials of the Anti-Tuberculosis society and have done everything within their power to promote the camp. It was upon their recommendation that an appropriation for the erection of the hospital was asked of the county council.

Objection was raised Wednesday by Councilman Hattersley to the appropriation on the ground that he believed a landscape architect should be secured to lay out the grounds, that plans and figures should first be obtained and that much more time was needed to more thoroughly investigate the matter.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR TRIP ACROSS COUNTRY

War Department Message to Be Carried by Auto from Ocean to Ocean.

"As far as we are able to go, we are ready for the big transcontinental run from Plymouth, Mass., to Seattle, Wash., carrying a message of the war department, and we fully expect the message to be delivered in 120 hours or less."

This announcement was made Thursday at the national headquarters of the Yellowstone Trail association, Aberdeen, South Dakota, by H. O. Cooley, general agent.

The leather wallet in which the message will be enclosed and the American flag, and trail pennant to be carried, have been sent to Plymouth. The message has been written by the secretary of war and sent to Boston, to be carried in person to Plymouth by a representative of the war department, and at 12 o'clock noon, on Monday, September 11, it will start on the long journey over the Yellowstone trail.

Charles L. Biedervolf, secretary of the Commercial club has been named relay manager for this territory.

Monday, Aug. 11, the message will be in New England. From seven in the evening until the dawn of Tuesday, it will be crossing New York and Pennsylvania. Tuesday it will traverse Ohio and Indiana, and arrive at Chicago about midnight. Daylight of Wednesday will find it crossing Wisconsin and Wednesday evening it will dash across Minnesota. Thursday morning's dawn will find it half way across South Dakota, and evening at Miles City, Mont. By Friday morning it will have climbed the continental divide at Butte, and Friday evening will find it near Spokane, Wash., ready for the final dash over the Cascades and to Seattle, where it is due at 9:00 a. m. Saturday.

Sixty-four cars and drivers will be engaged. Every precaution against accident and delay is being taken. The message will be carefully received for at each general relay, and the Yellowstone Trail association is required to report daily to the war department of the progress. It is the acid test of road and organization.

IMPOSTORS AT WORK GATHERING UP PAPER

Show Note Which States That Funds Are to Go to Open Air School.

Several persons have telephoned to the office of the Anti-Tuberculosis league within the past week stating that impostors are at work collecting waste paper and rags which have been laid aside for the benefit of the open air school.

The men come to the residences and say they have come after their waste paper and then show a note which states that the funds raised are to go toward the school fund. Several times the collector for the Anti-Tuberculosis league has come to a house and the lady tells him that a man from the league was there just the day before and had gotten all the waste paper and rags she had saved.

Officials of the league know the parties who are exercising this means to collect the paper and state that it is not stopped that other means will be taken. This same "stunt" was tried by an organization in Indianapolis last year and people absolutely refused to give them their waste paper.

Residents of the city will know the collector for the Anti-Tuberculosis league by the double cross pin which he wears on his coat lapel and by the wagon which also bears the same emblem.

Wagon No. 2 was put to work this week as it was found that there was too much work for one man.

New Secretary to Report Next Month

Edwin W. Peirce, of Boston, recently employed to be general secretary of Fort Wayne's new Y. M. C. A., has had experience with the Detroit, St. Louis and Boston Young Men's Christian associations. He comes to Fort Wayne from Boston, beginning his duties about the middle of October. Mr. Peirce's first Y. M. C. A. secretaryship was at Keokuk, Iowa. He is efficient in all the various departments of Y. M. C. A. executive work.

YOUNG COUPLE TELL OF THEIR MARRIAGE

Miss Edith Orrock and Robert Polhamus United in Wedlock Sept. 1.

Miss Edith Bond Orrock, daughter of Mrs. Edith Orrock, and Mr. Robert Polhamus, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Polhamus, were married in Petoskey, Mich., by Rev. L. H. Slaybaugh, at the Park Memorial Baptist church, on September 1. Word of the marriage of the young couple reached this city Wednesday evening, but the parents considered the story improbable as each of the young people concerned was at their own home. Thursday morning, however, the young couple confessed, as word from Petoskey confirmed the marriage there last Friday. Mrs. Orrock and her daughter had planned to move to Cleveland and "Bob" Polhamus, as he is known, had been at Bay View for a few weeks on account of being laid up. Fearing the prospective railroad strike, they came home on Saturday and Mrs. Orrock has been suffering with a serious return of the fever ever since.

The intention of the young couple had been to continue his special school studies for a year or more and not tell of their marriage. As it is, however, Mr. Polhamus will continue in business with his father, begun this summer, instead of going to school. Further than that plans are not yet definite. Both young Mr. and Mrs. Polhamus are very well known and members of old families of the city. FORD SUES CHICAGO PAPER FOR MILLION

Auto Maker Charges That Tribune Called Him an Anarchist.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Suit for $1,000,000 was filed by Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, against the Chicago Tribune, in the United States district court here today.

Mr. Ford asks for personal damages as compensation for an editorial printed in the Tribune June 23, which it is charged called Ford an "anarchist."

FIGURES HAVE GROWN.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—It was announced here today that Alfred Lucking, personal attorney for Henry Ford, the manufacturer, is in Chicago to file suit for $500,000 in Ford's name against the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Ford asks personal damages as compensation for an editorial printed in the Tribune which it is charged, called Ford "an anarchist."

The editorial was printed more than two months ago. According to the announcement which came from Mr. Lucking's office the word "anarchist" was used in the headline of the editorial. The editorial itself, censured Mr. Ford's ideas and methods. It was learned that Ford has had the suit under contemplation for several weeks. The papers were not completed before Mr. Lucking left Detroit last night. They will be signed in Chicago today. It is understood.

Conferees on Revenue Bill Eliminate Mail Retaliation Feature.

AMERICANS ABOARD MIGHT BE HARMED

Hitches Between House and Senate Bring Delay in Adjournment.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Conferees on the emergency revenue bill today struck out the Phelan amendment to empower the president to retaliate against citizens of belligerent nations which interfered with United States mails. The argument which prevailed in the conference was that it might work great hardships to Americans in foreign countries by counter-retaliation.

The conference also abandoned the Chamberlain amendment to prohibit admission of Pacific ocean salmon or halibut through a foreign country except in bond from an American port. This, it was decided, might develop a commercial war with Canada and bring about retaliation against American Atlantic coast fisheries.

The conference committee had not reached final agreement when the house met, but they were reaching the stage of mutual concession in hope of getting an agreement some time today. The delay threatens to postpone adjournment until Saturday. Although there have been rumors of eleven-hour tangles that might carry the session into next week, administration leaders think that unlikely.

POLICY WASN'T WORTH THE RISK, HE ASSERTS

German Chancellor Defends Action in Abandoning Submarine Course.

London, Sept. 7.—According to definite information reaching Berlin, Switzerland, from Germany, says a dispatch to the Wireless Press, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German imperial chancellor, upon being questioned at the August meeting of federal council as to why he yielded to the demands of the United States regarding the unrestricted torpedoing of ships on the high seas, replied emphatically that the value of the submarine was exaggerated by the adherents of wholesale torpedoing.

The chancellor said that insistence on an unrestricted submarine warfare would cause war between Germany and the United States and that the results of unlimited torpedoing would not justify such a policy. Elaborating this point the chancellor is quoted as saying that Germany could not effectively blockade England nor cut off England's food supplies.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS OF FIRST WARD ORGANIZE

Harry Hilgemann is Principal Speaker at Meeting Wednesday Evening.

Harry Hilgemann, attorney, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the First Ward Young Men's Democratic league held Wednesday night at democratic headquarters. He spoke at length on the present administration and explained why, for the first time in a generation, the government at Washington had proven it was for the public.

Harry Muller, who is leading the organization of young democrats in Allen county, also gave an address.

A committee has been appointed to select club rooms and much enthusiasm was shown by those present over the prospect of having a permanent organization.

Election of Officers.

There was an election of officers as follows: Byron Parrot, secretary, and Clifford Gardner, treasurer. Herman Martin, leader of the First ward quartet, has been selected by the chairman of the campaign songs committee, to look after the work in the First ward, Alvin Bullerman, captain of the First ward, presided.

The First ward quartet consists of Herman Martin, Owen Romick, Harry Rossetol and Walter Rossetol. They sang several selections at the meeting and are proving a prominent part of the campaign.

Meeting at Huntertown.

A meeting of Perry and Ellettsburg township democrats will be held in the Woodmen's hall at Huntertown Saturday night. An organization will be formed. Guy A. Colrick, attorney, will speak. There is much enthusiasm over the Huntertown meeting, they have notified democratic headquarters in Fort Wayne of their intention of holding the meeting. Many party workers from Fort Wayne will attend the meeting.

There was a meeting of the Eighth ward young democrats Wednesday night and plans were taken up for organization. Another meeting will be held soon.

JUDGE SENDS CHECK TOWARD THE FUND

Judge R. K. Erwin, of the supreme bench, has forwarded a check for $10 to the committee in charge of receiving funds for dependents of soldiers who went to the border. This is the second donation coming from Judge Erwin.

W. N. Ballou, secretary of the committee handling the soldier fund, says that the second month's payment toward the fund is now due and that letters will have to be sent out unless more money is forthcoming.

STRIKE FAILS TO HIT HARD

Street Railway Break in New York Has Not Yet Tied Up the City.

Figures on Number of Men Out Vary in Estimates from 2,000 to 9,000.

New York, Sept. 7.—A strike was inaugurated on the subway and elevated lines and several surface systems of the Interborough Rapid Transit company today, but up to noon the city appeared only slightly affected. Union leaders who demand abrogation of the company of the so-called "hiss" and "servant" contracts binding the employees not to ask wage increases for two years, claimed that 8,000 men had walked out, including 4,000 on the subway and elevated systems.

Traction officials asserted that not more than 2,000 men had quit and with the aid of strikebreakers the company was maintaining normal schedules on subway and "L." The "green car" system, operated by the New York Railways company, was chiefly affected apparently not more than 30 percent of these surface cars running.

Except in Manhattan and the Bronx, only in Manhattan and the Bronx boroughs no railway lines were affected. Meanwhile traction officials admitting "the gravity of the situation is such that at any moment a crisis may arise," were providing stocks of provisions for the strikebreakers, many of whom have come from other cities.

15,000 TO BE MUSTERED OUT

Order Applies to Guardsmen Recently Ordered to Return from Border.

OTHERS TO REMAIN THERE FOR PRESENT

Fort Wayne Company Does Not Come Under New Release Provision.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The fifteen thousand guardsmen returned from the border by the recent order of the war department were today ordered mustered out of the federal service. The guardsmen remaining on the border stay there for the present.

The war department official announcement was made in the following statement:

"The secretary of war directs that all the organizations of the national guard in the federal service recently ordered from the border to their respective mobilization camps be mustered out of the federal service as soon as practical and returned to the normal status of national guard troops except in the case of the Fourteenth New York regiment, which is to be held in service at its mobilization camp pending the prevalence in that regiment of para-typhoid."

"As soon as it can be safely done this regiment also will be mustered out. Similar precaution should be taken with any other organization returning from the border suffering from any infection or which is under suspicion of being infected. The troops affected are three regiments from New York, two from Illinois, two from Missouri, one from California, one from Oregon, one from Washington and one from Louisiana. These units comprise in the aggregate about 15,000 national guardsmen.

The plan for the mustering out of the various departmental commanders within whose jurisdiction these organizations are placed. In many instances, where there is no reason to hold them because of disease infection, the mustering out will be done immediately. It is expected that all the organizations except the Fourteenth New York will be mustered out as soon as the necessary routine is concluded. The Yale militia mobilized at Tobyhanna, Pa., was ordered to Niantic, Conn., where it will be mustered out.

The regiments affected by the order are: Second, Fourteenth and Seventy-first New York infantry; First and Fourth New Jersey infantry, Fourth

PENSION INCREASE FOR WIDOWS PASSES

Senate Approves Bill for $20 a Month to Those Above 70 Years.

Washington, Sept. 7.—A bill giving to widows of officers or enlisted men who served in the civil or Mexican wars or the war of 1812, and who have reached the age of 70 years, a pension of $20 a month instead of $12 a month was passed today by the senate. It already has passed the house. Widows of civil war soldiers dropped because of marriage to another person are restored to the roll by the bill. The brief debate on the bill did not disclose the additional cost to the government.

Shipping Bill Signed.

President Wilson today signed the shipping bill. It authorizes government organization of a corporation or corporations with capitalization of not more than $50,000,000 to buy or lease ships and put them in trade if they cannot be leased for operation to private capital.

Charles D. Mahaffie, of Portland, Ore., was nominated by President Wilson today as solicitor of the department of the interior.

WOMAN'S ATTORNEYS REPUDIATE HER TALE

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Attorneys for Mrs. Ira Barnes, held in connection with the death of her husband, James R. Barnes, Chicago agent of a New York firm who was shot down in Washington park Tuesday night, today repudiated the woman's alleged confession to the police.

Department detectives made public admission, attributed to Mrs. Barnes, that she had killed her husband as the result of a quarrel following an attempt to patch up differences which were to have been aired in a divorce suit set for trial yesterday.

ALL MOVE TO ASBURY PARK

White House Executive Offices to Be Transferred

TOMORROW.
NEAR PRESIDENT ON HIS VACATION
Wilson's Campaign to Be Made from Front Porch at Shadow Lawn.

Washington, Sept. 7.—All arrangements were completed today for the transfer of the executive offices of the white house from Washington to Asbury Park, N. J., tomorrow. For the first time since Mr. Wilson became president, a complete staff of secretaries, clerks, telegraph operators and other attaches will accompany him on his vacation. For the last three summers he has spent short periods at Cornish, N. H., but then he took only his personal stenographer with him. Although President Wilson plans to spend most of his time at Shadow Lawn, the estate at Long Branch, N. J., he will go to Asbury Park as often as necessary to visit the executive offices and attend to public business. A suite of rooms has been engaged in a modern office building there and office furniture from the white house has been sent already.

The president will receive many of his political visitors at Shadow Lawn, and the broad porch from which he delivered his speech of acceptance is expected to be the scene of frequent receptions to delegations of democrats from different states. Because of Mr. Wilson's decision to make only a few political speeches away from Shadow Lawn, his campaign will be of the front porch variety.

President Wilson will have with him during his stay at Shadow Lawn, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Helen Woodrow Jones, his cousin, the Misses Lucy and Mary Smith of New Orleans, also cousins, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the white house physician, and Mrs. Grayson. Secretary Tamm, who has a cottage at Asbury Park, near the executive offices. Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo, who have a cottage at Spring Lake, only a few miles away, will be frequent visitors.

Mr. Wilson plans to leave here tomorrow afternoon for Atlantic City, where he will speak tomorrow night before the convention of the National Women's Suffrage association. After spending the night at a hotel there he will go by motor to Shadow Lawn, to remain until Sept. 20, when he goes to St. Louis to speak to a convention of underwriters.

The appellate court yesterday sanctioned their release on bonds totalling $40,000.

Automobiles Sold at Grabbill Belonged to Health Department.

Carl Hornback and Edward Schemenauer, both of Sandusky, Ohio, confessed auto bandits, are held under $1,000 bond, for further investigation of their case, in which they stole two Ford machines from the Toledo health department and later sold them at Grabbill.

Their hearing was set for September 14 in police court, Thursday morning, by Attorney Charles Ryan, who acted as special judge in the absence of Judge Kerr. The young men will be returned to Toledo for final trial. Louis Latker, clothier, 1004 Calhoun street, caused the arrest of the two men when he doubted the validity of a check for $75 which they presented as payment for two suits of clothes, Wednesday. Latker telephoned to Eli Conrad, farmer, at Grabbill, about the checks and Conrad said the check was good but that he had dated the paper September 16, because he feared that there might be something wrong with the automobile which he had bought for that amount. The young men had erased the one and made the check read September 6.

Latker notified police. When Hornback and Schemenauer returned to the store for their suits, which were being altered, they were detained by officers. The young men seemed confused and were taken to the station.

Hornback made a confession at once when he was questioned in the office of Chief Lenz. He said they had taken the one automobile on Monday and had sold it on Tuesday to Conrad at Grabbill. The other machine, which had been sold to Allan Hurst for $40 two weeks before, they had also taken from the streets of Toledo. Both cars belonged to the Toledo health department.

Both machines were brought to Fort Wayne by police from Grabbill on Thursday morning. They will be held at the station until Toledo authorities come for them.

Hornback and Schemenauer said they had never stolen anything until two weeks ago when they decided that Ford cars were too easy to take and dispose of to leave standing along the city curbs.

SENATORS NEAR BLOWS IN ANGRY DISCUSSION

Corrupt Practice Bill Debate Approaches Stage of Fisticuffs.

Washington, Sept. 7.—"If the senator charges that this is a violation of the law he has sweetbread for brains," was the exclamation hurled at Senator Curtis, of Kansas, republican, by Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, democrat, in a debate on the Owen corrupt practices act in the senate yesterday afternoon.

The remark by the Arizona senator followed the reading by Senator Curtis of a letter written by Ashurst to a constituent reciting his record as a basis of support. Curtis said he understood that 70,000 of them had been franked out by Ashurst in violation of the privilege.

Calling Senator Curtis the "Pharisee from Kansas" and brushing aside several chairs, Senator Ashurst strode across the center aisle and shook his finger under Curtis' nose. Senator Smoot, seated just between the two, moved back in mock alarm as Ashurst approached. Senator Curtis smiled, but kept his seat.

A little later Mr. Ashurst turned on Senator Penrose, who said he had noticed a "copper lobby" around the capitol whose members had been talking with the Arizona senator.

"If," said Mr. Ashurst, "the senator means to say that my vote has been influenced by a copper lobby or any other lobby he lies." Several senators objected to this language, and Senator Ashurst after explaining he had said "if" agreed to withdraw his remark.

Mrs. Fursman herself remained at school until 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the children had taken in charge mysteriously disappeared from the room, while she was answering a telephone call.

WEATHER MAN SHOWS EVERY TRICK OF ART

Hail and Rain Cause Damage in Many Sections of Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 7.—Scattered storms, with nearly every trick of the weather man's art, caused widespread damage in Indiana yesterday. rain and hail being dashed upon several counties by a wind which approached a cyclone. Indianapolis shared in a heavy down-pour, but little wind accompanied the rain and no material damage was reported.

The greatest damage reported was in Jefferson and Blackford counties, where the loss from wrecked buildings and crop damage amounted to thousands of dollars. At Madison the wind was the highest in twenty-five years. Hail caused immense loss to corn and tobacco growers. In two hours the rainfall was 3.08 inches, resulting in wash-outs on the Pennsylvania railroad which delayed trains.

The loss in Blackford county from an early morning storm was estimated at $70,000. Crops suffered from the down-pour, while the wind unroofed a factory and several buildings in Hartford City and put a new cluster lighting system there out of commission. Hail also accompanied the storm in that region.

Counties in the northern part of the state were among those reporting damage, considerable property loss resulting near Rochester. The storms seemed to originate in the north and swept to the Ohio river, but many counties did not receive a drop of water.

EXPECT A PRICE DROP AS JURY PROBE OPENS

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The federal investigation into the causes of the prevailing high prices for fruit and vegetables was expected to begin today with the organization of the federal grand jury which was impaneled yesterday. Simultaneously with the announcement of possible criminal proceedings as the result of the investigation came the announcement of commission merchants and retailers that they expected prices of many fruits and vegetables to return soon to the level of last summer. This, it was said today, would mean a drop of 50 per cent or more for some products.

WANTS CENSOR FOR MOVIES.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 7.—Mayor J. H. Mellett is quoted as favoring passage by the city council an ordinance creating a board of censors for the supervision of motion picture films in local theaters. He is said to have declared that some of the films being shown here regularly are demoralizing to children. It is understood that an ordinance measure will be introduced at the next meeting of the council providing for creation of the proposed board.

GERMAN REVERSES AT VERDUN.

French Capture First Line Trenches Before Besieged City.

Paris, Sept. 7.—The French have captured the German first line trenches over a front of one mile on the Verdun front, the war office announced today. The breach in the German line was effected on the front northeast of Verdun between the Vaux-Chaprot region and the town of Chenols. The French took 250 prisoners.

Turtulak, a fortified Rumanian town on the Danube about fifty miles southeast of Bucharest, has been evacuated by the Rumanians, according to the Russian official statement issued today.

The French aerial service took an active part in the recent actions on the Somme front says a French official statement. In air fights yesterday two German machines were brought down by French pilots and four other German aeroplanes were forced to descend in damaged condition.

UPHILL WORK NEARLY OVER?

British Say Capture of Ginchy Is Only Remaining Difficult Task.

With the British Army in France (Via London), Sept. 7.—(4:50 a. m.)—The British feel that their uphill work in this latest offensive is over with the exception of the taking of Ginchy. For over two months now their fight has been one to gain high ground over the broad commanding front. Guillemont, now in their possession, is the last of the old second line trenches and from the Somme to Thiepval the Germans now have been blasted out of their positions.

"This is not the only point in our favor," said a British staff officer. "The Germans chose their ground when they built this line of fortifications which they considered by their own admission to be invulnerable. When the British first smashed through, the Germans said that we were in a sack. So we were, in one sense. But we had to make an opening in that solid line of defense as a start in our plans. We knew the hardest work would come after the great main attack, and this is so far accomplished that it is the Germans now who are in a sack."

The British and French success this week had an extraordinary effect on both armies. The ability of the French to make a second drive over the broad front, and the same sector as that of the big offensive of the first of July, brought conviction to the professional skeptics.

"Go over and see the French," said the British officer, "if you want to see an army with its head in the air."

Not even the weather can dampen the high spirits of both armies. The rain has been of the persistent pitter-patter kind. Men who came out of the trenches plastered with chalky clay, who had been changing under a weight of sixty pounds equipment and then lying in miniature ponds made by shells, or on the wet earth digging and wallowing in the mud, say Guillemont is taken and that pays for their hardships.

Whether private in his shelter tent or general in his automobile, if you ask them that old question, "When do you think the war will be over?" you get no opinion of any possible conclusion short of next summer.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING.

Germans Beaten Back in Attempt to Retake Leuzee Wood.

London, Sept. 7.—A German attempt to regain possession of Leuzee wood on the Somme front last night led to hand-to-hand fighting with the British. The war office announced today that the Germans were beaten back.

A Zurich dispatch says that on account of the violent opposition with which the Hungarian government is meeting in parliament, measures have been taken to end the session if the situation becomes more aggravated. Premier Tisza, the dispatch says, informed the leaders of the opposition parties that he had procured from Emperor Francis Joseph a decree proroguing parliament and that he would take the decree with him to every sitting and pro-

RUSSIANS OCCUPY PASS.

Bucharest, Sept. 6.—(Via London, Sept. 7.)—Rumanian troops have occupied Gyergyó-Ditro-Orova pass on the northern and northwest frontier of Rumania, says the official statement issued by the Rumanian war department today. Seven guns, a number of machine guns and important food stores were captured from the Austro-Hungarians. German and Bulgarian forces having received numerous reinforcements, continue to attack with great violence the Rumanian fortress of Turtulak. The garrison of the fortress is ceaselessly counter attacking the Rumanian statement says, and the losses on each side are said to have been serious.

OVER 20,000 RUMANIANS TAKEN.

Bulgarian and German Victory at Turtulak Was Notable One.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—More than 20,000 Rumanians were taken prisoner when Bulgarian and German troops captured the Rumanian fortress of Turtulak, says the official statement, issued today by the German headquarters. The official statement says that in the capture of the Rumanian fortress more than 100 guns were taken.

Others Agreed To. President with retaliatory power against interferences with American commerce and embargoes on American goods to foreign nations were agreed to. They have the sanction of the state department, while the Phelan amendment did not.

The conference then approached the wine tax and dyestuff tariff, which became the principal stumbling blocks. Majority Leader Kitchin moved to strike out the senate amendments increasing the duties on coal tar, medicinal derivatives and flavoring extracts. There was no fight, however, on the increases in the rates on intermediate and finished dyestuffs.

The conference eliminated the $300,000 continuing appropriation for the tariff commission. Three hundred thousand dollars was retained for 1917, but as the bill now stands the appropriation for future years was eliminated. The house managers yielded the demand for restoration of the tax on copper when the senate conferees threw out the stamp tax. The income, inheritance and corporation stock taxes as fixed in the senate bill were approved.

Some Tentative Action. Tentatively the conferees had agreed to eliminate senate proposals for stamp taxes on various kinds of commercial papers and steamship and Pullman tickets, to abandon the house provision for tax on copper refiners and to increase from ten to twelve and a half per cent the net profit tax on munitions manufacturers in order to raise $5,000,000 additional, which the stamp tax would have supplied. The continuing appropriation for the tariff commission was also said to have been stricken out. Revision of the wine tax schedule and the Phelan amendment authorizing retaliatory action on foreign governments which discriminate against American trade, was being considered by the conferees, it was said.

Among the provisions whose retention it was thought would be recommended, are the license tax on corporation stock, increased duty on dye stuffs, higher income and inheritance taxes, tariff commission and the retaliatory steps against foreign ships. Senator Owen was intent today on continuing his fight for the corrupt practices bill, which developed a torrent of bitter personal remarks yesterday after the senate had voted to take up the bill.

Pending the revenue bill report the conferees on the general deficiencies bill were holding up their recommendations.

No Protest Made.

Secretary Lansing said today, no protest had yet been made by any foreign government against the trade reprisal provisions of the revenue bill, although the legislation has been discussed informally with the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice. The ambassador conferred again today with Mr. Lansing. The American embassy at London cabled today that the British foreign office will give special consideration of difficulties where large amounts of tonnage are not involved in the negotiations of the department to secure elimination of certain Americans from the "blacklist" the statement was officially described here as not related to or the results of the retaliatory legislation. It relates to individual negotiations.

SOME ENGLISH COMMENT.

London, Sept. 7.—Commenting on the amendment to the revenue bill passed by the United States senate Tuesday night, empowering the president to retaliate against interference with American commerce, the Manchester Guardian says that although those who see in it no more than a flourish, having a special virtue on the eve of election, may be "right," nevertheless we should do well to note two things.

"First, these reprisals are directed against the allies and primarily against ourselves; second, they are popular in America."

The Guardian considers it is not generally realized here how strong a sentiment has been aroused throughout the United States by the blacklist policy and interference with mails and asks, "Is the foreign office convinced these practices of ours are so useful as to counterbalance the weakening of American sympathy they involve, or that they cannot be modified so as to meet American objections without seriously impairing any utilities they may have for ourselves?"

If the carmen can carry out their threats to halt surface as well as subway and elevated traffic, New York faces the biggest and most vital strike in its history. The geographical formation of Manhattan is long and narrow—the wide distribution of population of the greater city and the concentration of the business makes New York peculiarly susceptible to any interruption of street car traffic.

When the workers of the city started for their places of employment today the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employees which is conducting the strike, had been unable to tie up the subway and elevated lines, but had succeeded in crippling some of the most important surface lines.

With Aid of Strike-Breakers. With the aid of nearly 3,000 strike-breakers and under police protection the Interborough Rapid Transit company was running its trains on subway and "I" almost on normal schedules. The strike of the Interborough employees has spread, however, to the carmen of the New York Railways company, which operates all but two of the important surface lines in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. Lines in Brooklyn in the system of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company are thus far at peace.

Approximately 18,000 employees are affected. The immediate cause of the strike is the refusal of the Interborough company to release the men from an agreement to seek further improvement in working conditions for a period of two years after the advance in pay which the men received last month. Behind these demands, however, is a contest over the unionization of the street car workers of the city, among whom the amalgamated association has gained a strong footing only during the last few months.

The traction chiefs declared they could maintain service on the subway and elevated lines, but expressed fear that police protection would not be adequate to enable them to keep the regular number of surface cars running.

The public service commission has started a general investigation of the strike and subpoenaed the president and general manager of the Interborough company and officers of the employees' unions to appear before the commission this morning. Several instances of elevated trains being bombarded with stones and bottles, thrown from roofs, were reported to the police shortly before 9 o'clock. Reserves rushed to the scenes of disorder entered the buildings and chased from the roofs gangs of men said to have been seen carrying missiles. At 9 o'clock the Interborough reported that express and local trains were running on normal schedule on both subway and elevated lines and with but few changes from the regular crews.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN HELD AS AUTO BANDIT

Motorcycle Cop and Chauffeur Charged by Two

With Holdup.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Policeman Fred Hague, of the motorcycle squad, was held in $10,000 bonds yesterday as an auto bandit. He lives at 5466 University avenue, and is unmarried. James J. Flynn, a chauffeur, 1613 East Fifty-third street, arrested with Hague, also was held. He is a son of Policeman Edward Flynn.

The two men are accused of beating and robbing Solomon H. Goldberg, of 811 Drexel square, and Mrs. Henry M. Bennett, 5008 Harper avenue. They admit having struck Goldberg after his automobile blocked the path of their machine, but deny having robbed him or Mrs. Bennett.

Story of Accuser. When Hague and Flynn were arraigned before Judge Gemmill, Goldberg, who is president of the Hump Hairpin company, 1723 Michigan boulevard, told the story of the beating and the alleged robbery.

"Mrs. Bennett and I were riding in my auto Saturday night," Goldberg said. "We stopped the machine at Fifty-fifth street and Lake Park avenue, where the paving is torn up.

"While the machine was standing there another machine, in which Hague and Flynn were riding with a woman, approached. The men shouted at me to get the machine out of their way and cursed me. Flynn jumped out of his machine and leaped onto the running board of my car and struck at me. I drew a revolver and drove him away.

"They followed us to Mrs. Bennett's residence, where both men got into our auto and beat me and Mrs. Bennett. Then they drove away, and I found that my pocket was torn out and $65 I had was gone. Mrs. Bennett's diamond ring, valued at $190, had been torn from her finger and also was missing.

"The men tried to jerk a gold chain from Mrs. Bennett's neck, but it broke and fell down her waist. It was a brutal attack."

Other Side of Story. Goldberg did not display any weapon nor did Flynn or I make any attempt to attack him in Lake Park avenue," Hague told Captain Lavin. "As his machine was being driven away followed to Fifty-first street, where Goldberg stopped his machine. Goldberg stood on the running board and showed a chief of staff star and said he was a 'plain clothes man.' Then Goldberg drew the revolver. Flynn shouted to me and I went over and knocked the revolver out of Goldberg's hand. It was just a fight. There was no robbery."

Ellsworth Fox has been confined to his home with a bad case of tonsillitis.

"HANDSOMEST CANDIDATE" IS SNOWED UNDER BY CALIFORNIA VOTERS.

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 7.—The fatal "press agent beauty" of Willis Booth, citizen of Los Angeles, proved his undoing in a race with Governor Hiram Johnson for the republican United States senatorial nomination in California.

Johnson has secured the nomination by an overwhelming majority.

Early in the campaign Booth's press agent, "pulled the prize bloomer" of western politics when he wrote the following description of his candidate, evidently intended to appeal to feminine voters:

"He'll make one of the handsomest senators ever sent from California. He is tall and straight, of graceful and powerful build. His keen but friendly gray eyes enliven a set of fine features. He is clean-shaven, his hair is gray, and his skin is a healthy olive."

Johnson used this "beauty talk" with effect in his campaign and it became the joke of the state.

Men and women voters alike showed their disinclination to send a man to the United States senate, whose chief qualification, according to his own press agent, was his personal beauty.

TON MAN BLEW OFF HIS HEAD

J. D. Brown, Well Known in Wells County, Commits Suicide in California.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 7.—In a letter received by Mrs. Ella Reasoner, of East Main street, from her son, Dr. Charles Reasoner, word of the death by suicidal shooting of J. D. Brown, a civil war veteran and former resident, is told. Brown shot his head off with a shot gun on the night of August 31, at his home in San Diego, Cal., the letter states.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—James D. Brown, the victim of the suicidal act, lived in Bluffton a good many years ago, and while a resident here he served as a member of the city council. He moved from this city to Hartford City.

AGED MINISTER DEAD.

Rev. Thomas E. Lancaster Passes Away at Son's Home in Logansport.

Columbia City, Sept. 7.—Rev. Thomas Edward Lancaster, father of Charles E. Lancaster, of this city, and Fred Lancaster, of Logansport, died at the latter's home Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, after an illness of several days' duration. He had attained the remarkable age of 90 years, 2 months and 23 days, and his passing was due to a general wearing out of a body that had experienced years of service and activity. Death came peacefully and he quietly passed into the eternal sleep.

HOARD CHILD IMPROVES.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—Kellia Hoard, of Washington township, spent Tuesday evening in Fort Wayne at the Lutheran hospital, where he visited his five-year-old niece, Alice Hoard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoard, of Washington township, who was taken Saturday to the hospital and operated upon by Drs. H. A. Duemling, of Fort Wayne, and O. W. Grissler, of this city, for appendicitis. The appendix, though causing trouble only twenty-four hours, had in that time become ruptured, but the little girl rallied nicely from the operation and will be able to return home in the usual course of time.

RUNS NAIL IN FOOT.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—While climbing over a fence Wednesday morning, Allie Baker, of Washington township, ran a large nail through his foot. The nail penetrated the foot in front of the ankle and protruded an inch through the bottom of it. He was unable to pull it out, so he had to walk to the house, a short distance, and by the use of wire pinners removed it. It was very painful, and Dr. White was called. Every precaution is being taken to prevent blood poisoning, but he will have a very sore foot.

AGED COUPLE SEPARATE.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—The short-lived romance of Charles Farrar and Clara Shaugnessy, both past 75 years of age, came to an end in the circuit court when Judge S. E. Cook granted her petition for a divorce. Her maiden name was restored and she was granted $10 attorney fees and Farrar was ordered to pay the costs. The couple were married last spring and within a few days Mrs. Farrar filed suit for divorce. The marriage attracted unusual attention because of the age and prominence of the parties.

PRUNING KNIFE USED.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—The county council met in the regular September session and went over the estimates of the county officials and commissioners of the county for 1917, for the first time. The council had its pruning knife out and made cuts wherever it thought there was any chance that any part of this year's funds would be left over. The excuse for doing this was that the councilmen could come back as they did last July and make additional appropriations if it was necessary.

WILL VOTE SEPT. 29.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 7.—The board of county commissioners of Whitley county, in session Wednesday, decided to call an election for Columbia township for voters outside the corporate limits of the city, to determine at the polls whether or not they desire a saloon, or road house, in their territory, and the date for the holding of said election was set for Friday, Sept. 29.

DEFEATED BY TWO VOTES.

Albion, Ind., Sept. 7.—At a special election held in Noble township for a three mile stretch of free gravel road, the voters defeated the proposition by two votes. Apparently people of Noble county are not much in favor of good roads, as several such improvements have been turned down in various townships during the summer.

LARGE BARN BURNS.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 7.—A large barn, belonging to Leonard Deist, living one mile north of Poe, was struck by lightning at eight-thirty o'clock last night and completely destroyed. The barn contained forty tons of hay, a wagon and harness, but the stock and horses were saved.

INJURIES ARE SERIOUS.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—Clarence Smith, of Union township, is reported seriously ill from injuries he suffered last week when his wagon upset. He was internally injured and serious complications have developed.

MAY LIFT QUARANTINE.

Columbia City, Sept. 7.—The two children of William Goudy, suspected of having infantile paralysis, show no further symptoms of the disease and the home will probably be released from quarantine in a few days.

DOLPH MUST MAKE

PAYMENTS OR QUIT

Judge Cook Sets September 16 as New Sale Date—Promoter Is Back $6,000.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 7.—Judge S. E. Cook, in winding up the first day of the September term of court, issued an ultimatum to Fred A. Dolph, the Chicago promoter who purchased the short line last spring with a payment of $5,000 and a vast amount of optimism and promises, demanding that all payments be made by September 12, or the road will be resold. This is probably the most drastic action the judge has taken in regard to the C. B. & C. since it entered his care several years ago and people interested in the fate of the line are watching to see the results of the entry made yesterday.

BIG PARADE IS PLANNED.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 7.—That the mammoth school parade and pageant showing the history of Indiana from its early settlement to the present time to be staged on Friday of the DeKalb county centennial celebration in Auburn on October 4, 5 and 6, will be the greatest parade ever attempted in this section of Indiana is evident from the plans already made for this big feature of the celebration.

GOODRICH AT BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—Republican County Chairman H. L. Troutman announces that the first gun of the republican campaign in Wells county will be fired on Monday, September 11, when the Hon. James P. Goodrich, republican candidate for governor, will address the citizens of Bluffton and Wells county. The meeting will be held in the circuit court room at 7:30 p. m.

FOUR YOUTHS ARRESTED.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 7.—Four boys, each about 15 years of age, have been arrested by Officer Moon on charges of petit larceny and delinquency. The boys taken in custody were Fred Hoover, Walter Becraft, Dewey Richardson and Ross Black. It is probable that the alleged offenders will be arraigned in juvenile court in the near future.

NEW TEACHERS AT VAN WERT.

Van Wert, O., Sept. 7.—Three teachers were elected to fill vacancies on the teaching staff of the Van Wert public schools at the regular meeting of the board of education. O. E. Miller, of Ypsilanti, Mich., for commercial work; Hazel Stock, of Toledo, for German in the high school, and Adelma Shaffer, for the grades, were employed.

LAFAYETTE PLACE NEAR HIGH SCHOOL SITE

One of the advantages of Lafayette Place, the beautiful new addition on South Calhoun street, is the fact that it is but six blocks south of the site selected for the location of the new high school building. It is understood that this new school will not only include the present high school grades, but also most of the lower grades, and parents are realizing that this feature, together with the seven acres of playgrounds, parks, etc., which have been laid out in Lafayette Place, make the addition an ideal spot for the raising of children. The wholesome surroundings which the restrictions placed upon this addition are sure to bring about another point furthering this conviction. Additional information about Lafayette Place may be had from the Wildwood Sales company, Shoff building—Advertisement.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Romans 14:1-12.

1. Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations.
2. For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs.
3. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.
4. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand.
5. One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.
6. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.
7. For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.
8. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.
9. For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.
10. But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at naught thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ.
11. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.
12. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.

Delay to the Hospital Plan

It is to be sincerely regretted that the county council failed to see its way clear to make the $50,000 appropriation sought for the tuberculosis hospital at this time, and by its refusal gave this beneficent work a set-back of at least one year. The appropriation has been urged by the county commissioners who had made provision for starting the work, and by the Anti-Tuberculosis league, whose members have devoted themselves assiduously to this work of unselfish humanitarianism. The fact that the appropriation was defeated by a majority of but one vote in the council shows that all but a scant majority of the board appreciated the need for early action and recognized that failure of or delay in intelligent and adequate action to conserve human health is costing life that might be saved and occasioning peril and expense to others that might be avoided.

Members of the council who opposed the providing of funds at this time offered the plea that undue haste was being urged, that a landscape architect should be secured to map out the grounds, and that further study and investigation are necessary before the county embarks in the hospital enterprise. Yet the matter has, we think, been gone into very thoroughly by those who are leading the organized campaign against the white plague here. They have sought information from many sources and observed the beneficent operation of similar institutions elsewhere, and there has never been the slightest danger that the prosecution of the enterprise here would not be attended by the most careful, competent and intelligent direction.

Allen county has made a fine start in the creation of the summer camp, Fort Recovery, but it is half doing its work when it fails to provide the hospital as well. The hospital is of vastly more importance than a good many other improvements on which we spend money freely. Discouraging as the present defeat may be to the anti-tuberculosis workers, it is but temporary. The hospital will come later, and The Sentinel feels very sure the leaders in the effort are too devoted to the cause and too fine a crowd of good fighters to quit before they see the hospital as an accomplished triumph.

President Ripley, of the Santa Fe railroad, is quoted as having declared that his railway system will simply refuse to accept the provisions of the Adamson eight-hour law until forced to do so by the court of last resort. Doubtless President Ripley presumes he knows his business, and doubtless, too, he is sustained in his attitude by the competent legal advice which railroad are accustomed to seek. At the same time, there is something in it that smacks of flagrant defiance that does not comport with the accepted idea or law-abiding orderliness. It is one thing to contest in the courts the validity of a law which one believes to be unwarranted and unconstitutional. It is quite another to openly flout that law so long as it is law and before it has been overturned. If Mr. Ripley places any value at all upon public sentiment, or considers it at all desirable to secure and maintain a kindly popular feeling toward his big rail system, he is manifesting the fact in a very strange sort of manner.

Commenting on recent tariff legislation by congress, H. H. Gross, president of the Tariff Commission league, a national organization of business men, declares that "we got everything we desired in the tariff commission amendment to the revenue bill except a $10,000 salary for the members of the commission." The business men played a very large part in persuading congress to enact the tariff commission plan into law, and Mr. Gross' declaration is a pretty fine testimonial to the desire of congress to respond readily to the plainly expressed sentiment of the people. It was true in the case of the tariff commission and no less true in many other instances. Having secured pretty much everything else for which they were contending, we think the business men will be disposed to forgive congress for its failure to put those salaries higher.

The Wilson Progressive league of Indiana, which has just been organized at Indianapolis among the membership of the former progressive party, makes a very impressive showing, for it includes active representatives in every section of the state. It gives new emphasis to the already self-evident fact that the attempt to stampede the rank and file of progressives into climbing on Mr. Hughes' bandwagon has been by no means so successful as its promoters had hoped. There is a very virile and very substantial element among Indiana progressives which simply will not swallow the deception prescribed by the Chicago convention. They constitute a most hopeful force in a campaign in which thinking is going to play a vastly more important part than mere noise.

With the children forbidden to attend the circus on account of the infantile paralysis quarantine, some of their elders must have been sorely pressed to find a suitable excuse for their own presence there—but they were able to accomplish it, all right.

BETTER SCHOOL EQUIPMENT.

Editor Sentinel:—On Thursday, Aug. 31, there appeared an editorial entitled "Hygiene Rules for the School" stating that every teacher in the public schools at Indianapolis should undergo a physical examination for tuberculosis and other transmissible diseases; also, that school authorities everywhere in the past few years have been giving and are still giving attention to matters of hygiene that were unthought of even a few years ago. Also; they have insisted on better light, adequate ventilation and absolute cleanliness, which in my opinion is something every parent ought to read. Also editors of farm papers that contain advice on "Keeping Boys on the Farm."

in regard to his health and comfort, saying nothing of the city school being a "Place of Beauty." I have three boys attending school in a building that was built before I was born, and has not been changed in one respect. It is unsanitary, unhealthy, unventilated and is never warm in cold weather. The children are compelled to hover around the stove at all times. My boys can readily see that the comfort of the live stock at home is better looked after than theirs at school. Why has the city boy a right to have a better school than the country boy? Isn't there anyone to look after the conditions of the country school?

That the authorities are giving their attention everywhere, puts Arcola, Ind., off the map. The law compels my children and the teacher to be there five days in the week during school months, to endure these unhealthy and unsightly conditions. I personally know that conditions that existed twenty-five years ago, exist today, and no advancement has been made for the comfort of the child. We have a $10,000 highway leading to this $10 school house; a school house that wouldn't make a comfortable barn. Is this ignorance or is it hind sight? It is surely encouraging to a boy or girl to start in their educational life knowing that they are twenty-five years behind the times. I know my statements are the sentiments of the community. Please print this for the benefit of the boys and girls.

North Dakota Farmers Organize Political Party; Have Own Candidate for Governor

Death to Grain Gamblers is Slogan of New Force in the Politics of the Northwest Country.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 7.—The farmers of North Dakota are in revolt!

They have formed the Farmers' Non-Partisan League and lambasted the old machine with such wallop that the old line gang has about given up its opposition to the progressive "notions" of the farmers.

Among these "notions," or, as the farmers term them—"parts of our program"—are:

State owned terminal elevators. State hail insurance department. Exemption of improvements on agricultural land from taxation. Non-partisan primaries. State owned and operated packing and cold storage plants.

State system of rural credits for short term loans to farmers so they may have money to sow and harvest their crops; and loans for landless farmers.

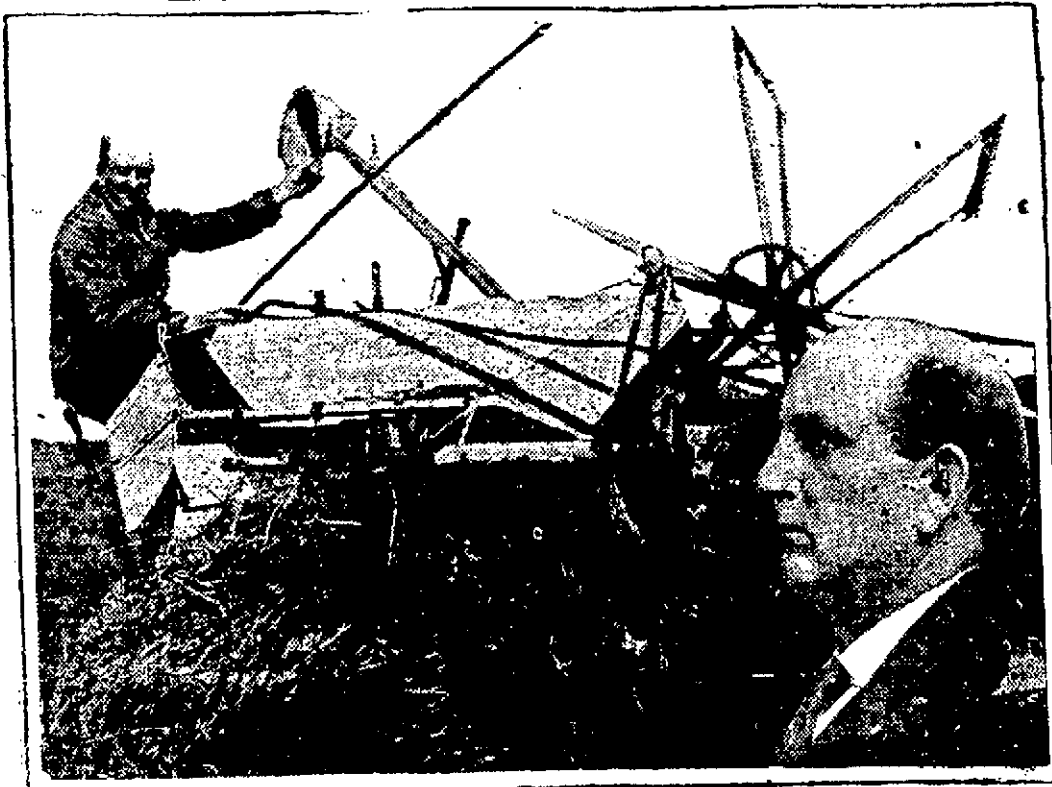

About 85 per cent of North Dakota's population live on farms. Up to now the other 15 per cent did the law-making and ruling. Among this 15 per cent were leaders of the old machine, owned by the railroads of the north-west and the Minneapolis chamber of commerce.

Laws were enacted or killed off to suit the railroads, the grain gamblers and the Minneapolis flour trust.

Spring wheat, best for flour milling, is all marketed under terms and conditions laid down by the Minneapolis grain ring.

Farmers are paid low prices for wheat which Minneapolis grain men pronounce low grade. This same wheat is put into the grain men's elevators, mixed and doctored and sold to flour mills as No. 1 wheat.

The difference is several cents profit for the elevator on each bushel of low grade wheat raised to high grade. It has been conservatively estimated that the grain fixers this year will reap a harvest of $12,000,000 to $20,000,000.

In other words the public this year will pay that much more for its bread than it would have to pay if the terminal elevator owners sold wheat at the same grade they buy it.

North Dakota farmers got together, decided to get a state-owned terminal elevator and be independent of the grain fixers.

They twice voted for state elevators and the republican legislatures twice turned them down.

The organization was called Farmers' Non-Partisan League. Only actual titlers of soil were admitted. An alliance was affected with organized labor in the towns and cities.

Farmers made it clear to the city laborer and his wife that prosperity on the farm spells prosperity for the whole country; that the doing away with grain fixers and doctored and gamblers meant lower prices to the consumer and higher prices for the producer.

The Non-Partisan League had 40,000 North Dakota farmers in its fold within a year and a half. In the June primaries they nominated every candidate they endorsed.

They chose for governor Lynn J. Frazier, a farmer who had never been a candidate for any office and who at the time of the convention was hard at work on his land.

Frazier made a great campaign and defeated his old guard rival for the top place on the republican ticket.

Then he started out to campaign for the Nov. 7 election. The campaign is the nearest approach to a pure non-partisan one any state has ever seen. Republican and democratic candidates endorsed by the farmers' organization get up and ask their hearers to vote for the whole ticket, disregarding all party ties.

A careful poll of the state shows the farmers' candidates far in the lead. The old guard is putting in its dying efforts to save the state supreme court.

ilious precedent" in an editorial in the current issue. He declares that the best interests of labor will not result from the workings of the law and adds that as it stands its effect is:

"Ten hours pay for eight hours work with a commission to note and report the effect thereof."

Mr. Hanly declares in the editorial that congress "yielded convention to fear," while "bludgeoned into action." He says he believes the brotherhood leaders made a mistake in refusing to accept arbitration.

When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. SANTA FE ROAD WILL DEFY NEW 8-HOUR LAW Doesn't Intend to Comply Until Ordered to Do So by Supreme Court.

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 7.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway, said in a formal statement last night that the Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson eight-hour law, recently enacted by congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered to do so by the United States supreme court.

President Ripley declared that the so-called eight-hour law was nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages to the men who receive the most money in the railway service. Mr. Ripley's statement follows:

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four labor leaders, enacted a so-called eight-hour law, which is nothing more nor less than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of the best paid men in railway service. It is only fair to the public and to our employees to say that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company does not intend to comply with the law, until ordered to do so by the court of last resort."

WESTERN WOMEN DON'T MIND WHO SEES THEM WEAR COMFY OVERALLS.

Miss Eleanor Cather and Mrs. Lillian R. Thomas, holding wheelbarrow, two Seattle women, who wear overalls and defend them as proper attire for their sex.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 7.—The fashion makers are in a blue funk. Overalls for women threaten to put their business on the blink.

Where one daring woman a year ago secretly donned bifurcated garments to lighten housework, hundreds are wearing them this fall, and the innovation is spreading like an infection.

In Seattle many women are even doing their garden work in 'em without trying to hide from the passing public behind the pleatant or a rose bush. They wear them to the corner grocery.

And now that they're invading the streets with the audacious though perfectly modest denim trousers, police are wondering if that hallowed old privilege of arresting women "for masquerading in men's attire" hasn't gone forever into the discard.

"Men's attire, indeed!" says Mrs. Lillian R. Thomas, who has worn overalls for six years. "I adopted them for general house and yard work because they are so much more practical and sensible than skirts.

"I think the day of singling a woman who wears bifurcated garments out for criticism, slander and even arrest has gone entirely, at least in the west. Many of my friends wear them, and we are through with skirts except for the most conventional wear."

Department stores here have sold hundreds of overalls to women customers this summer, and are ordering a much larger shipment.

Miss Eleanor Cather, another fair advocate of overalls for her sex, is just as outspoken in their defense.

"The most sensible working clothes ever adopted," she contended, without the slightest embarrassment.

Gus Edwards, Vaudeville Impresario, Presents Act at Palace.

Gus Edwards, who has achieved fame and incidentally no mean fortune through knowing exactly what the public wants, is presenting one of his delightful acts as a headline attraction on the week-end bill at the New Palace, opening this afternoon. Mr. Edwards has an eye for feminine beauty and grace that has found its expression in some of the daintiest boy and girl acts in vaudeville and his School Boys and Girls, with nine people, is not the least of his big successes. The act fairly brims over with catchy music and agile dancing.

Once every generation vaudeville produces at sketch that through the merit of its lines and the skill of its producing artists lives and lives. Such an act is "Sweethearts," the charming love story in which Edwin and Jane Connolly have been appearing with splendid success season after season. The sketch will be welcomed back in Fort Wayne by the discerning amusement seekers, for to see these people again is like picking up a favorite book for rereading.

The Kill-Care couple is the sobriquet that has been given John and Winnie Hennings, who are presenting their medley of fun, song and dance on this bill. Bert Kenny and Nobody in their famous hit, "Nobody's With Me," a play on a nut comedian, and an excellent foil, Lewis and White, the singing comedienne, and Lue and Anokela, Hawaiian entertainers, complete this bill.

Miss Myrtle Carter, who is to be one of the September brides, was honored by a gathering of her most intimate friends this afternoon for whom Miss Ethel Doug, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Raymond Ellis, of Wilmington, Del., were hostesses at the Country club. The company homed towels for Miss Carter to use in her new home and enjoyed the jovialness of the place and the tempting luncheon served to them. Miss Doug and Mrs. Ellis presented Miss Carter with a handsome gift.

Invitations were issued yesterday for the marriage of Miss Ruth Margaret Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Evans, to Mr. Bartlett Ward Shynow, only son of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Shynow, and grandson of Mrs. H. N. Ward, which will take place at the home of the bride in Old Fort place on Thursday evening, September 28, at 8:30 o'clock. Many friends are interested in the coming nuptials of these two young people, members of old Fort Wayne's prominent families and each of them having a niche in society worthy of honor by reason of individual character and attainment.

Miss Lucile Ault, a prospective bride, was honored by a gathering of her close friends at the home of Mrs. L. E. Bowser, of East Pontiac street, last evening. Games were enjoyed and so were the lovely arrangement of garden flowers in all of the rooms and some delicious things in the way of refreshment.

The luncheon bridge at the Country club on Wednesday was one of the most delightful social affairs of the season. Over forty ladies took part and winners of the handsome prizes were Mrs. M. Appelbaum and Mrs. Carl Rurde. The tables were decorated with red roses and the luncheon was of a variety and preparation that all pronounced the perfection of culinary art. Mrs. M. C. Norton was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

TWILIGHT SLEEP WOMAN'S THEME

Mrs. Robert A. Liggett, of St. Paul, Gives Remarkable Talks at Majestic Theatre.

No woman who reads newspapers is unfamiliar with the term "twilight sleep," but not many women are well enough posted upon the subject to be able to talk intelligently about this wonderfully interesting matter concerning the birth of children. So that the coming of a woman who can tell something about it that every woman wants to know, in the person of Mrs. Robert A. Liggett, of Minneapolis, to the Majestic theatre for four days this week, is attracting many women to hear her lecture and see the illustration of the subject in stereopticon slides. Mrs. Liggett is a very interesting woman and her talks are couched in simple words that require no medical knowledge to understand. Moreover, Mrs. Liggett is glad to be asked questions and is more than willing to answer them. She has the ability to recite verses or to tell a story in a most appealing manner and what she does in that line is of a character that is inspiring to a woman's love for children, whether she has any of her own or not. It was with some astonishment that women at the lecture on Wednesday afternoon and evening heard Mrs. Liggett say that many women oppose the use of "twilight sleep" believing that if it were not their duty to suffer at child birth no suffering would be theirs to endure. The fact that there is no degree of regularity in such suffering has no weight with such an argument and Mrs. Liggett presents no opposition to such views. Her mission is to tell how suffering can be avoided, how women can rise from their confinement strong and well in a few days, how much safer it is for the babies, and similar facts that the medical world is acknowledging since the arrival of this temporary sense-destriving drug, scopolamin. Mrs. Liggett refers her audience to the May number, 1915, of the American Journal of Obstetrics for much that is extensive and valuable on this subject. On Friday evening there will be a lecture for men, but others of the course are for women, tonight, tomorrow and Saturday, two lectures each day. Many women heard Mrs. Liggett yesterday. Indeed, to assume an indifference about the subject, or to look upon the opportunity to know more about it, is not to the credit of any woman, be she grandmother, mother, young wife or even a girl approaching married life. The duty of women is to bear children if she can, but to have the consequent suffering reduced to as much of a minimum as possible, while not a religious duty, perhaps, is certainly a duty she owes herself, her husband and her children.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BE YOUR OWN FOOD EXPERT

IF YOU have any doubts about the purity of the food which comes in your back door paste up in your kitchen this list of tests which you can use on the staples of your diet.

Eggs are perhaps one of the greatest risks which the housekeeper buys. There are electric egg testers now which the up-to-date housewife may use, but if she has no electricity in her house let her candle test the eggs in the old-fashioned way. Take the eggs into a dark room where only a dim light is burning. Hold each egg between the fore finger and thumb in front of the candle, letting the light shine thru. If an egg appears clear and translucent with an air spot at each end, it is fresh. But if it appears opaque or shows dark spots, it is not strictly fresh and the fact should be mentioned to the grocer boy. Eggs can also be tested by putting them in water. Those that float are old and bad ones.

Grapefruit can usually be judged by weight. The heavier the fruit the juicier it will prove. Cantaloupes can often be tested by their smell. The best flavored usually have a high sweet odor.

To test butter, heat a little in a spoon. Good butter boils quickly after it has melted but also or bad butter will sputter and bubble.

You can often detect adulterants in coffee by merely examining the beans. Real coffee grains are dull, while colored adulterants like split peas are often brightly polished. Coffee because it contains a great deal of oil will float on water, while adulterants because of a lack of oil will sink. If the water in which your trial beans have been soaked, turns brown, it is a sign that chicory is present. Real coffee will not color cold water.

Starch is sometimes used to adulterate cocoa. This is easily detected by putting some cocoa in a cup and adding boiling water. If starch is present the mixture will show a marked thickening. Grittiness in cocoa is due to ground cocoa shells with which some brands are mixed.

If you fear copper in your canned vegetables, which is sometimes absorbed from the can and is sometimes added to give the vegetables a bright green color, try them by putting a few in a glass in which you have mixed equal quantities of ammonia and water. Copper will turn the ammonia blue.

THE VOGUE OF PLEATS

THE greatest charm of the serge frocks offered for fall is their youthfulness of line. This is due to the fact that they fit loosely and are, as a rule, made with a fairly long waist line.

Most artistic is the model shown. It is made of dark blue serge, but can be easily duplicated in one's most becoming shade. The blouse is cut with a wide opening, and this in turn is filled in with a shallow vest of flesh-colored Georgette crepe. To the bottom of the blouse is attached a very wide girde.

Everywhere there are signs that pleats will play an important part in the new fall styles. In this instance they are neatly laid on each side of a panel, both

SOME ODD COLOR COMBINATIONS

A FALL dress just displayed brings out the fact that you may look for some unusual color combinations in autumn fashion displays. This particular frock was made of tobacco-brown Georgette crepe trimmed with taffeta the same color. But around the bottom of the full skirt was a cut-out design of Bordeaux broadcloth, attached to the crepe. A turned back hem of the taffeta was lined with a satin to match the red broadcloth.

Another frock showing something similar in color effects is made of brown Georgette crepe and trimmed with a taffeta in a regular red autumn leaf coloring between a brown and a red.

A blue serge trimmed with pink or coral is something of a departure from accepted modes. One blue serge frock has no relieving touch of white at all, merely vest and cuff trimming of coral Georgette crepe.

Gray is another substitute for white at neck and wrists. Blue serge uses a large amount of gray trimming, and one chiffon blouse of raspberry pink has a vest and collar of gray.

YOUR CHILDREN

IN A great many respects it is a blessing that women are tender-hearted; but in many others it is rather a handicap, especially when it comes to training children. This does not mean that children should be ruled with a rod of iron, but many of you know that selfish men and women are the outcome of wrong childhood training on the part of their parents.

The child who is allowed to sit at the table and sulk because a certain thing he or she likes is not served will develop into the most disagreeable character one could imagine. The thing to do with the sulking child is to insist upon its partaking of the food served, it being understood that palatable and suitable food for the child is included in the menu.

If the child continues to sulk he should be sent to his room until he can meet his family with a cheerful face and a happy frame of mind.

All children should be trained to be tidy. As soon as a youngster is able to understand words, this does not mean that children should be ruled with a rod of iron, but many of you know that selfish men and women are the outcome of wrong childhood training on the part of their parents.

MAKE THE VELOUR COAT LIKE THIS

THERE is no doubt about it if you aim to be well dressed, but that you will have a coat of one of the soft fabrics like velour, duvetyne or bolivia dress. What is more, if you have any dress-making ability you will probably want to make this coat yourself, and you can do it with the aid of the tailor for pressing and buttonholes.

Choose a becoming and stylish shade of material. You don't need to stick to blue or black this year. Lovely rich greens, warm browns and stunning ralsin and plum shades are making their debut in fall coats. The soft material, like velour or suede cloth or kitten's ear broadcloth, can be managed in the home sewing room and conform to the loose lines of the average fall coat.

The one sketched has several noteworthy features. It shows the open cleverly arranged to close with a diagonal side fastening. This coat itself, which is cut with a semifitting yoke, echoes the same diagonal line. There are really two waist lines, one short one formed by the very deep yoke and the longer one formed by the skirted skirt portions, which stand out from sagging pockets. The coat may be lined or not, and in this case the pocket lining should match. A bright striped or flowered silk may, however, be used to line pockets and cape and standing collar. This is too graceful a suggestion to discard. Clip it. If you can't use it yourself some one else may.

Gray is another substitute for white at neck and wrists. Blue serge uses a large amount of gray trimming, and one chiffon blouse of raspberry pink has a vest and collar of gray.

Only Dog Remains Loyal to Man Held for "Human Hangman's-Noose" Murder!

BY B. J. O'DONNELL.

Marlington, W. Va., Sept. 6.—Jack, being just an ordinary hound dog, doesn't know all the facts in the "human hangman's" murder case, but he does know his master, Dr. Oliver A. Howard, is in trouble and the body of his mistress, Mrs. Howard, was carried away in a black box covered with flowers children gathered in the mountains.

Prior to the day his mistress was found dead, her neck broken by what physicians call the hangman's knot grip, and Dr. Howard was arrested and charged with murder, Jack was the happiest dog in the Allegheny mountains.

Today he is the saddest.

Ever yesterday, just before the sun sinks behind the mountain range, he trots up the long road to Pocahontas jail where, in dog language, he tries to tell his master he is being loyal.

Jack seems to understand that his master's old friends deserted him after he was arrested in connection with this "Jiu Jitsu murder" alleged to have occurred after Mrs. Howard returned from a suffrage meeting which the doctor is said to have forbidden her to attend.

Before the body of his mistress was taken to her old home at Fincastle, Va., for burial, Jack's life was different.

One day he would accompany his mistress, called the "little mother of Marlington," up to the homes on the mountainside where he played with other dogs while the "little mother" cheered the sick or sat with other mothers who were expecting newcomers into the world.

The next he would trot contentedly behind the masters buggy when the doctor went on calls.

When Summers Sharp, prosecuting attorney, went to the Howard home the day after the funeral he found Jack huddled in the kitchen. Jack refused to eat. He seemed to know clouds hung heavy over his home.

Dr. Howard will be placed on trial in

MRS. OLIVER HOWARD, VICTIM IN "JIU JITSU MURDER," AND DR. HOWARD, HELD ON MURDER CHARGE.

November. Prosecuting Attorney Sharp says he will call witnesses who will testify that Dr. Howard boasted he could "break one's neck in a twinkling" and demonstrated a Jiu Jitsu hold which consisted of placing the thumb of the right hand over the bridge of the nose and the fingers under the left jaw bone and jerking the head.

The twist in the "hangman knot grip" described by surgeons has the same effect as a hangman's knot used when a person is executed, breaking the neck and causing immediate death.

Dr. Howard proclaims innocence and declares he will prove his claim that he found his wife suffering from a narcotic.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The senate has rejected the nomination of Dixon C. Williams to be postmaster at Chicago. Rejection was voted at the request of Senator Lewis. Mr. Williams was nominated April 22 as a compromise candidate after a long dispute between democratic leaders in Chicago and the members of the Illinois congressional delegation were not satisfied with the selection.

Y. W. C. A. GIRLS TO HAVE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Entries for the Meet to Close Next Wednesday at Y. W. C. A.

The tennis tourney of the Y. W. C. A. will start a week from Saturday if the plans now under way materialize. Miss Eleanor S. Bill, the new physical director of the association, is in charge of the tourney.

The entries will close on next Wednesday evening and all who wish to participate in the tourney for the sale cup must enter before that time. The cup was first won by May Doty but she is married now and gives up her claim of it. Katherine Brown is also waiting and therefore the cup is free, waiting for some winsome lass to come along and win it.

The tourney will be played on the Swinney park courts. Many of the youthful lassies in the city are expert tennis players. The boys gave it a request boost and are looking toward the girls to help. Registration will be made at the Y. W. C. A. building.

Wednesday the board of the Y. W. C. A. met to hear the reports and discuss the plans for the fall and winter. The treasurer, Miss May Jewel Smith, gave her report and the board was pleased inasmuch as the Y. W. C. A. is within the budget agreed upon for expenses. Eighteen members attended the meeting and this was a very good attendance considering the vacation period. Miss Evelyn Walter was appointed on the physical committee. Mrs. A. H. Perlett, chairman of the house committee, recommended that the board sign a one-year contract with Miss Leona Owen, house secretary, which was done.

COLORADO GOVERNOR MAY STOP SCRAP

Fight Fans Are to Miss Title Scraps in Colorado, Says Scribe.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 7.—Colorado Springs with its huge mountains and its pride in the beauty of the west, feels that a stain has been plastered on it; that it made a big mistake in staging a world's championship fight between Freddie Welsh and Charley White. Everywhere one went after the fight Monday there was a post mortem conversation, and it was hard to find anyone who boasted of anything connected with the twenty round affair Monday afternoon.

Members of the Million Dollar club who promoted the bout are thoroughly disgusted with its outcome and are perfectly willing to drop things right where they picked them up. It also was learned from a source considered reliable that Governor Carlson is going to see that there is no repetition of the rowdy scenes. It is said he has decided that no more twenty round championship contests will be allowed in Colorado.

Paper Voices Criticism.

An editorial in the Evening Telegraph, the local newspaper, reflects fairly accurately the feeling here, as follows:

"The great 'champion' prize fight has 'come and went,' the fighters (7), their promoters, seconds, buckle carriers and camp followers have departed, and with them some $20,000 of Colorado Springs' hard earned dollars.

"But Colorado Springs can afford to part with the coin if it has learned that the 'main art of self defense' is a thing of the past and that the so-called fighting game has fallen into the hands of a cheap lot of grafters who are only out to 'bilk' the public. True, we have been advertised, but Colorado Springs needs no such advertisement."

Injury to Fistic Sport.

The riotous scenes following the decision by Referee Roche and the fact the contest was far from what was expected have left an odor, while the unfortunate collapse of the bleachers, resulting in injury to many fans, also has had an effect which in itself is almost sufficient to knock boxing off the map in this city.

Referee Roche was kept under cover for most of the night to prevent any chance of his being "disturbed" by any of the fans who were still on his trail.

Gate Nearly $31,000.

Promoter Eddie Pitts finished checking up the receipts Tuesday and found that $30,718 had been taken in. Of this amount Welsh grabbed off a nice chunk amounting to $18,389. The champion was guaranteed $12,500 and 60 per cent of all money taken in over $27,000. Welsh also holds 51 per cent of the moving pictures. White drew his guarantee of $4,000.

MISS MINNEAPOLIS WINS HYDRO TITLE

Speed Boat Takes Power Boat Championship at Detroit.

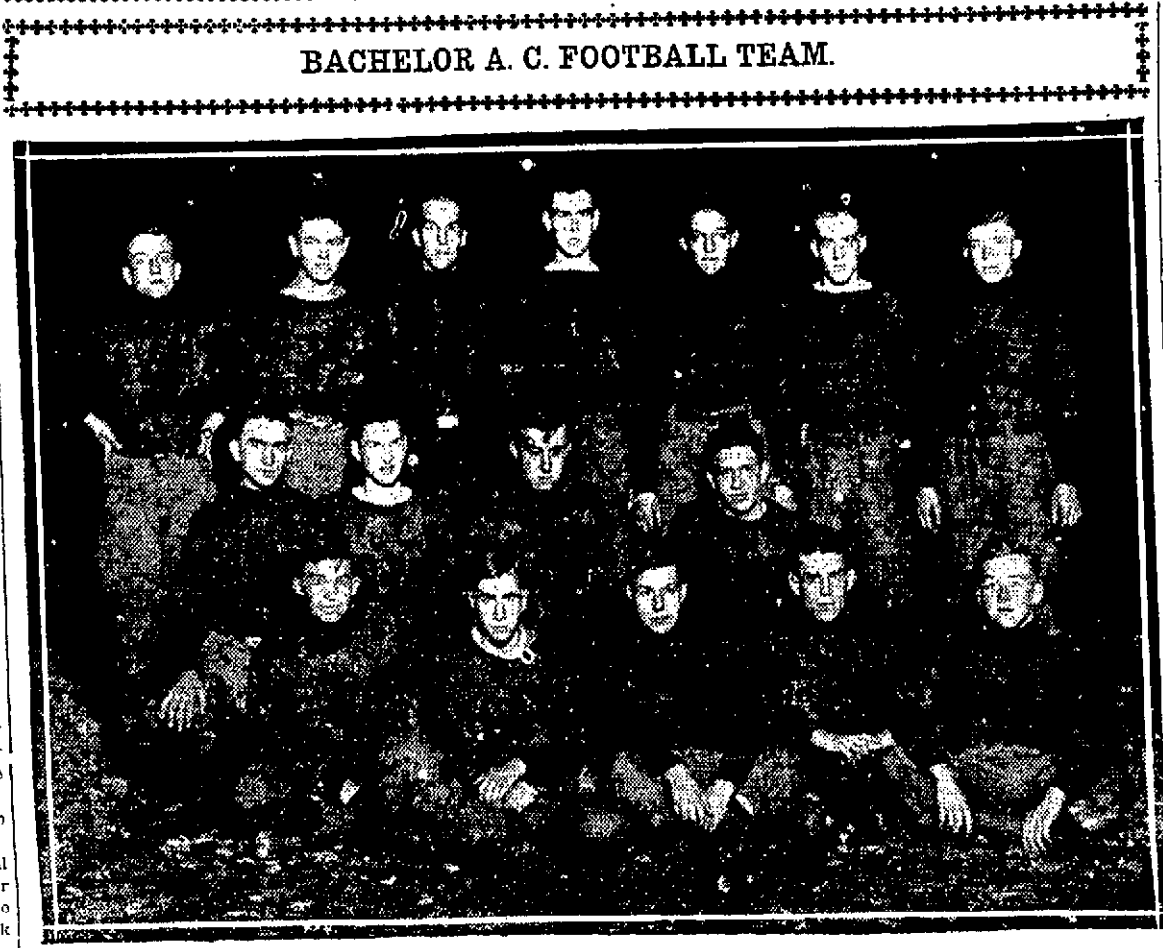

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—The Lake George cup, emblematic of the one-mile power boat championship of North America, was won Wednesday by Miss Minneapolis, of the Minneapolis Power Boat association. Miss Detroit, of Detroit, was the only other starter, mishaps causing the withdrawal of Peter Pan VII, of the Columbia Yacht club, New York, and Hawkeye, of the Lake George club.

Miss Minneapolis' average speed in six one-mile trials was 53.11 nautical, or 61.08 statute miles an hour, and her fastest nautical mile was in 1:04 6-10, which she made in her first mile, running with the current.

Miss Detroit averaged 45.45 nautical, or 52.27 statute miles an hour, and her fastest nautical mile was 1:16 6-10, made with the current in her third mile.

Last year's average speed for the cup was 53.87 statute miles an hour.

Hawkeye had a hole stove in her hull by driftwood and was towed into her dock. Peter Pan VII. was shipped home before the race because of a bent crank shaft.

The above is a picture of the Bachelor A. C. football team, which won the city championship last year. Berghoff has been elected captain and is already making preparations for the coming season. The team has forty candidates for the practice Thursday evening. "Red" Pierre, of last year's Purdue varsity, will have the squad in charge. Those in the picture, reading from left to right, are: Back row—Becker, S. DeWald, Berghoff, Flaherty, Harkender, McGuire. Middle row—Gordon, Clifford, Bec. Front row—Frye, E. DeWald, Getz, Hayes, Duriot.

HOLDS ANOTHER BIG RACE FROM BEMENT

Birds Make Fast Time from City in Illinois and Win Cup.

The Old Fort Homing club held its annual young bird futurity race from Bement, Ill., 200 miles away from Fort Wayne, Sunday. The birds were released at 7:06 a. m., the Menefee bird being the first to arrive in Fort Wayne. This flyer made the distance in 5 hours and 57 minutes, an average of 368.38 yards per minute. A beautiful silver cup was given to the owner of the winning bird and a special diploma was given by the American Racing pigeon union to the owners of the first two birds arriving. Although the birds have been flying all summer, they are in the pink of condition and the time made by the winning birds Sunday was very fast. The club will hold a 300 mile race from Edwardsville, Ill., next Sunday and on Sept. 17 the birds will be sent to Springfield, Mo., a distance of 500 miles, to race to Fort Wayne. The results Sunday were as follows:

Earl Menefee, 968.38 yards per minute; Al Rondot, 966.24; Henry Beach, 966.11; Oscar Anderson, 963.35; Fred Nahrwald, 961.45; Roy Eggeman, 953.78, and E. Braun, 931.35.

ONLY THREE MORE GAMES ARE SCHEDULED

Football is beginning to be talked of and the old spirit of baseball is starting to die, and a wise head is one that knows when its time to pull up stakes. Mart Cleary has given to the fans of Fort Wayne the best brand of baseball that could be found. The best representatives of semi-pro baseball have played at League park and some of them have defeated the Clearyites.

Only three more Sundays remain before the Clearyites close their season and the three remaining games will be the hardest the club has tackled so far this season. Next Sunday "Dummy" Kilim with his fast Delphos team is coming to take a fall out of the pride of Cleary's heart, and with the record they carry they should give Cleary a nice beating. The Sunday following the Delphos team, the Defiance club will enter the baseball sanctuary of the Clearyites to break the spell that hangs over the dark regions. Aggie Grant is with them and has some team behind him. The Defiance team is without a doubt the best but Cleary has hooked up with this season. The last game of the season is scheduled for Sept. 24, when the Clearyites will play the champions of the shop league for the city championship.

FRIARS PREPARING FOR A BIG SEASON

The Friar club has been called to action by the fact that the football season is nearly here. Carl Suedhoff, president of the Friars, wishes it known that all those desiring to try out for the team will come to the Friar rooms Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The players have to register at the club so the management will know how many men it has and how to make accommodations for them. Capt. Byroade will be at the meeting and will give the prospects a talk on the coming season, which the Friars wish to make the best the club has ever known. Many men who are waiting for the call of candidates will be glad that the club has started the season so early.

GOOD MILL PROMISED FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Artie Conley and Len Ellenwood, who last year met in a no decision bout, will mix at the Iroquois hall, 1921 Hanna street, Friday night. Both men are evenly matched and the fans who attend are promised a good show.

Besides the Conley-Ellenwood go, Leo Neuman and Bat Leach will meet in an eight-round contest at 120 pounds, and Kid Gebhart will take on Art Trosin for six rounds at 130 pounds. The doors will be opened at 7:30 and the first match starts one hour later. Charles Maxwell will referee.

RUDISILL PAVING TO HELP HARRISON HILL

The promoters of Harrison Hill, the delightful new addition located just south of Rudisill boulevard on the west side of Calhoun street, are anxiously awaiting the completion of the paving of Rudisill boulevard, as this paving will not only make their addition more accessible, but it will also give Harrison Hill a frontage on one of the finest boulevards in this section of the country. The work on Rudisill boulevard is progressing rapidly and the asphalt will be poured within the next few days. It is expected that the entire paving will be opened within two weeks. Further advantages supplied to Harrison Hill by this stretch of paving will be explained by Hügemann and Schaaf, North American building.—Advertisement.

CAN'T BEAT THEM.

Honolulu, T. H., Sept. 7.—The world's record for the 100 yard back stroke swim was broken here Tuesday by Harold Kruger, of Honolulu, who made the distance in one minute 14 1-5 seconds, according to announcement today by Amateur Athletic union officials. Ludy Langer, of Los Angeles, made a new American record in the 500 yard race which he swam Friday, in six minutes, 11 seconds. Langer broke the American record for the 1,000 yards Tuesday night by swimming it in 13 minutes 7 seconds. Langer's time, 6 minutes 28 seconds in the 440 yard event, was announced as a "probable" American record. Ted Cann, of New York, won the 227 yards in 2 minutes 22 1-5 seconds, defeating Herbert Vollmer, of New York.

RESTA OUT OF CLASSIC.

Twenty drivers have signified their intentions of starting in the Harvest racing classic at Indianapolis next Saturday. Ralph DePalma's entry was one of the last to be received. He will not drive his big Mercedes, which he claims is out for good. He has requested that the name of his mount be withheld, and although it is rumored that he will drive a Packard, no confirmation of this can be obtained. Resta has failed to enter, to the pleasure of the other drivers, since this will give them a chance to cut down his lead for the season in A. A. A. figures.

SIXTEEN ARE INDICTED FOR LIMA OUTBREAK

Thirteen Alleged Members of Mob in Jail There Under Guard of One Hundred Special Officers.

Lima, Ohio, Sept. 7.—Sixteen alleged members of the mob which in an attempt to lynch Charles Daniels, a negro and tortured Sheriff Eley until he told where the prisoner was held, last week, were indicted today. The list includes several business men. Thirteen of the 16 have been arrested and are in the county jail, under guard of 100 policemen and deputy sheriffs. Further indictments are expected this afternoon or tomorrow. It is expected that 100 indictments will be returned. "Attacking an official for the purpose of lynching" is the charge on those already returned. The amount of the bonds of the men under arrest were placed at $1,500. Charles Daniels, the negro, alleged assailant of Mrs. John Baber, was brought last night from the Henry county jail at Napoleon to this city, handcuffed to two other negro prisoners and taken to the Lima City hospital where he was identified by Mrs. Baber. It was announced that Daniels was not taken back to Henry county but is secreted in some other jail.

GREEK TROOPS DRIVE THE BULGARIANS OUT

Saloniki, Sept. 7.—Col. Christodoulos with the troops of the Greek garrison at Seres, forty-five miles northeast of Saloniki, has succeeded in making his way to the seaport of Kastila on the Aegean sea, where he is reported to have seized two forts despite the opposition of the Bulgarian troops which had occupied them.

It was reported from Greek sources at Saloniki last week that the entire force of about 3,000 men under Col. Christodoulos, which had left Seres to resist the Bulgarian invasion of Macedonia, had been captured by Bulgarians.

SAYS IT WOULD SAVE MILLIONS

Consumer Benefitted by 10-Cent Loaf of Bread, Says McDonald.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Elimination of the five-cent loaf of bread was advocated by S. F. McDonald, of Memphis, Tenn., president of the National Association of Master Bakers, in an address before the executive committee of the association here today. This step is necessary, he said, because of the advanced price of materials, especially flour. Exclusive sale of a ten-cent loaf of bread is favored by President McDonald. Bakers face a loss of one cent in manufacturing a five-cent loaf, he said. Mr. McDonald promised a saving of $25,000,000 a year to the fifty per cent of the public now buying five-cent loaves of bread if they would buy ten-cent loaves instead.

PURDUE DAY AT STATE FAIR.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 7.—Today was "Purdue day" at the Indiana state fair. Crowds assembled at the gates as early as 5 o'clock and later in the day the number of persons passing through the turnstiles caused estimates to be made that the attendance today will be greater than any day previously. Students and former students of Purdue formed a parade at noon and marched over the grounds. W. E. Stone, president of the university, was on the program for an address.

SUFFRAGISTS BAR ALL DISCORDANT ELEMENTS

Change Constitution to Get Rid of All the Disturbances.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 7.—The National American Woman Suffrage convention today changed its constitution so as to bar from membership all organizations not in harmony with the policy and constitution of the association. A report that this action was aimed at organizations affiliated with the Congressional Suffrage Union or the Woman's party was denied, but it was admitted that it affects such organizations though not specifically aimed at them. Nearly all of the morning session was taken up with consideration of proposed amendments to the association's constitution. One amendment making the terms of officers two years was adopted. Another amendment providing for but one affiliated state organization in each state caused such a long discussion that it was referred to a committee of five to report at the next annual convention.

COOLER WEATHER IN SIGHT IS PREDICTION

Although the thermometer was sent flying up to the ninety degree mark Thursday afternoon, the prediction is that cooler weather will visit Fort Wayne and vicinity Friday. In the meantime, however, we are to have a few more hot days. They are due here some time tonight, provided the weather man is right. The heat Thursday was intense and much suffering was reported. No heat prostrations were reported late this afternoon, however. Palm beach suits, as well as the nearly forgotten straw and Panama hats were much in evidence on the streets Thursday afternoon.

CITY HALL NEWS.

Brief Board Session.

The board of works will be in session but a short time Thursday night, as only a few private sidewalk petitions are to be presented for action.

Edifice Nears Completion.

"The edifice of woman's liberty nears completion. Over our heads, tantalizing near, hangs the roof of our edifice—the vote. What is our duty? Shall we spend time in admiring the capstones and cornice? Shall we lament the tragedy which accompanied the laying of the cornerstones? Or, shall we, like the builders of old, chant, 'Ho! all hands, all hands, heave ho! all hands, heave ho!' and while we chant, grasp the overhanging roof and with a long pull, a strong pull and pull altogether, fix it in place for ever more."

"Let us then take measure of our strength. Our cause has won the endorsement of all political parties; every candidate for the presidency is a suffragist. It has won the endorsement of most churches; it has won the hearty approval of all great organizations of women. It has won the support of all reform movements; it has won the progress of every variety. The majority of the press in most states is with us. Great men in every political party, church and movement are with us. The names of the greatest men and women of art, science, literature, philosophy, reform, religion and politics are on our lists."

Cannot Win Reactionaries.

"We have not won the reactionaries of any party, church or society and we never will. From the beginning of things, there have been antis. Before the vote is won, there must and will be a gigantic final conflict between the forces of progress, righteousness and democracy and the forces of ignorance, evil and reaction. That struggle may be postponed but it cannot be evaded or avoided. There is no question as to which side will be the victor."

"Shall we play the coward then, and leave the hard knocks for our daughters or shall we throw ourselves into the fray, bare our own shoulders to the blows and thus bequeath to them a politically liberated womanhood? Our movement is like a great Niagara with a vast volume of water tumbling over its ledge but turning no wheel. Our organized machinery is set for the propaganda stage and not for the seizure of victory. Our supporters are spreading the argument for our cause; they feel no sense of responsibility for the realization of our hopes. Our movement lacks cohesion, organization, unity and consequent momentum."

"Behind us, in front of us, everywhere about us are suffragists—millions of them, but inactive and silent. Were never another convert made, there are suffragists enough in this country, if combined to make so irresistible a driving force that victory might be seized at once."

Tells How to Do It.

"How can it be done? By a simple change of mental attitude. If you are to seize the victory, that change must take place in this hall, here and now! The old belief, which has sustained suffragism in many an hour of discouragement, 'woman suffrage is bound to come' must give way to the new, 'The Woman's Hour Has Struck.' That slogan sets the pace of a crusade which will have its way. It says: 'Awake, arise, my sisters, let your hearts be filled with joy—the time of victory is here. Onward march.'"

"Give heed at once to the organization of the reserves; and then to the work that they shall do. Organize in every assembly district and every voting precinct. It is the only way to make our appeal irresistible. Swell the army, then set it upon the trail of every legislator and congressman for they alone hold the key to our political emancipation. Compel this army of lawmakers to see woman suffrage, to think woman suffrage, to talk woman suffrage every minute of every day until they heed our plea."

"All this is mere preparation for the final drive to victory. The next question is: What shall be our aims? To my mind, the insistence of the franchise of the women of our land by federal amendment, is the only self-respecting course to pursue."

In explaining her reasons for this stand, Mrs. Catt reviewed the fight for suffrage in many states and the obstacles it had met from the liquor interests, and charged there had been widespread resort to illegal practices to defeat suffrage, whereas in a majority of the states of the union—in 25 of them—there was no provision made by law for any form of contest or recount on a referendum. "Political corrupters may, in these states, bribe voters, colonize voters, and repeat them to their hearts content and redress of any kind is practically impossible."

"In my judgment," she concluded, "the women of this land, not only have the right to sit on the steps of congress until it acts but it is their self-respecting duty to insist upon their enfranchisement by that route."

WITNESSES TESTIFY THAT JAMISON RESEMBLED ONE OF RURODE ROBBERS.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 7.—Testimony will be completed in the $10,000 damage suit of Emory Jamison, of Winchester, against Fort Wayne Chief of Police Charles Lenz, Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner, Peter Junk and William Pappert, Police Captain Richard Kelly and Charles Rurode, of the Rurode Dry Goods company. The trial has been in progress two days before Judge Eichorn and a jury in the Wells county circuit court. Police Chief Lenz occupied the witness stand most of the afternoon Thursday. He was called upon to relate the on-site story of the looting of the Rurode Dry Goods store, two years ago, and the arrest and treatment of Jamison, his brother and Walter Howell, who were taken as suspects in connection with the safe blowing. W. C. Kurns, night watchman at the Rurode store, who was bucked and gagged while three men blew the store safe and took $70 in money, is considered the star witness for the defense. He offered his testimony Thursday morning. By way of clothing and general appearance Jamison tallied with one of the men who committed the robbery, Kurns said. Both Jamison and the man who helped tie up Kurns wore dark clothes and dark slouch hats. The defense tried to show that the resemblance was close enough to warrant arrest of Jamison.

ACCUSED STRANGELY.

Chief of Police Lenz told of strange actions of Jamison and the other two men before they left the city on the night of the robbery. They told the witness that they carried the stolen goods in a car and that they were with care, according to word Lenz said he received. He said the three men were treated well while in Fort Wayne and released as soon as their innocence was proven.

PROSECUTION RESTED AT 3:30 O'CLOCK, THURSDAY MORNING.

All testimony was furnished by the three glassblowers, who told of indignities heaped upon them by the arrest and false imprisonment.

JAMISON SAID HIS HEALTH HAD BEEN IMPAIRED AND HIS NAME SULLIED BECAUSE OF THE UNWARRANTED TREATMENT.

He was taken from the boat on which he was traveling to take a job in Wellsburg, Canada, and was thrown into prison in Detroit. There he was confined in a germ laden cell with six drunkards. His picture was taken and will be on file forever in the criminal archives, he said.

DETECTIVES SERGEANTS PAPPERT AND SPILLNER MISTREATED HIM WHEN HE WAS BROUGHT BACK TO FORT WAYNE, JAMISON TESTIFIED.

The car was stuffy and Jamison and his companions were not allowed to remove their hats or coats while the officers took their ease, Jamison told. He was handcuffed and his ankles chained. He was subject to a battery of cameras when he reached Fort Wayne. He had to ride in the patrol wagon. His health was impaired, he said.

LOST HIS JOB.

The criminal action of his false arrest forced him to take nine months in getting papers from William J. Bryan, then secretary of state, and Congressman John A. M. Adair before he could enter Canada. Then his job was gone. He has lost money ever since, he said. He has a wife and child to support.

Stephen Callahan, deputy prosecutor at the time of the arrest; Judge W. H. Kern, Deputy Clerk Swartz and Police Captain Kelly were called to the stand late Thursday.

It is thought that court may take on adjournment of two days, while added cases are assigned, before appeals of the attorneys are made to the jury. Charles Loy, of near Marion, and Sturgis and Stine, of Bluffton, represent the plaintiff, and Barrett, Morris and Hoffmann, Colerick and Hogan and Simmons and Adley appear for the defendants.

The pleas before the jury are expected to be among the most eloquent in the late history of the Wells county bar.

DO NOT EXPECT ADVANCE

Dairy Products Men Think Prices Are High Enough.

Indianapolis, Sept. 7.—According to members of the executive committee of the Indiana manufacturers and dairy products association, who held a session here, they do not expect material increases in the price of butter, cream, milk and other raw material and manufactured dairy products. The meeting was said to have been held for the purpose of discussing whether a legislative program was desired. Other business was to appoint committees to arrange the program for the meeting of dairy men and dairy products dealers here in December.

HE FORESEES VICTORY IN STATE AND NATION

in Address to Ohio Democrats.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 7.—Victory for the party in the state and in the nation was predicted before the Ohio state democratic convention here today by Senator Atlee Pomerene, who declared there was contentment in the land everywhere except among republican politicians.

"If one-half of the reports which I have heard in Washington within the last two months be true," said the senator, "victory in Ohio and in the nation is assured. The standard-bearer of the republican party has been conducting the trans-continental tour. It has created little or no enthusiasm among republicans. It has filled the hearts of the democrats with joy. The people will not change the realities of Hughes. They will not change the constructive program of democracy, because of the carping criticisms of republicans. In the light of the great accomplishment of the past three and a half years the voters will not displace the presiding genius under whose guidance this work has been done, for one who indulges in criticisms of details and offers little or nothing affirmative or constructive save and except a return to the discarded protective tariff theory of the past."

MAN WHO HELPED TO BUILD THE NICKEL PLATE RAILROAD IS DEAD.

EDWARD F. WOLF.

The death of Edward F. Wolf, Nickel Plate passenger engineer, last Tuesday, marked the passing of one of the very few remaining men who helped to build the Nickel Plate and who was employed on the road ever since it was opened to business. Mr. Wolf came here and took employment with the contractors as a foreman of one of the gangs engaged in grading and later laying the tracks. When the road opened to business he became a brakeman and when he was due to promotion to conductor, he requested permission to be transferred to firing on a locomotive. January 10, 1887, he was promoted to freight engineer and seven years ago was advanced to the passenger department. For a number of years he belonged to Division 12, B. L. E., transferring his membership and becoming a charter member of Nickel Plate division No. 537, B. L. E., in January, 1911, when that division was organized. During his membership he filled almost every office in the B. L. E. and was very popular with the members. The pall bearers, all members of Division 537, B. L. E., will be Engineers J. W. Harber, M. F. McCarthy, H. F. Mansfield, Joseph Studer, T. E. Short and C. H. Brommermeier. The services will be held at the residence, under the auspices of the B. L. E., at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mr. Wolf was also a member of the Bethany church, the Elks and the Knights of Pythias.

E. A. Barnes to Talk on Foundry Developments in Cleveland Wednesday.

Factory Superintendent E. A. Barnes, of the General Electric works, has consented to read a paper at the convention of the American Institute of Metal Workers at Cleveland next Wednesday morning. His subject will be "Developments in the Brass Foundry in the Past Twenty-five Years." He will go to Cleveland Monday afternoon and remain during the continuance of the session.

FOUND HIS MACHINE DECORATED

One of the most wonderful decorative feats ever pulled off was that which met the eyes of Robert N. Pence, machinist in Foreman William Wehrs' room, at the General Electric works this morning when he returned for duty after a week's wedding trip. In reply to the inquiry of the character of the decorations, Mr. Pence said: "Nothing was missing. There were various garlands, including a complete outfit for a baby; chunks of coal, various kinds of vegetables and the very suggestive statement on a big card that potatoes were $2.40 per bushel." Mr. Pence very good naturedly spent a half hour in removing the decorations from his machine and then started a box of cigars in circulation among his shopmates. He was married last Thursday.

ENLARGING THE STOCK ROOM.

The growth of the transformer department of the General Electric works has again necessitated more room and particularly in the stock room, where a crowded condition has existed for several months. To enlarge the type A and type H transformers, they are being separated, the former remaining in the present stock room and the type H being transferred to the old stock room. The change is now under way. F. S. Walburn is foreman of the transformer department.

CIRCUS MAN LOSES HIS EAR IN BATTLE

When Edward Johnson, employe of the Robinson circus, dashed to the aid of a friend who was about to be assaulted, Wednesday night, he paid for his loyalty by a fractured skull and loss of part of his left ear.

Harry Clark, assistant trainmaster of the circus, was about to be attacked by John Quigley, trainmaster, because Clark had used poor judgment in the placing of the circus cars for loading, Quigley thought. Quigley carried an iron rod in his hand when he approached Clark. Clark was seated on a railroad tie at the end of a string of cars. Johnson stood near by.

As Quigley came around the corner of the car to strike Clark, Johnson leaped upon him to protect Clark. Quigley is said to have felled Johnson by two blows. There was a general riot among the circus laborers and police were called. Johnson was taken to the St. Joseph hospital where it was found that his left ear was partly torn off and his skull fractured. He will recover.

Quigley is held under $200 bond for appearance next Wednesday in police court to answer the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

George Jaap, 606 Lawton Place, was acquitted of the charge of keeping an unsanitary manure box when he told that he had not had an animal in his barn for more than ten weeks. Lee testified that he had found the box uncovered on July 13 and had sent notice to Jaap that it must be covered. When Lee returned last week he found the box uncovered, he told.

"The question is, 'When does a manure box cease to be a manure box?'" Jaap asked Judge Ryan. "Or is it to be considered 'once a manure box always a manure box?'" Judge Ryan dismissed the case.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

The Habit of Cheerfulness.

All my life, until about three years ago, I was the victim of the most distressing periods of despondency, which became more frequent as I grew older and the buoyancy of youth departed. I wanted to be happy, but I seemed to close the door against happiness and persisted in looking on the dark side. Finally I got to the point where I rather enjoyed being miserable and telling people about it. You may imagine I had few friends. I worried about the slightest pain, perhaps it was a cancer; I worried about my clothes, because they were not up to date. I was a confirmed worrier. I worried until I had two ruckers between my eyes and a down droop to my mouth. And then I worried because I was becoming wrinkled.

One summer, while on a vacation, I met at the boarding house a frail little woman who seemed to fairly radiate sunshine. She was not well, had to live most of the time in the open to live at all, but she did more to scatter cheer and encouragement than a dozen well women. We became friends, and one day I said to her: "Do tell me how you keep so cheerful. I wish I could be as happy as you." "You can," she instantly answered. "But I can't," I contradicted. "I have such a lot to worry about and I get such horrid blue spells. I feel miserable most of the time." "Oh, but so do I," she replied, "especially at first when they told me that my life would have to be a constant struggle against disease. I utterly gave up. Life didn't seem worth while to me then. One day I happened to pick up the 'Life of Stevenson' and the wonderful heroism of that man struck me full in the face. Here he was with the sword of Death hovering over him all the time, yet he was able to be a joy to everybody about him. It was an inspiration to me, I can tell you. His life was like mine, and what was I doing? Making everybody miserable around me. I determined then and there to change. I would be cheerful, optimistic; I wouldn't let despondency get the better of me. Oh, I tell you, it was a struggle, but I learned the lesson bit by bit. Whenever a gloomy, discouraged thought would come to me I picked up a book and forced my mind to another channel. Sometimes it would be the Bible, sometimes a poem giving me a picture to dwell upon, or a short story, but always it was of a cheerful nature. Sometimes when the blue devils assailed me I put on my hat and went out for a walk. I visited someone who was worse off than I was. If the weather was stormy I went into the kitchen and made a cake, or dressed up in my prettiest and best frock. Also I have a hobby which I ride when I am not able to be active. I cut out colored pictures and paste them in a cubic book for the kiddies in the hospital. There is nothing like a hobby to help you ward off an attack of despondency. I used to indulge in self pity, but I gave that up. I realized that I had a tollsome way to travel, but that when I arrived I altered nothing and made others unhappy. So I have tried to live my life eagerly, encourage friendship by offering it a smiling face, enjoy the beauty around me and make as much music within myself as possible. Gradually I formed the habit of cheerful, optimistic thinking."

I thought much on what my friend said and began practicing it myself. That was three years ago, and from a morose, unhappy, always tired woman I am today buoyant, cheerful and in much better health. It is natural that I should have some moments of depression, but they don't conquer me. I am enjoying life to its fullest extent. I sincerely hope that all who read this will try to rid themselves of the demons of despondency, for by so doing a new life will flower for them; they will do more efficient work and be of greater help to others. All's right with the world."

HOW ABOUT IT?

LYMAN BEECHER'S WAY.

Lyman Beecher was a great and powerful preacher, but full of individualities and eccentricities. His peculiar habits are seen in his method of preparing sermons, as illustrated in Annie Fields' "Life and Letters of Harriet Beecher Stowe." Mr. Beecher's daughter says: "If he was to preach in the evening he was to be seen all day talking with whoever would talk, accessible to all, full of everybody's affairs, business and burdens, until an hour or two before the time, when he would rush into his study (which he always preferred should be at the top-most room of the house) and, throwing off his coat, after a swing or two with the dumbbells to settle the balance of his muscles, he would sit down and dash ahead, making quantities of hieroglyphic notes on small stubbed bits of paper about as big as the palm of his hand. The bells would begin to ring, and still he would write. They would toll loud and long, and his wife would say, 'He will certainly be late,' and there would be running up and down strings of messengers to see that he was finished, until, just as the last stroke of the bell was dying away, he would emerge from the study with his coat very much awry, and come down the stairs like a hurricane, stand impatiently, protesting while female hands that ever lay in wait adjusted his cravat and settled his coat collar, calling loudly the while for a pin to fasten together the stubbed little bits of paper aforesaid, which being duly dropped into the crown of his hat, and hooked wife or daughter like a satchel on his arm, away he would start on such a race through the streets as left neither brain nor breath until the church was gained. Then came the process of getting 'in through crowded aisles wedged up with heads, the bustle, the stir, and hush to look at him as, with a matter-of-fact, business-like push, he elbowed his way through them up the pulpit stairs.

The Miracle of Christ's Survival

(By J. FRANK HANLY.)

How impossible it seems that one born of such a parentage, in such a land, of such a race, and such an environment and in such times as this nameless, homeless, placeless man, should, in three brief years of teaching and ministry, set in motion moral tides that should sweep all peoples, change the laws of all nations and overturn the altars of all religions. And how unbelievable that such an one, writing no word and speaking only to ignorant fishermen who could remember but little of what He said, should acquire a fame that should obscure the geniuses of all times, draw in His train the inhabitants of all lands and the peoples of all ages, and link with Himself all human hopes and destinies. From a human standpoint it is incredible, absolutely and utterly incredible. It contradicts all human experience and contravenes all human possibilities. Even in our day of knowledge and enlightenment; of rapid transit and instant communication and of wide diffusion of information by means of a many-tongued and vibrant press—a day in which science and invention have drawn with magic hands the four corners of the universe into one, when man's veriest whisper can be heard beneath the seas and among the clouds of the most distant lands—only an infinitesimal few—one or two, perhaps, in half a thousand million—are able to achieve world renown. The lapse of a hundred years suffices to veil the most illustrious in more or less obscurity to all men and not infrequently in absolute oblivion so far as the multitudes are concerned. There are not six men now living; there were not six in the last century; no, there are scarcely six men in all the history of the race whose names are known to the masses of the people throughout the earth.

Even the benefactors of the race who are known are soon forgotten. Neither marble or bronze; nor brass nor chisel; not the "art preservative" itself can perpetuate their memories or make known their deeds, or even their names, to the passing, succeeding multitudes. Only this Son of the lowly Nazarene carpenter—this manger-child—has been able to triumph over oblivion. The miracle of survival is His and His alone. He alone of all the great who have lived and wrought has achieved enduring, universal fame. Only His name is so engrained on the forefront of the oncoming centuries that it cannot be forgotten. He alone is loved, adored and worshipped—loved, adored and worshipped everywhere—in America, in Europe, in Australia, in Africa, in the gray-haired east, and in the farthest islands of the sea.

As a man He never traveled beyond the narrow boundaries of the land in which He was born, but somehow His influence has diffused itself with subtle, mysterious power throughout all lands and into all places. Time, relentless in its march, inexorable in its processes, has piled more than nineteen hundred years between the people of the present age and the scene of His crucifixion and the hour of His death, and has crowded them with human incidents without number and with human endeavor and achievement of race-wide interest and import, covering with oblivion and making all but nameless every actor in the unending drama, but His fame it has only ennobled, His name it has only glorified.

ALWAYS A PLACE.

To him who is ready to work there is always a place to dig.

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death! The stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore, And bright in heaven's jeweled crown They shine forevermore.

There is no death! An angel form Walks o'er the earth with silent tread, And bears our best loved ones away, And then we call them dead!

Born into that undying life, They leave us but to come again; With joy we welcome them the same, Except 'their sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen, The dear, immortal spirits tread; For all the boundless universe Is life—there is no death.

—Lord Lytton.

DOING THINGS.

The only way to get things done is to do them. It's all very well to await the favorable opportunity if one is working hard in the meantime. But waiting for the favorable opportunity is too often a mere excuse for laziness or cowardice.

If one studies the lives of men and women who have succeeded, whether financially, socially, spiritually or, best of all, in the balance of living which includes growth of every kind, one finds an astonishing lack of the "waiting for something to turn up" attitude. What do you really want of life? It's well to ask oneself this question occasionally. If you have ideals of living which are higher and finer than your present status will allow, fix your mind firmly on the place you want and then work towards it with all your will. It isn't sitting around envying the other fellow (that will get you what the other fellow has got. It's making up your mind that you can have the same kind of life if you're willing to make the same sacrifice of mental laziness and physical inaction.

Suppose you do have to overwork occasionally. If you live sensibly and work cheerfully you can stand it. Suppose you counted on staying in your present job two years more while you got enough money saved to start something of your own, and you are thrown out of work today. What matter? Start the new business anyhow. The time to do something big isn't day after tomorrow.

The time to do things is today. The only way to make a beginning is to begin. The only way to get things done is to do them.

Treasures in Heaven.

Little Mary was sitting with her Uncle George one afternoon while he was going over some accounts. For an hour all was still, then Mary heard him say: "There! I have quite a nice little sum laid up against a time of need."

"What are you talking about, Uncle George?" asked Mary.

"About my treasures, little girl, that I have laid up."

"Up in heaven?" asked Mary, who had heard her father that morning read about laying up treasures in heaven.

"Oh, no, Mary! My treasures are all on earth, some in banks and some in other places," answered Uncle George.

"But haven't you any in heaven, too?" asked Mary.

"Well, I don't believe I have," said Uncle George, thoughtfully. "But run away to your mother now, for I am going out."

Uncle George went out and was gone a good while; but all the time he was thinking that, after all, perhaps he was not so well off if he had no treasures laid up in heaven to be ready for him when he left this world and his money behind him. He was so impressed with the thought that he wisely determined to lay up treasures in heaven. Little Mary never knew until years afterwards that it was her childish question that started Uncle George on a generous, active, Christian life.

How Poverty Helps.

Poverty is the normal lot of the vast majority of mankind. It was the lot of Jesus. There was nothing squalid, nothing torturing, nothing degrading in his poverty. It was that modest competence earned by manly toil, which suffices to provide all that men truly need. It is the poverty which, "having food and raiment," is "therewith content." The lesson of the humble to say, with Martin Luther: "My God, I thank thee that thou hast made me poor." A wise king once prayed: "Give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for thee."

There are likely some poor boys among our readers. Don't be ashamed of it. You are on the same level with Jesus. He knew the paths of daily economy; of work, not only to do, but to find; and of taxes to pay. Don't feel that you are handicapped. Hear the words of a truly successful man: "I was born in poverty, and would not exchange its sacred memories with the richest millionaire's son who ever breathed. What does he know about father or mother? These are mere names to him. Give me the life of the boy whose mother is nurse, seamstress, washerwoman, cook, teacher, angel, and saint all in one, and whose father is guide, exemplar, and friend, with no servants to come between." These are the boys who are born to the best fortune.

A Sermon on Love.

The following beautiful sentiments are translated from the French: "You have only a day to spend here on earth; act in such a manner that you may spend it in peace."

"If you cannot bear with your brother or how will he bear with you?"

"None is perfect; each has his failings, each hangs upon the other, and love, alone renders that weight light."

"It is written of the Son of Mary that, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end."

"For that reason love your brother, who is in the world, and love him unto the end."

"Love is indefatigable; it never grows weary."

"Love is inexhaustible; it lives and is born anew in the living; and the more it pours itself out, the fuller the fountain."

"Whoever loveth himself better than he loves his brother is not worthy of Christ, who died for his brothers. Have you given away everything you possess? Go and give up your life also, if needed."

"The wicked man loves not. He covets; he hungers and thirsts for everything. His eyes, like unto the eyes of a serpent, fascinate and allure, but only to devour."

"Love rests at the bottom of every pure soul like a drop of dew in the calyx of a flower. O, if you knew what it is to love!"—The Living Church.

Jesus Christ and Rich Men.

Sometimes workmen insist that if rich men were to carry out the commands of Jesus Christ they would give away all their wealth, because Jesus commanded the rich young ruler to do so. And because they do not give away all their wealth some workmen declare that these rich men are not Christians. They forget the circumstances under which this command was given. Jesus saw that the riches of this young ruler stood between him and the thing he seemed to desire, "The gift of eternal life."

Jesus Christ, so far as we know, never gave this command to any other man, neither are we told anywhere in Scripture that rich men must give away all in order to become Christians. Those who make these criticisms forget that some of the richest men in Bible history were considered the best men. Abraham was one of the wealthiest men in the world, and yet we are told in several places in the Bible that he was the "friend of God."

It is true that riches frequently stand between a man and Jesus Christ. For this reason Jesus gave that unusual picture, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God."

Of course, Jesus Christ did not refer to the eye of a sewing needle. In those days most of the cities were enclosed by a wall in which was a large gate open during the day. At night this gate was closed. Anyone coming into the city after sunset was compelled to enter through a small gate which would barely admit a camel. Indeed, that he barely enter, the merchandise and other trappings had to be removed from the camel's back. Frequently it became necessary to tie about the camel's neck a rope which was pulled vigorously by a man inside the gate, while outside the driver of the camel beheld the beast with a club in order to get it through. Finally, after considerable grunting and strong opposition, the camel would squeeze its clumsy body through this opening, known as the "needle's eye." This is the picture that Jesus Christ intended to impress upon the minds of his hearers. They were quite familiar with it. What Jesus Christ meant was—there is great danger that riches will prove to the rich man just such a hindrance as the merchandise on the back of the camel.—Charles Stelzle.

Christian Sympathy.

It is a great accomplishment to be able to "Rejoice with them that rejoice, and to weep with them that weep." How closely Jesus enters into the lives of people. He was equally at home in the palace of the rich and in the hovel of the poor. Little children loved Him, sinners did not shrink from Him. He was criticized for acting in a brotherly spirit toward the despised publicans. He is the Great Sympathizer.

It is most unfortunate to be the possessor of a cold disposition. There are persons whose souls are like ice. It is not in order to pray that from all such we may be delivered?

There are so many persons who need our sympathy; the poverty stricken in the slums, the little children who are the victims of cruelty and greed, the drunkards reeling along the street, the sick in hospitals, the prisoners in the jails and penitentiaries, the weak and the unfortunate and the needy of all classes. It is a hard old world in certain respects. There is nothing that will brighten it up like sympathy.

Congregationalist, Bruce Barton told in very graphic style of a modern prodigal. The story related to a young southerner who left home years ago, and who dissipated his fortune in riotous forms of living. He wandered about the world, reveling in low modes of vice, until, at last, the victim of drink and drugs and evils still worse, he stumbled one night into the Water Street Mission in New York. He was completely down and out—a typical bum. That night he accepted Christ as his Savior. He was led to do so by a mission worker who came and sat down beside him and called him brother, and put his arms around him and talked to him in tones of real appreciation and affection and who told him that Jesus was just waiting to save him. It was sympathy, real brotherly sympathy, that unlocked the door of his heart. Without this particular thing the world can never be won to God and redeemed. GENERAL SHERIDAN'S ANSWER.

An old friend of Gen. Phil Sheridan once asked him this question: "Phil, if you could choose for your little son from all the temptations which will beset him, the one most to be feared, what would it be?"

General Sheridan answered soberly: "It would be the curse of strong drink. Boys are not saints. We are all self-loved, strong-willed, may be full of courage and thrift and push and kindness and charity; but woe to the man or boy who becomes a slave to liquor! Oh, I had rather see my little son die today than to see him carried in to his mother drunk!"

"One of my brave soldier boys on the field said to me just before a battle, when he gave me his message to his mother if he should be killed: 'Tell her I have kept my promise to her—not one drink have I ever tasted.' The boy was killed. I carried the message with my own lips to the mother. She said: 'General, that is more glory for my boy than if he had taken a city.'"

Dust Lays Bare the Trail for Countless Disease Germs.

Dust is harmful when it is present in any quantity, for it irritates and inflames the air passages, an irritation which can lead to destruction of lung tissues. Dust prepares the way for the ever alert germs that cause colds, catarrh, influenza and pneumonia.

If tuberculosis germs are in the dust, there lies the danger of the disease entering the lungs of the individual breathing such dust.

People having tuberculosis should remember this and be careful when they expectorate.

House dust is more harmful than street dust.

When sweeping or dusting, proper ventilation is essential.

Rugs are more sanitary than carpets; they allow outdoor cleaning and exposure to sun.

In dusting and sweeping rooms, as little dust as possible should be raised. Feather dusters and dry cloths should NEVER be used.

If a room is carpeted scatter small pieces of damp newspaper over the surface of the carpet before sweeping.

Every precaution should be taken if there is illness in a house, particularly tuberculosis, to prevent the germs of the disease from getting into the air and dust.

The warm days of summer bring foot troubles. The feet feel big and heavy, and they puff up and grow tender and ache. But if people would give as much attention daily to their feet as they do to their hands, many foot ailments could be avoided.

Careful attention to the fit of one's shoes will prevent the forming of blisters. An ill-fitting shoe that rubs the heel will cause blisters to form the very first time you take a spring walk in the park.

Another spot where blisters are apt to form, unless one's shoes fit perfectly, is on the sole of the foot, under the little toe.

A shoe that is too narrow in front and crowds and pushes the front of the nail to one side will cause ingrowing toenails. In bad cases it is best to consult a chiropodist, but afterward if one would prevent a recurrence of the trouble see to it that shoes which do not pinch the toes are worn.

A great many adults have weak feet. This is because in their childhood they contracted bad foot habits or were made to wear shoes that were too small or too large.

Then they did not notice it, for their bodies were light and their muscles strong, but as middle age approaches the elasticity of tissue and muscles decrease and foot ills develop.

Chew your food until you can taste it. Thorough mastication is both a pleasure and an important part of eating.

Most of our dental troubles can be traced back to childhood.

Therefore "Keep Well" work should begin with the coming of the first teeth of the child.

Frequently mothers pay no attention to the green stain so often seen on children's teeth. Aside from its disgusting appearance this should be removed as once otherwise it will cause decay.

Decay in a child's first set of teeth is as dangerous as it is in later teeth. It is a common error that because the first teeth are temporary they do not require attention. This is a great mistake for the regularity of the permanent teeth depends largely upon the retention of the first set until the second is ready to appear.

The mother should make it a part of her daily care to see that the child's teeth are clean, and if this is done the child will, as it grows older, find it impossible to feel comfortable without having cleansed the teeth as thoroughly as the hands and face.

Under proper conditions the temporary teeth should remain in the mouth until they simply lose their hold from absorption of their roots and drop out as white and clean as when they first appeared.

When decay commences the same care should be taken to prevent its spreading as would be given to similar trouble if the teeth were a permanent set. All cavities in the first teeth should be filled, thereby doing away with the disease instead of leaving the teeth in a diseased condition to invite more trouble.

The premature loss of the early teeth is the cause of much of the irregularity and disfigurement of so many human mouths. When it is remembered how much their loss means, not only in inability to chew food properly, and to speak correctly, but the condition of the throat through life, the importance of attention to a child's first teeth cannot fail to be appreciated.

A Confidential Word With Each Member of the Whole Family

(Willard Price, in The World Outlook.)

Mr. You.

Just suppose, Mr. You, that you had been born a thick-lipped native of the dark continent, dressed in tattoo marks and a necklace of animal teeth. So you stretch your glistening limbs in the sun, munch your morning croquette of ants, gnats and locusts, and think:

Think—not of the war in Europe because you never heard of it; not of what you read in your morning newspaper; and anyway, the language you speak has never been put into writing; not of business or ambition, of greatness or of God.

No. You think of the flies tickling your toes, of the snake-stalk and native beer dinner you had last night, of the evil eye and the witch doctor and of your six children killed by smallpox and lying under the earthen floor of your hut.

That's you, Mr. You, as you would have been in a land of no science, no love, no school, no Christ.

Master You.

Put yourself in the place of a fourteen-year-old lad of a North American Indian instead of a North American. Your blood is half Spanish and half Indian. Your disposition is made up of disdain for labor, and of loose morals.

Boys of your age are not expected to be moral in Peru.

The climate is hot and enervating. You can't stick to anything difficult. You have been taught to do nothing except ride as a dead weight on the shoulders of your serfs, the Indians. You are descended from Spanish lusts after gold—not from Puritan seekers for religious liberty. You are an infidel and proud of it.

And yet, you and your race have tremendous possibilities. Can Master You of the north help Master You of the south to make those possibilities wake up and work?

Mrs. You.

Imagine yourself the Chinese wife of Ching Chang Chung, who has cut off his queue but not his ideas about women. You never saw him until the close of the wedding ceremony.

As you looked into his face you knew what was ahead of you. His mother would rule your home. You must obey them both, and if you should have a son, you must obey him, too.

Any member of this triple league might beat you at will.

Your husband might divorce you for chance.

Children Fighting Beside Their Fathers in the Serbian Ranks Now

Infant Warriors Make Up Large Part of Fighting Force That is the Hope of the Nation.

(BY K. W. PAYNE.)

New York, Sept. 7.—"Save the child soldiers of Serbia!" That is a slogan of the national campaign just opened by New York society women to obtain medical aid for the Serbian soldiers in their new Balkan drive!

Mere children have been sharing the untold hardships of the Serbian army and these infant fighters are destined to suffer still more terribly now, for lack of an army medical service!

Alone of all the armies at war, the Serb force will have to see their wounded perish, their sick succumb, as though in medieval warfare, for lack of proper help from science!

What are these boy warriors like? One man who has brought back a description of them is Fortier Jones, author and former Columbia university student, who went through the turmoil of relief work during the Serbian cataclysm of last year.

"In the early days of the great retreat we made the acquaintance of the 'Little Sergeant,' the youngest soldier in the Serbian army," says Jones, in his new book, "With Serbia Into Exile," published by the Century company. "He was a real sergeant. On his soldiers' coat he wore three gold stars. In lieu of a sword he carried an Austrian bayonet, and in lieu of a rifle a Russian cavalry carbine."

"A full-sized, well-filled cartridge belt was slung over his shoulders, because it would easily have girdled his baby waist three times!" "He was ten years of age, and had been in the service for a long time."

"Whom had he left at home? Why his mother and little sister, who was five years older than himself."

"His father and brother were in the army. The boy had shot well and been cautious in the trenches, and been promoted above his father, who now, according to military discipline, had to salute his son."

"But the boy never allowed this. He always forestalled his father and at the same time conserved military discipline."

Baby soldiers of Serbia are here shown after being taken captives. The youngest of these little fighters was wounded in the arm and hand by shrapnel. Two of these little warriors have sacking tied about their feet; the other is barefooted.

by seizing his hand that would have saluted and kissing it!"

Another of the baby Serbian soldiers was described today by Miss Julia Sabine, field secretary of the Franco-Serbian Field Hospital of America.

"He was a sergeant, too, when I met him," said Miss Sabine. "He had gone to Belgrade as a stowaway on the transport that carried his father's regiment."

"They wouldn't take him as a soldier, but he carried water under fire to the men, and when his father was killed in action, he was made sergeant as reward for his heroism!"

Just how many Serb youngsters like these are going to march to the front with their fathers in the new offensive nobody knows. But according to Miss Sabine, a large part of the army might well be called children!

"The poor Serbian soldiers on whom the fate of a whole race depends, are doomed to suffer helplessly, without the aid of a doctor or comfort of a nurse, unless medical help is supplied by neutral nations!"

"The Serb seems never too old to fight!" says Fortier Jones, author of "With Serbia Into Exile," describing heroes whose ages range from 45 years to an indefinite limit.

"They had no uniforms, these patriots of the army and marching by they presented a beggars' array of tattered homespun."

"To see their grandfathers in dirty rags, unwashed, half-starved, blue with cold, drenched with rain, many of them suffering with rheumatism, scurvy, neuralgia and in the last days of their nation's life dying by hundreds of wounds, of cold and starvation, was one of the things the Serbs had to bear!"

Ireland is under martial law and has been combed for weapons. Wisely, no doubt. In view of the situation. But for all the soldiery everywhere, "sniping" goes on in out-of-the-way places, and any man that walks abroad may see the signs of trouble.

The Casement affair struck men as cold-blooded, deliberate, passionless. Very few persons in Ireland believed Casement would be hanged. Hanged he was, and his fate made every bad condition infinitely worse.

The Best Guaranteed Soft Coal Mined in the Middle West—F. O. B. Mines

It's a fact, you're paying steep, outrageous coal prices every year to coal dealers and here is the reason:

The coal you get from your dealer actually passes through three or four hands before you even get it. It isn't the fault of the coal man in your town, but that's the routine coal goes through when it's handled by middlemen. And it is expensive, too. Each of these middlemen, and we call them middlemen because they stand between you and the mine owners, declare a profit on every pound that passes through their hands.

Coal Is Not Expensive when it leaves the mines, but after the profits of three or four needless middlemen have been declared—coal starts to be an expensive necessity for all of us. You can avoid high coal prices and big coal bills.

Buy Coal Direct From Our Mines! Save from $1.00 to $4.00 on every ton you put in. Buy the famous Tecumseh Coal direct from us, the mine owners, at mine prices.

STRONGER NOW THAN BEFORE REBELLION

Sinn Fein Spirit is Still Very Pronounced in Ireland.

By Chas. Edward Russell. Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 25.—(Special Correspondence).—London today is a place of ill timed mirth, and many other British cities are amazingly light hearted considering what kind of work is in hand.

But Dublin sits grave, silent, sullen. It has always before its eyes the sombre piles of ruins where once was its greatest business center, and all these other buildings piled with bullet marks or disfigured with shellholes.

A visitor has no need to be told that the fighting here that terrible Easter week was desperate and bloody. He can see that for himself.

The great general postoffice, two of the largest hotels, the principal department store, and many other commanding structures were included in the devastated region. The empty shell of the postoffice still stands. All the rest are heaps of rubbish, five blocks long and three blocks wide.

The mere sight depresses every heart; so does the memory of the wild struggle down to death that it brings back. But Dublin and all southern Ireland have heavier burdens than this.

The men that led the Easter week revolt have been added to the long list of national heroes and martyrs; they have become to the average Irishman like Emmet, Wolfe Tone and Tandy. Their cause has been taken to the popular heart, their deaths are bitterly resented, and how far these feelings may go and what they may lead to are questions that keep sober men from their sleep.

"Crush out Sinn Fein!" was the cry of some British journals. Crush it? The best living authority on Irish affairs tells me there are now ten times as many Sinn Feiners as there were when the insurrection broke loose.

"Up with the republic!" is the forbidden cry in Ireland. I have heard it in the most unexpected places.

The day I came here a great crowd stood in the street before the railway station, cheering vehemently. All were Sinn Feiners. What were they cheering?

A little band of other Sinn Feiners just released from English prisons. Nothing in those cheers sounded like the note of crushed men.

"Seems like killing folks was a waste of time," says the reflective old pirate in Stephenson's story. In the case of the men put to death for this uprising it was still worse. It spread hatred, implacable resentment, and a sense of wrong that will outlast this generation and others.

The war has revealed in men an insatiable capacity for blundering. No blunder in all the war has been so monstrous and bovine as this.

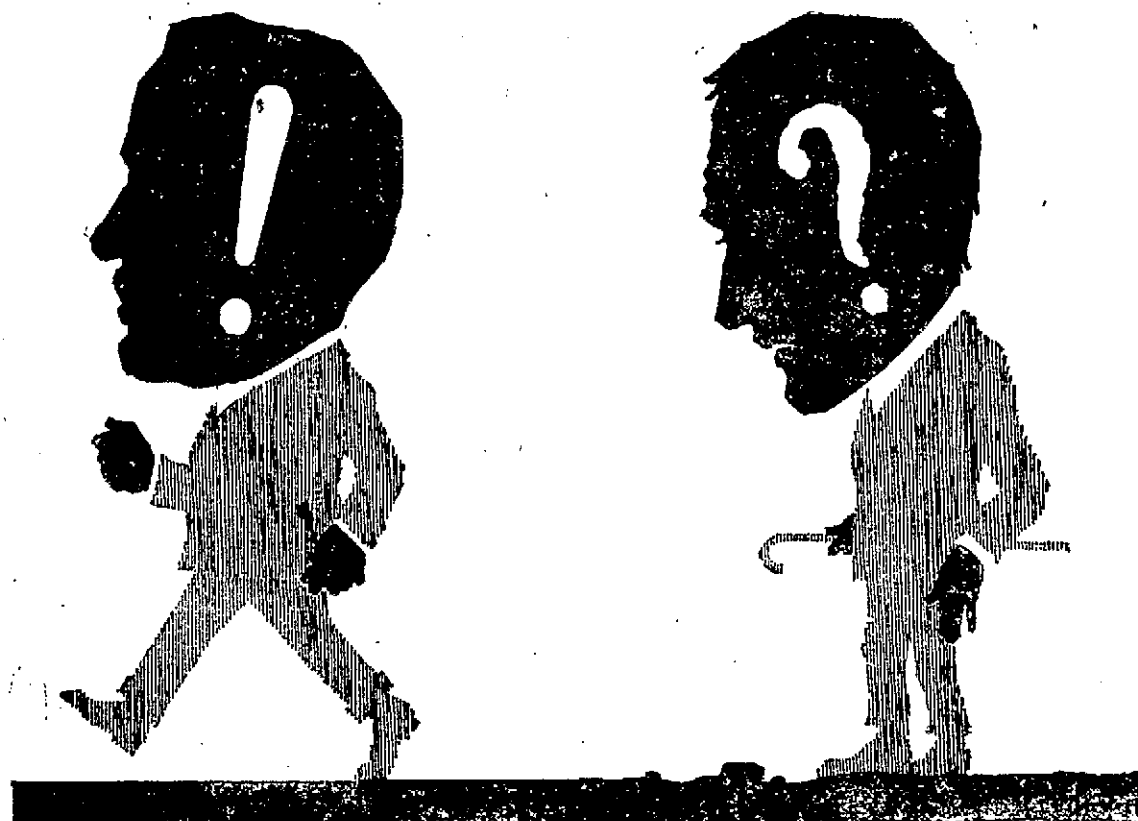

The rebel leaders surrendered when they saw that their movement had failed. They were court-martialed at night and shot the next morning. Masses of Irish people have one clear notion that surrendered prisoners of war ought not to be shot, and another that these men were not shot as traitors, but because they were Irishmen.

And they point to De Wet in South Africa.

Is treason a matter of geography? they ask.

Men that helped to put down the insurrection and bore arms against it feel this as deeply as the sons and brothers of the men they fought against. It is strange and ominous, but it is true.

The outlook is stormy on all sides now, but stormiest in Ireland. If at the end of the war perdition breaks loose elsewhere in the empire, what shall we look for here?

Two Fellows are trying to get ahead-- It's easy to see who'll win.

TOUR OF DISTRICT

Democratic Nominee for Governorship Predicts Big Victory.

John A. M. Adair completed his tour of three counties in the district with a speech at Garrett Wednesday night. Mr. Adair spoke from a stand on the public square and many laboring men heard the address, including men from the Baltimore & Ohio shops. He spoke on the new laws that have been enacted by congress and the state legislature. A band met Mr. Adair's party on the outskirts of the city. Music also was furnished by a quartet composed of J.

D. Brinkerhoff, V. M. McKennan, Frank Boltz and Carl Weaver. The musical program preceded the address of the candidate.

Much for Laboring Man.
Mr. Adair declared the democratic party has given the laboring men all the legislation they had received from any political party. He said the laws came after the republicans had been in power for many years and had failed to enact any such legislation. He urged the voters to support the party that had made the laws possible.

He asked support of the state ticket in order that there could be a continuance of constructive legislation. Robinson Was Speaker.

James M. Robinson, former congressman, spoke for a short time on national and state issues and compared America, a nation at peace, with Europe, torn by war. He declared peace in this country was possible by the wise leadership of President Wilson.

Ralph Thomas directed the tour in DeKalb county, assisted by Harvey Junison, secretary. At all stops large crowds heard Mr. Adair. The first stop was Cornuna, where about 350 persons had assembled. Otto Thomas introduced the candidate and Mr. Robinson made a short speech. From Cornuna, the party drove to Waterloo. V. F. Sewell introduced the speaker at Waterloo. At Butler, W. J. Moundhank presided and gave Mr. Adair his introduction, and at St. Joe, M. Dunkel made the introduction.

At Butler Mr. Adair spoke to 500 and at St. Joe to 350. From St. Joe the party went to Spencerville, where Mr. Adair was introduced by W. A. Erick. From Spencerville the party went to Auburn, where luncheon was taken.

Many heard Adair.

It is estimated that 10,000 persons heard Mr. Adair during his three days' tour. Mr. Adair was well pleased with the tour of the Twelfth district, he having spoken to large, attentive audiences at each place. He said he was confident that the district would mark up a big majority for the state, national and congressional ticket this fall.

HE WAS WORRIED AND HOPELESS.

"For ten or twelve years I was bothered with bad kidney trouble," writes T. P. Hutchinson, Little Rock, Ark. "I tried many remedies and doctors, but grew worse all the time. I was worried and had almost given up all hopes. I tried Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me a lot. I have since used five boxes and am now a well man." Foley Kidney Pills drive out aches and pains due to kidney trouble; also sleep disturbing bladder disorders. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

COUNCIL MAY REPEAL

BREAD ORDINANCE

Bakers Are Objecting to Code Which Fixes the Weight of Each Loaf.

The city council may repeal the ordinance which fixes the size of bread at sixteen and twenty-four ounces, at the council session next Tuesday evening. Bakers of the city are very anxious to have the law repealed. They can keep the price of bread down by making the loaves slightly smaller, they say, whereas they must keep boosting the selling figure with each raise in the cost of materials under the present law.

Bread price is now six cents and will no doubt go higher, because flour prices, especially, are near the sky. The five cent loaf would have remained at least several days longer by decreasing the size of the little loaf if the city law would have allowed.

Bakers do not like to raise the prices because it means dissatisfied customers, they say. The bakers prefer to cut the size of the loaf.

City Sealer C. B. Tolan has given out that as long as the present ordinance is in effect it must be complied with to the letter. The ordinance, passed in 1897, does not tolerate the practice of making a "package" of bread to consist of two loaves of twelve ounces each and then selling one of the loaves for a nickel, as bakers were trying to do, when prices cut all profit from their former jitney loaf.

"We have no desire to work a hardship on bakers," a councilman said Thursday. "If the bakers show that the law should be repealed I am sure the council will have it annulled."

A few representative bakers may go before the council next Tuesday evening and explain the present situation and their reasons for asking that the law be repealed.

Daniel Powierza May Lose Leg as the Result of an Auto Smash-Up.

When his son, Daniel Powierza, aged 14 years, was on the operating table at St. Joseph's hospital and doctors advised that the little fellow's leg be amputated, Vincent Powierza, the father, residing at 1215 Hayden street, would not give his consent and said: "Fix it up and let it grow back on; that's the way we do it in the old country."

The young boy was learning to ride a motorcycle and at the intersection of Warsaw and DeWald streets the motorcycle on which he was riding and an automobile driven by Mrs. J. C. Weirman, 2210 Lafayette street, came together with the result that the foreigner was badly injured. The accident occurred at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening.

The injured boy was taken into a nearby residence and Dr. Ray was summoned. Later he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Attendants at the hospital state that the boy spent a fair night but that he was suffering much pain. The physicians will determine Thursday night whether an operation is necessary to save the lad's life.

Mrs. Weirman states that when she neared the crossing she saw the boy "wobbling all over the street," and that he ran directly into her machine. The boy stated that Mrs. Weirman forced him into the curbing and continued until she ran over the curbing, sidewalk and into a front yard.

WHITLEY COUNTY MEN

INJURED NEAR CITY

Ford Touring Car Upsets and Occupants Thrown Into a Ditch.

Four residents of Whitley county were injured last Tuesday evening when the Ford car in which they were driving turned over in a ditch about four miles west of the city near the "Root Jack" on the Illinois road. They were brought back to Fort Wayne and their injuries were attended at St. Joseph's hospital. All have returned to their homes, however.

William Schnitzler, a farmer, came to this city Tuesday evening to buy some paint and took with him his hired man, "Joe," Fred Whitehead, of Columbia City, and Orlando Bennett, of Columbia township.

When they turned out of the way to allow another car to pass the back wheel of the Ford car started for the ditch. The auto did not stop until it had turned a complete somersault on its side and stood erect in the ditch at the side of the road.

Bennett suffered a fractured arm and leg, besides several bad bruises. Schnitzler, who was driving the car, was rendered unconscious and suffered a deep cut in his forehead. Whitehead sustained a dislocated shoulder and "Joe" is suffering from a broken rib.

All have returned to their homes. Late Tuesday night when Dr. D. S. Linville, of Columbia City, was bringing two of the patients home, they witnessed a similar accident a mile farther from the accident of a few hours before. Roscoe Schrader and Everett Brubaker were driving in a Ford car when it left the track and went into the ditch. Neither was injured. They admitted that they had fallen to sleep while driving the car.

SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 7.—Dale Gibbs, 24, shot himself in the breast last night with a revolver while he was walking on the street, and it is believed he is fatally injured. He said afterward that the shooting was accidental.

POSSES ON TRAIL OF BUNGLING BANDITS

Attempted Train Holdup in Arizona Was Complete Failure.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 7.—Six masked bandits who last night held up the Golden States limited of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway near Apache, forty miles east of Douglas, early today were being trailed by a sheriff's posse, organized immediately after the holdup. The attempted robbery was a complete failure.

The bandits after six attempts to blow open the safe of the express car, abandoned the job and disappeared on cow ponies. The passengers were not molested. One shot was fired at the mail clerk as he closed the door and locked himself in the car. Two of the robbers boarded the tender at Apache, covered the engine crew with revolvers and after the first three cars were detached were joined by four companions awaiting at a campfire nearby.

Maggie Teyte's Wonderful Leap Year Romance

Bewitching Maggie Teyte, known as "the daintiest prima donna in the world," announced a short time ago that she is to marry a "war cripple."

Now comes his identity and the revelation of a remarkable romance. Right at the beginning of leap year, and less than two months after a Paris judge had divorced her from M. Eugen Plumon, a handsome young French lawyer, she proposed by cable to her army hero, whom she has known since childhood. And straightway, by cable, he accepted the grand opera singer's proposal with profuse avowals of undying devotion and gratitude.

Seymour Robertson is his name. He is a lieutenant in the English army. In the fighting near Loos he was wounded so severely that it was necessary to amputate his right arm and left leg. Because he lost those two members Maggie Teyte declares she loves him with all her heart and soul.

"He is my child," she says. "He always will be my child. The church and the state will make him my husband. But to me he always will be my child. I shall love him and nurse him and care for him. You call that self-sacrifice? Ah, no. That is true love—nothing more."

UNHAPPY FROM THE START.

Here, then, is the strangest and most appealing love story of a modern prima donna that ever has been recorded. It reeks with romance. It is contradictory. It is an absorbing study for experts in psychology. But for the plain, honest, everyday person who knows love only as a divine emotion coming straight from the soul it is a story that will cause the throat to swell and the eyes to glisten.

Why? First of all, Maggie Teyte is a woman of the world. She is young—not yet 25—yet she has seen life in its sordid as well as its beautiful phases. She has worked hard and suffered much. At 17 she made her debut in grand opera. At 18 she was the operatic idol of Paris.

In that year she was married to Plumon. They were unhappy from the beginning and the divorce that followed last November was inevitable.

Now what of Seymour Robertson? He was born near Wolverhampton, England. It was in Dunstall House, on a country estate near Wolverhampton, that Maggie Teyte came into the world. Her father was a musician, not overburdened with wealth. Young Robertson's parents were refined country people. They planned great things for "their boy." They wanted him to be of service to the British government—to become a diplomat—and he was educated with that end in view.

WENT TO SCHOOL TOGETHER.

As children Maggie Teyte and Seymour Robertson went to school together. All of this, by the way, is Maggie Teyte's own story as she related it a few days ago in her luxurious apartment in the Hotel Vanderbilt, New York. In those days they merely were school friends. Seymour was a quiet boy, studiously inclined. Maggie Teyte was vivacious, full of the joy of living. She cared more for skipping rope or trilling a ballad than she did for the "three Rs."

All of the boys in the Staffordshire school, save Seymour Robertson, were "fairly wild" about her. On school desks, fences and even the staid old schoolhouse were carved hearts with the mystic initials "M. T." and those of the juvenile knife sculptors adorning the boyish emblems of love.

As for Seymour Robertson, he was "shy." He would walk home from school with Maggie occasionally and always he talked of books, horses or hunting—never of love. And all the time the unseen hands of destiny were moving the two young people like pieces on a chess board.

HE DIDN'T FORGET MAGGIE.

Papa Tate—the family spelled the name that way and Maggie only changed it after she entered grand opera—believed his daughter would make a great singer. He bundled her off to Paris when she was 13. There, at a great financial sacrifice to the family, it was arranged that Jean de Reszke, the great tenor, should teach her.

"She will become one of the greatest prima donnas in Europe within four years," said De Reszke. "But she must work; that is the one thing necessary to her success." So she worked—worked until at times her head would swim and her appetite desert her. All of those lusty boys of Wolverhampton who had carved "M. T." inside the wooden hearts forgot her completely and found new loves.

Seymour Robertson, who hadn't carved the heart, did not forget her. He wrote to her occasionally. His letters were full of encouragement, brotherly in tone. He knew she would succeed, he told her, and wasn't it "ripping" that she was planning to go into grand opera?

"There are no events of interest to record at home," would be his perfunctory form of closing. "I am studying, and pater and mater have great hopes for me."

The situation thus presented is that of a girl full of energy working prodigiously to reach a great goal, and a boy in England peacefully pursuing his studies with the general idea of "helping the government." One knew just how she expected to attain her end; the other had no definite object in sight.

THEIR LIVES

WIDELY SEPARATED.

One worked amid turmoil, temperament and men and women who were steeped in the lore of worldliness; the other lived in a sphere of quietness and simplicity. And destiny, that great master of the game of life, kept moving both forward slowly and deliberately toward the climax of tragedy and romance that was in store for them.

When the four years of study allotted to Maggie Teyte by Jean de Reszke had expired he sent her to Monte Carlo, where she sang the prima donna role in "Don Juan" a few days after her seventeenth birthday, and scored a great triumph. Flowers poured in upon her from statesmen and millionaires on the succeeding nights of her successful beginning. All she got from Seymour Robertson was a simple letter of congratulation.

Next she sang at the Opera Comique in Paris and in the following season made a success in "Pelleas et Melisande." It was while singing in that beautiful and romantic opera that she met Plumon, fell in love with him, as she thought, and they were married.

The simple folk of Wolverhampton were stunned by Maggie Teyte's success. But more successes awaited her. At 19 she sang at Covent Garden in London. One of the first with her. They did not get along well together. He seemed jealous of her success, she says. Then, too, he thought he was playing "second fiddle" in the matrimonial orchestra. When she planned to return to America in 1913 he "laid down the law" to her.

"If you go," he said, "you go alone. And I will file suit for divorce against you." Here is a nature that does not tolerate opposition. She snapped her fingers at him and sailed. Plumon sailed, too—sailed into court with papers in his divorce suit.

DESTINY MOVES

ONCE MORE.

And now destiny moved mild young Seymour Robertson forward. Came the great war in Europe, the call for troops by England, and the boy who had been trained so earnestly for the diplomatic service entered the army with a commission. Over to France went Lieutenant Robertson. He fought quietly and he fought bravely.

The end of the engagement at Loos found him terribly maimed on the battlefield. He lay out in the open for twelve hours before he was found and carried to a hospital. Gangrene set in. Amputation of one

Lieutenant Seymour Robertson, Miss Teyte's boy-of-chim and sweetheart, just as he looked before he fell, maimed, in the battle of Loos. He was handsome enough to love then, but Miss Teyte didn't discover it until a part of his beauty was gone.

to congratulate her after her first appearance there was Robertson. "I say, isn't it jolly?" he exclaimed. "I never thought you would do it so quickly."

It was a real brotherly attitude. She introduced him to Plumon, and that was the last she saw of him during 1910. Early in 1911 she made her American debut in Philadelphia.

Her success here was as great as it had been in Europe. Then she returned to Paris and her triumphs were renewed. Plumon traveled leg and arm were imperative. The surgeons asked for his consent to the operation.

"If it must be done," he said, "why, fire away." So they gave him an anaesthetic and when he regained consciousness this youth of 25 had only one leg and one arm. They sent him back to England. There he wrote to Maggie Teyte and told her all about himself.

Her reply must have made him feel repaid for his great misfortune in battle.

"Why did I never realize you were a hero?" she wrote. "Ah, dear, dear man! You have braved everything for your country. There are women whose hearts are with England who love you for what you have done, and I am one of them."

Shortly after this destiny made another move. M. Plumon won his divorce on the ground of desertion. The news was flashed all over the civilized world. Robertson, in England read of it, and cabled to Maggie Teyte, then in Philadelphia. There was only one word in the message. It was:

Maggie Teyte, the "daintiest prima donna in the world," is so exquisite that many a brave soldier in the trenches—and in the diamond horseshoe, too, for that matter—would be glad to have an arm and a leg amputated just to win her love. Her photograph, above, is proof.

She says that for many days she carried the message next to her heart. Then, with the dawning of the new year, she cabled to Robertson. Her message was:

"Am ready to wed you. Answer." The answer came quickly enough. "What a noble man he is!" said the dainty little blue-eyed, flaxen-haired prima donna. "When I received tidings of my divorce I felt at once elated and miserable. I was elated to feel that I was free of the pain that pained me and miserable to think of that word 'Divorce.' It seemed to me that I was all alone in the world—that I had nothing to live for but my work."

"I remember a newspaper writer called on me in Philadelphia to ask about the Paris decree. I told him I never intended being married again—that art and marriage would not mix. After he had departed there came the message from Seymour. 'I understood all at once—understood that beneath his brotherly exterior a pure love had burned. Yet

I did not want to be hasty. One should understand that an opera singer must have her career. Hers is the life of a slave—a slave to her work."

"If she marries her husband usually will exploit her—if not for money, then for glory. If a woman who is pursuing a career intends making that sacrifice, of being a slave to her husband as well as her art, all very well and good. I am not capable of self-sacrifice to the extent that I would not see the faults in my husband if he tried to exploit me for his own welfare."

EVERY WISH TO BE GRATIFIED.

"Since this terrible war began it has been my ambition to become a nurse, and to help those poor men who have been maimed for their country. That I may do—if Seymour agrees to it."

"But what of yourself? Will you not have something to say about your own wishes?"

"You do not understand," sighed Miss Teyte. "Men never do. Seymour is my child—his every wish shall be gratified."

Wherefore destiny, having thus brought Maggie Teyte and Lieutenant Robertson together, might well write:

"All ye who think ye know a woman's heart would do well to gaze searchingly hereon and then find another answer to the riddle ye think ye have solved."

For Maggie Teyte, young and beautiful, who might command a nobleman, a millionaire or an Adonis to become her husband, has singled out a wan "war cripple."

Is it because of woman's natural desire to "mother" some one in misery?

Is it patriotism? Or is it as Shakespeare says: "She loved me for the dankers I had passed; And I loved her that she did pity them."

PRICE ON WHEAT

REMAINS UNCHANGED

Millers Are Offering $1.35 a Bushel for Grain—Live Stock Market Steady.

Fort Wayne millers and grain dealers have not changed their price on wheat per bushel, but have allowed it to remain the same as it has been for the past few days. It was reported that the price had again gone up to $1.40 a bushel, but millers state that they are still keeping their price at $1.35. It is possible, however, that there will be a rise in the quotation prices soon.

The live stock market remains very steady and local dealers are offering $10.25 as the top price on hogs. This price was reached several weeks ago and since that time it has neither moved up nor down. Other live stock markets are the same. Receipts are very slow.

Housewives found a limited supply of home-grown potatoes on the market Thursday morning. They were of the small variety and farmers were offering them at sale for $2.00 to $2.25 per bushel.

The recent rains have helped the tomato crop greatly and as a result they were plentiful Thursday on market. They retailed at $1.25 to $1.40 a bushel. Peaches sold for $1.50 a bushel. Pickle prices ranged from 15 to 35 cents a hundred.

QUITS ASYLUM AFTER 17 LONG YEARS THERE

Noted Artist, Released on Parole, Revels in Sights of Nature.

New York, Sept. 7.—A silent, gray little man, in a blue suit and brown fedora hat, rode along the Paterson plank road yesterday, his glances lighting upon the meadows, woodlands and river courses as the swift automobile nuzzled the countryside. He was Ralph Albert Blake, whose paintings have an honored place in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and in scores of lesser galleries, and it was dawning on him that the end of a nightmare seventeen years long might be close at hand.

After a six months' parole from the Middletown State Hospital for the insane had been granted him yesterday in the supreme court at Middletown, N. Y., Blake, accompanied by Dr. Maurice Ashley, of the State hospital, and Mrs. VanRensselaer Adams, one of the prime movers in raising the fund that is to support the painter in a private sanatorium, set out for Lynwood Lodge, in West Englewood, N. J.

Delighted With Journey.

The tedious train journey, with its frequent stops, delighted the patient. Still more did the automobile trip of nearly ten miles from Paterson to the Lynwood Lodge sanatorium in West Englewood. The train was nearly an hour late in getting into Paterson and the afternoon shadows had lengthened across the valleys when the party started up the plank road.

Fascination lurked in every turn of the road, every fence corner and every shifting cloud shadow. Even Easton park, with its name slanted geometrically to the highway by hundreds of dusty pink geraniums failed to discourage him.

At Arrola the car swerved from the plank road to the state road, and bore on through Maywood and past the quaint old houses of Hackensack. It was only a few minutes then before it entered the grounds of the sanatorium. The faces of Blake's friends were slightly drawn as they led the way to the pleasant brick dormitory, where his room was. This was to be a test even more severe than the long ride. They threw open the door and let him enter first.

Halts for a Moment.

For a moment he halted, swaying slightly. About the walls of the sunny room were portraits of artists whom he had known before the shadow fell upon him. In their midst was a little water color, simply framed, a winter landscape, painted by Blake in the days of his poverty, one of the many that no one then would buy.

Slowly Blake entered the room and slowly he inspected it, wall by wall, hesitating long before each of the faces that smiled down upon him.

Still there was more to show him... and the sun was sinking. Blake followed his guides to a long, low wooden structure southeast of the dormitory.

There he played a piano and dreamed, lost in his own music.

At dinner he met the other inmates of the sanatorium, eighteen of them, and his nurse, Miss Helen Crosby. He greeted them all with a firm handshake and a clear, untroubled gaze.

As Always Priced At $1.00

The mere announcement that the new Wirthmor Waists are in, would bring to our store so many people who have bought them before that nothing further would be needed to be said about them. But we want everyone to know about their merits for we know that when every wearer of waists learns how good they really are—that our present allotments will be entirely inadequate—and when that time comes we believe we'll be selling all or nearly all of the dollar waists that are sold.

ROANOKE NEWS.

Roanoke, Ind., Sept. 7.—The date for opening the Roanoke schools has been changed from September 11 to October 2, on account of influenza paralysis quarantine in Allen county. The board does not care to take any chances and deem this the best precaution.

Miss Cecil Honius entertained twenty girls Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Leona Slagle, of Indianapolis. She was awarded the Campfire Girls honor for entertaining the number at a two-course lunch for two dollars.

The concrete work on the new main street road does not seem to be progressing very rapidly. It was stated that work would begin not later than August 15 on the concrete, but it is the first of September and there is no material in sight.

The Kil-So-Quah Campfire Girls of Roanoke met at the home of Miss Margaret Hackett, Friday evening, to take the degree of wood-gatherers and receive appropriate campfire names. Nine members received the degree and took names. The girls and their new names are: Elizabeth Hackett, Fatka; Leonore Dinius, Waynash; Leona Goff, Cateckya; Bessie McFarren, Watta; Nellie Wilson, Westdapa; Margaret Mayne, Lexse; Bessie Van Arsdol, Alan; Alma Settemlyre, Lalan, and Cecil Honius, Ahneah.
